GET RESPITE FOR MRS. SNYDER

PLAN TO WIDEN SEVERAL DOWNTOWN STREETS

Three Streets To Be Widened By Moving Curb

North, Falls And Mercer Streets Are Thoroughfares Affected

WORK WILL START IN NEAR FUTURE

North Mercer Near "The Castleton" Will Also Be Resurfaced

Council in regular session at city hall today took definite steps toward the widening of three downtown business thoroughfares, and probabilities are that the improvements will be made this summer.

The streets to be widened are North, between East and Jefferson; Falls between North Mill and Jefferson, and Mercer between Falls and Lawrence streets.

The cartway of Mercer street will be increased to a width of 36 feet; North street to 32 street and Falls street to 36 feet.

It is planned to take the ground situated between the present curb and the sidewalk.

Council also provides in the ordinance relating to Mercer street that the square between Falls and North street is to be resurfaced.

The city will charge the cost of paving the widened section to the abutting property owners.

Business is spreading to Falls, North and Mercer street and widened thoroughfares are necessary.

The ordinances after being introduced were sent to committee and reported out favorably.

The bills will not be acted upon finally until they have been returned from the printer.

Last Rescue Work In Flood Area Under Way

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LAFAYETTE, La., May 27.—Secretary of Commerce Hoover today made his last swing around the southern end of the great Louisiana sea rolling down both sides of the Atchafalaya basin to the gulf.

At Opelousas early today he received reports from John M. Parker, in charge of state relief headquarters at Baton Rouge, that evacuation of a small isolated section in North Pointe Coupee parish, above the McCrea crevasse, was proceeding satisfactorily. Although some 2,000 people still are trapped in the 50 square miles in the northeastern point of the parish, with boats as their only means of escape, Parker's communique emphasized there was, in his view, no danger of loss of life.

Those driven out by the waters flowing northward from McCrea are heading for the Mississippi levees above Morgansea. Here they are being carried off in hundreds of craft to the Baton Rouge refugee camp.

The McCrea spillway, which opened under the mad pounding of the Atchafalaya torrent last Saturday, had widened to slightly more than 2,000 feet today, said a report to Major General Edgar Jadwin, chief of army engineers, who, with Red Cross officials is traveling with Secretary Hoover over the last remaining portions of southern Louisiana to be smothered by the crest of the flood.

Councilman D. O. Davies today stated that all of the curb light posts in the city will be painted white. Several have already been painted. The poles which have been given a coating of "aluminum paint" at the city diamond present a neat appearance.

Radio Broadcasters Open Fight To Obtain Choice Wave Channels

War To Finish Seen As Hearing Starts Over Wave-Length Allocation

May Take Entire Summer To Hear Complaints From All Stations

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 27.—War to the finish—probably to the United States Supreme Court—started today for possession of the choicest radio wave channels.

With the opening of public hearings before the federal radio commission, through which station WJAZ, Zenith Radio Corporation, of Chicago, hopes to establish a claim to a better frequency than was granted, will start a long series of demands from broadcasters in many sections of the United States for more desirable allocations.

As the result of letters to all stations owners from Admiral W. H. G. Bullard, chairman of the commission, inviting protests should broadcasters feel that they have not been granted satisfactory frequencies, it appeared that the remainder of the summer would be taken up with their complaints.

Commissioner H. A. Bellows declared that the commission has changed from an executive to a judicial body.

Bellows admitted that he anticipated attacks against the constitutionality of the new radio law in the federal courts, but added that he felt reasonably certain that the act will stand the test.

NO SCHOOL SESSIONS IN CITY MONDAY

Superintendent Green Announces Change In Program; School Closes June 10

There will be no sessions of the New Castle public schools on Memorial Day, according to an announcement made today by Superintendent C. C. Green. While it has been the practice in previous years to hold school, Dr. Green believes that little good is accomplished by holding the youngsters on a holiday such as this, and further it handicaps the parents of the youngsters who want to get away over the week end.

The holiday will in no wise affect commencement, but instead of closing school on June 9, closing day will be June 10.

Lindbergh Is Ready To Return

(International News Service)

PARIS, May 27. — Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh's thoughts are already turning toward home. He told friends today that he has not seen as much of Europe as he wanted to see, but is getting a little bit homesick. It is possible that Lindbergh may sail some time next week. He has already been notified that he will get one of the most rousing greetings in New York that has ever been accorded a prominent person.

WESTMINSTER TO CONFER DEGREE ON GOVERNOR

Conferring Of S. L. D. On Governor Fisher Part Of Westminster Ceremony

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 27—Governor John S. Fisher will receive two degrees at college commencement exercises this year. On June 6, Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, will confer an L. L. D. degree on the governor and two days later Westminster College at New Wilmington will duplicate the ceremony.

Because of a conflict in dates Governor Fisher will not be able to attend commencement exercises at Juniata College where it had been planned to have former Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh, now president of that institution, confer a degree on the present executive. That ceremony has been deferred for the present.

De Pinedo Arrives At Azores Islands

LISBON, Portugal, May 27. — Commander Francesco De Pinedo, Italian inter-continental flyer, arrived at Horta, Azores, last night on [illegible] to Lucerga after [illegible] down by a storm, according to a message from Horta today. De Pinedo's hydroplane remained afloat on the water and was not damaged.

Capt. Lindbergh Soars Over Paris In French Plane

Spends Hour And Half Looking Over Paris From The Air

ENJOYS FIRST SPELL OF FREEDOM

Amazes French With Manner In Which He Handles New Plane

By HARRY R. FLORY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, May 27.—Grinning with satisfaction, Captain Charles A. Lindbergh came to earth here today full of excitement over the beauties of Paris, having completed an hour and a half flight over the city in the early hours of the morning—his first flight since he turned off the motor in "The Spirit of St. Louis" at the end of his epochal flight across the Atlantic.

Linbergh was unembarrassed and at ease for the first time since he had arrived here, for he had enjoyed zooming and side-slipping and looping over Paris—and that is his idea of the way to see a town.

The young American astonished veteran aviators at Le Bourget by his daring, for he was flying a strange plane—A Neuport—which he had never seen before, but his antics in the clouds were out of sheer joy and certainly could not be considered for the benefit of the public, for the flight was made so early that Paris had hardly awakened and Lindbergh was back on the ground about the time most Frenchmen were beginning to consider petit dejeuner.

Has Good Time

"That's the best time I have had since I arrived in Paris," Lindbergh said as he climbed smiling from the cockpit of the Nieuport and received congratulations from the French aviators present who expressed warm admiration of his flying.

Lindbergh didn't linger long to hear words of praise, however, for the aroma of coffee wafted

Britain Severs Relations With Soviet Russia

Diplomatic And Trade Relations Are Severed; Stern Note Dispatched

PLAN TO DEPORT MANY RUSSIANS

Few Russians Connected With Private Trading Organization Allowed To Remain

By H. K. REYNOLDS,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, May 27.—Great Britain today formally brought her diplomatic and trade relations with Russia to an end.

The foreign office at noon dispatched a note to charge Rosengoltz at the Soviet embassy giving notification of the break. The note was couched in the usual courteous tones of diplomacy but notified the Russians that all attaches of the embassy and trade delegation will be expected to leave London within ten days.

Leave In 10 Days

The note named the heads of departments of the Russian embassy and trade delegation, and their assistants, and stated that if they did not leave within ten days they would be deported.

No further contact will be maintained between the British and the Russians and orders have gone forth for the withdrawal of the British mission from Moscow.

Some Russians will be allowed to remain in London to carry on the business of Arcos, Ltd., the private trading organization.

The government, it is understood, plans to deport a number of Russians who have no official connection with either the embassy or the trade delegation.

Nurses Class To Be Graduated At Y. W. C. A. Tonight

The members of the graduating class are the Misses Edna Belle Cabel, Sara Jane Brown and Margaret J. Cline. Rev. George M. Landis, pastor of the First Baptist church and Dr. H. E. Zerner will make the principal addresses of the evening, while the diplomas will be presented by the Hon. George T. Weingartner. The public is invited to be present at the exercises.

Good Weather Means Success Of May Pageant

Nearly 400 Students To Take Part In Big Westminster Outdoor Spectacle

EXPECT THOUSANDS IN NEW WILMINGTON

Seventy-Five Years Of College History To Be Depicted In Pageant

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa. May 27.—If the weather-man is in accord with the spirit of the day, several thousand people will assemble on and about the athletic field at Westminster college Saturday afternoon to view the annual May pageant. The event will start at 4:30 Eastern Standard time.

The pageant represents a year's work by Mrs. Mary C. McConagha, directress, a member of the faculty of the public speaking department of the college.

"The Spirit of Westminster" is the title of the pageant, the story of which was written by Mrs. McConagha, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Anderson of New Wilmington, Miss Nancy Miller of Butler and Miss Isabel McConagha of New Wilmington.

Significant Story.

This year's pageant is especially significant for several reasons Westminster college is now observing its seventy-fifth anniversary. This, coupled with the fact that on January 24, 1927, Old Main, the administration building, was reduced to ashes by fire, makes

Cold Rolled Steel Manufacture Will Be Revolutionized

N. W. Elliott Of This City Secures Patent On Important Invention

Now In Use In Local Plant; New Castle Concern Has Many Orders

Noah W. Elliott, president of the Elliott-Blair Steel company, one of the city's older, locally owned and controlled and consistently operated industries, has just been awarded a patent, which not only revolutionizes the cold rolled steel industry but will also have its effect in the operation of rolling mills of all types and at a material reduction in the cost of operation as well as an improved product. It is the first real improvement of the kind in forty years.

Stated in the simplest manner possible, the invention substitutes the use of a chain drive for gears, eliminates much of the expensive upkeep of the machinery used in operating the rolls, does away with a wavy finish caused in the operation of the rolls by gears, especially in the manufacture of cold rolled steel and turns a rolling mill from one of the noisiest places of employment, into one of the quietest forms of employment that one could desire. It also materially increases production.

Use Invention Here

At the local and also the Mercer plants of the Elliott-Blair Steel company, the change to the modern development by Mr. Elliott, is already under way and at the local plant, there is a group of four sets of rolls operating in continuous form on a set of chain drives with the greatest possible success. The balance of the rolls of the plants of the company will be changed as soon as possible.

Cold rolled steel is really a highly tempered product, which is used in springs, automobile parts, chains, typewriters and similar classes of products. Because of the friction caused in the use of gears, there has been produced in the finished product, a wavy appearance which was objectionable in the manufacture of many products for which the metal is used. This had to be eliminated by an annealing process.

The chain and psrocket method developed by Mr. Elliott eliminates this wavy condition, because all friction has been eliminated and the resulting back lash from the use of gears which caused the wavy condition has been done away with, it is stated.

Eliminates Noise

The demonstrate the manner in which the chain drive has done

Wallis Talks Of Crime Wave

New York Deputy Commissioner Tells How Condition Can Be Remedied

CLOSELY RELATED TO IMMIGRATION

FREDERICK A. WALLIS
Commissioner of Correction of the City of New York

Like the Mississippi river, the "crime wave" cannot be stopped in the flood or adult stage, but must be checked and directed in the rivulets of childhood, said the Hon. Frederick A. Wallis in his lecture at the Scottish Rite Cathedral last night.

Mr. Wallis, who is commissioner of correction in New York City, spoke from a vast storehouse of experience when he spoke on "The Crime Wave". He said that there was no doubt that there was a wave, a tidal wave as it were, of crime, sweeping over our country.

He said that it has been found that over 80 per cent of our crimes are committed by children of foreign born parents. These children who have been brought up in America with home training that fost-

Second Explosion Occurs In Mine

Fear Five Trapped Miners At Kingston Colliery Are Killed

RESCUERS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

(International News Service)

WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 27.—Five miners missing after an explosion yesterday at the Woodward colliery of the Glen Alden Coal Company at Kingston, near here, were believed to have been killed, two others injured and a score of rescue men narrowly escaped with their lives when a second blast shook the mine today.

The rescue crews had just reached the surface after an all-night search for the five missing men when the second explosion rocked the mine, causing the fan-house to collapse.

Destruction of this building is believed to have cut off the air supply in the mine workings, making it impossible for rescue crews to re-enter the mine.

S. D. Dimmick, general manager of the Glen Alden mines, in charge of rescue work, said he was positive five men were trapped by the second blast. He does not believe any rescue men were entombed.

All rescue operations were suspended after the second blast, officials fearing another may follow. The latest explosion occurred 800 feet below the surface.

Wreckage Tugs Are Towing Big Liner Into New York

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 27.—Wreckage tugs were slowly towing the Matson Navigation company's disabled $7,000,000 passenger liner Malolo to New York today.

The Giant liner which was struck amidships and crippled in a collision with the Norwegian Freighter Jacob Christensen off Nantucket in a fog on Wednesday, probably will arrive here tomorrow.

Passengers have not been taken off the Malolo. The liner was on a trial cruise.

Susquehanna River Is At Flood Stage

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 27.—The Susquehanna river, on its worst rampage since 1920, in this district, neared flood proportions as its raging waters rose at the rate of one-tenth of a foot an hour today.

At Rockville and at Duncannon, near here, the water crept over the river road and submerged a subway in the latter place.

The second death in the river by drowning recently was registered when John Faut, 40, of Stelton, lost his balance while walking along the outer ledge of a bridge and plunged into the swollen river.

A ghostly drumming is heard afar, and the rattle of musketry and the Deathless Legion comes marching back, from over the Stygian Sea. Their eyes are bright with the battle gleam, their ears hear the bugle blow, and their eager feet mark a rhythmic beat as onward and forward they go. But for them the battle is over and done, the arms have been silenced for years, but we lay a tribute upon their tombs, washed bright with a million tears. For the Deathless Legion will ever live in the hearts of a grateful state, and time cannot tarnish their valorous deeds, nor the rush of the years abate. They heard the call and they paid the price, but their answer is ever new those ghostly figures of '61, the weather is sixty two.

Rotary Clubs Plan Aid For Every Crippled Child

MERCER, Pa., May 27.—Follow up letters are being sent out now from the office of the five Mercer County Rotary clubs now located in the court house to parents reported to have crippled children.

The headquarters are those established temporarily while the clubs are attempting to secure the names of every crippled child in the country for the purpose of having them treated by surgical operation.

Every possible effort is being made now to get the names of these children in. Both parents and their friends seem indifferent to the benefit that this treatment will confer on the children.

Every conceivable effort is being put forth by the committee headed by R. F. English of Grove City to secure a list that would be commensurate with the county's size.

The Rotary clubs are those of Sharon, Greenville, Mercer, Grove City and New Wilmington. The best surgeons and doctors will do the work. Attention to the text of this article may mean the salvaging of a boy or girl in your community. Send in the name of every crippled child you know to the office of the County Medical Director, Mercer, Pa.

Borrows Car; Takes Ride And Wrecks It

James Stillwagon, 619 Raymond street, an employe of the Universal Sales company, was working on the floor at the the Sales company place of business from 6 to 9 o'clock last night.

While he was working there, a man, who said he was Henry Taylor and wanted to purchase a used car, came in. Mr. Stillwagon showed him all the second hand cars but none of them suited Taylor. Stillwagon then told him to take his machine and try it. It was but a short time later when Mr. Stillwagon received a call to the effect that his machine had been wrecked at Ray and East Washington streets. On arriving there, Mr. Stillwagon found his machine badly damaged.

Officers Samuels and Lockard arrived about the same time. The machine had been in a collision with a car of Frank Offutt. The driver of the Stillwagon car, evidently Taylor, disappeared after the accident.

RECREATIONAL BOARD NAMED

Council today concurred in the recommendation that W. J. Offutt, J. A. Butler, D. O. Davies, Mrs. Rose Nothdurft and W. V. Tyler be appointed as members of the Municipal Recreation board which will direct playground activities here.

The terms follow: Offutt, one year; Butler, two years; Davies, three years; Mrs. Nothdurft, four years, and W. V. Tyler, five years.

Offutt is a non-officer holder. Davies and Tyler are councilmen, while Butler and Mrs. Nothdurft are members of the public school directorate.

In whatever we undertake earnestness is one of the keys that unlock the doors of success.

ment may be ready in case of a demand for injunction to restrain the radio commission. Bellows said that the commission has reports that immediate court action is not likely.

Some authorities, it was stated, contend the law is unconstitutional on the grounds that it provides for a trespass on property rights. Some broadcasters insist that their assignment to high frequencies on the wave scale constitutes confiscation of property in that they will be thus deprived of the audience of many listeners.

Bellows said that the government was prepared to meet either issue.

Broadcasters were notified today to advise the commission prior to June 15 if they desired public hearings to contest power and frequency granted in the allocations effective June 1. Any changes will involve the displacement of one to five stations.

Attorney General Sargent has been requested to detail an assistant to defend the rights of the commission at the public hearings.

the year a most important one to Westminster and its friends.

Attune with circumstances, the pageant will depict the history of the United Presbyterian institution of learning. The spectacle will open with the picturing of pioneer days in the Neshannock valley and the founding of the school.

Founders of the school and the students who will represent them are: William Dickey, by Hugh Gamble of Sharon, a great grandson of Mr. Dickey; E. McElree, by Francis McDowell of Jamestown; D. Houston, by Alexander McNaugher of Pittsburgh; G. C. Vincent, by James McQuiston of Cochranton; D. McLean, by Victor Scott of Connellsville; W. Imbrie, by Allan Hoffman of Sharon, and J. P. Ramsay, by Halden Williams of Carnegie.

Picturesque Scenes.

For picturesqueness, student casts will present native dances of such lands as Russia, China, Japan, Egypt and others where Westminister grads have entered in spreading education.

Each of the presidential administrations of the college will be represented.

The fact of the burning of Old Main will be closely allied with the climax of the pageant which will be centered about the May Queen, Miss Helen Hastings of Bradford, Pa., who will represent the Spirit of the New Westminster. She will be attended by six attractive co-eds. Miss Helen McConaghy of New Castis, May Queen of 1926, will play an equally important role as the Spirit of Old Westminster.

After the crowning ceremony, May Queens of the past at Westminster will be presented and will pay homage to this year's queen.

Rain has hampered the rehearsals of the cast of 375 students somewhat this week, but the gymnasium has ben available. It is hoped that a complete dress rehearsal will be possible Friday.

Arrangements are complete for the handling of a huge crowd. Bleachers capable of seating 1,400 have been erected around the outdoor "stage" while it will be possible for as many more to view the spectacle from the surrounding slopes. An amplifying system has been installed and two loud speakers erected at advantageous positions so that it will be possible to hear the words of the narrator on all parts of the field.

across the field from the airport restaurant and he sniffed at it and suggested breakfast. With a considerable entourage he went to the restaurant, and with his youthful appetite whetted by his early morning flight he consumed an ample breakfast with a good deal of Gusto, while his French comrades nibbled at croissants and sipped cafe au lait.

Looks Over Own Plane

Finishing breakfast, Lindbergh dashed out to the hangar where his own plane is "stabled" and went over it very carefully, seeing that it is in fit condition to fly to Brussels tomorrow. He examined the repairs which had been made upon it with great carefulness and shook hands and congratulated the French mechanics on their excellent work.

After chatting with the mechanics for some time and making some requests relative to preparations for his flight tomorrow, Lindbergh returned to Paris.

Lindbergh's flight this morning had been arranged last night.

"Lindbergh telephoned me at 10 o'clock last night," said Major Weiss, "and said he would like to try a French pursuit plane early today. He warned me to tell no one, for he said if there was a crowd to see him fly he would return to Paris immediately as he didn't want to take any chances again of having to land in the midst of a crowd of people."

Lindbergh said after he returned to the embassy that he had found his plane, "The Spirit of St. Louis," in perfect condition.

Captain Pelletier D'Oisy, French ace who saw Lindbergh's flight this morning, said "I never saw such a daring exhibition of flying. Lindbergh is not only a long distance flier but he equals the best air acrobat we have ever seen."

COLD ROLLED STEEL MANUFACTURE WILL BE GREATLY CHANGED

away with the noise in the manufacture of cold rolled steel products. Mr. Elliott on Thursday caused two groups of rolls operated to be gear system and making a constant deafening noise to be shut down, while four sets of rolls operated by the chain drive continued to operate. The best way of explaining the difference in operating noise is to explain the slight noise made by the chain driven rolls as the lull after a terrific thunder storm. It appeared as if there was no work going on at all.

According to Mr. Elliott, aside from the advantages already noted, a very considerable item to be considered in the proposed change is that of the expense of refitting gear operated machines from time to time. Gears are expensive and are constantly wearing or breaking and must be replaced. If a link of a chain used under his method breaks, the expense is practically nothing at all. The delay in operations but a few minutes. All that has to be done is to place a new link in the chain, fasten it with a cotter pin and everything is going as usual. Sometimes the breaking of a gear would mean a delay of not only hours but days.

Patent Granted

The patent was granted April 19, 1927, and application for it was made on August 17, 1925. It is numbered 1,625,643. It is a basic patent, meaning that for a period of seventeen years, all persons or corporations using it, must first secure a license from Mr. Elliott to use it.

Mr. Elliott first conceived the idea in 1912, when a set of rolls was fitted with a chain drive, which is still in use at the present time. Experimentation resulted in the finished patented idea now being installed. One of the primary reasons for seeking this new type of drive was that of elimination noise and making it more pleasant for the workmen. It is also much safer.

The company is eliminating steam for power purposes as fast as possible except as needed for heat and for pickling purposes. It is using electric power.

Business Excellent

The Elliott-Blair company is enjoying a fine volume of business at the present time, according to Mr. Elliott, there being a heavy demand for their product. The plant is making and shipping between four and six hundred tons of its finished product a month to the major automobile concerns, such as the Chrysler, White, Buick and others of like importance in the automobile world. At the present time, the plant is busy turning out 200 tons of steel strips to be used by the Chrysler corporation as shackle hangers for the springs of that car. The long strips are cut into small pieces four inches long at the automobile factory and used to connect ends of the springs.

The arrangement of the local factory is in a U shape, the raw material being received at the railroad in the stockroom. From there it goes to the pickling deartment, then to the rolling department, where it receives the tempering in the rolling process, then to the annealing department, if the nature of the order requires it, then to the packing and shipping department. While the ideal method is to start it at one end and continue to the other end of the plant in a straight line, the lack of ground makes this impossible here.

As it reaches the packing department, every piece of steel is put through an oil and greasing machine and then wrapped in burlap, after which it is placed in the cars for shipment. The oiling and greasing is done so that in most instances all the purchaser finds it necessary to do, is punch such holes in the finished product as is necessary to make it possible to fit it to the article being manufactured. It also prevents rusting.

The annealing containers with the metal often weigh as much as ten tons. These are handled with safety by special electric cranes. Cranes are located and used in every department of the plant where necessary.

The chains being used in the invention of Mr. Elliott are made by the Link Belt company of Indianapolis, Indiana, which concern has been using the product of the Elliott-Blair Steel company since it started in the business. It is one of the large consumers of the product of the local plant.

The plant is operating a day and night turn at the present time.

Immigration Related

"Therefore", said Mr. Wallis, "the crime question and the immigrant question are very closely linked together". He said that after years of experience with the immigrant question both as commissioner of immigration and afterwards, he would urge that there be a scientific selection of applicants on the other side and then a wise distribution of immigrants after they have arrived in America.

In likening the crime wave to the Mississippi flood Mr. Wallis says little can be done to stop the flood after it breaks the levees, but the right kind of training in the homes, schools and church will turn the rivulets into the right course in childhood.

A recent country-wide survey shows that there are 53,000,000 Americans under 25 years of age and of these 33,000,000 are without religious or moral training. That means that unless America meets the challenge of their childhood and youth we can expect even a more terrible crime flood in the future generation.

In concluding his lecture Mr. Wallis said that the crime wave was a challenge for a better home, a truer church, a finer citizenship and a wiser education.

Commissioner Wallis was brought here under the auspices of the New Castle Ministerial Association, assisted by the New Castle Chamber of Commerce. An offering was received to help defray the expenses of the meeting.

Rev. A. M. Stump, president of the Ministerial Association, presided at the meeting.

The meeting was opened by the singing of the national anthem, led by R. E. Johns, after which Rev. D. C. Schnebly gave the invocation.

The speaker was introduced by Rev. Samuel Maitland. The audience was dismissed by a prayer given by Rev. W. E. McClure. A. W. Chilton represented the Chamber of Commerce.

Deaths Of The Day

Time Of Funeral.

Funeral services for the late Mrs. Sara Wilson, wife of E. J. Wilson will be conducted from the family home, 401 East Wallace avenue, Saturday, May 28, at 2:30 p. m. Burial will be made in Graceland cemetery.

Mrs. Samuel A. Jones.

The body of Mrs. Samuel Albert Jones whose death occurred Thursday at her home in Pittsburgh will be brought to this city on Saturday morning at 10:05, Daylight Savings Time, over the Pennsylvania lines. Burial will be made in Greenwood cemetery following the arrival of the funeral party in New Castle.

Mrs. Ruby May Osborne.

Mrs. Ruby May Osborne, aged 40 years, wife of R. M. Osborne, died at the family home, 201 Hillcrest avenue, Friday, May 27 at 2:45 a. m. after an illness of one year of heart trouble.

Mrs. Osborne was born in Allegheny, Pa., September 25, 1887 a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Kahl who survive her. She had been a resident of New Castle for twenty years. She was a member of the first M. E. church of this city and the Penne Bo lodge and was one of the best known women of the community.

Besides her husband to whom she was married twenty-three years ago she leaves two children, Grace Emma and Mellie May Osborne and her parents of this city, one sister, Mrs. J. H. Louery of New Castle, and five brothers, Thomas and Walter Kahl of this city, L. M., Edward and Roy Kahl all of Oak Dale, Pa.

Funeral services will take place Monday, May 30 at 2:30 p. m. Daylight Savings Time from the residence on Hillcrest avenue with Rev. H. C. Weaver of the First M. E. church in charge.

Robert Young Buried.

Funeral services for Robert Young took place Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, 813 Frank avenue with Rev. A. C. Bell, pastor of St. Luke's A. M. E. Zion church assisted by Rev. W. O. Davis of the Bethel church. The pallbearers were Victor Rhimenran, Roy Tenor, Joe Jardin, William Lash, William Cummings and Charles Foster. Interment was made in Greenwood cemetery.

Jacob Treskott.

Jacob Treskott, aged 43 years of Ambridge, Pa., a former resident of this city, died very suddenly Thursday afternoon in the Shenango Valley hospital.

The deceased had been in poor health for some weeks. He was being taken to Lowellville to see a physician of that place when his condition became much worse and he was brought to this city. He died a few minutes after he reached the hospital.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Alice Treskott, and two daughters, Anna and Mary.

Funeral services will take place Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Russian Orthodox church on Moravia street of which he was a member. Interment will be made in Greenwood cemetery.

Sister Mary Baptist.

Sister Mary Baptist aged 56 years, of St. Joseph's Order at Baden, Pa., died Thursday in St. Joseph's hospital, South Side, Pittsburgh, after an illness of three months.

The Sister's death was the result of pneumonia which she contracted in March and she was never able to rally from the attack.

She was the daughter of the late Mrs. James Mooney of the Youngstown road near this city. She had been a member of the order for 40 years and was for many years mistress of novices and superior of missions. At the time of her death she was director of music at the Baden Academy.

The body was removed to Baden where funeral services will take place Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, Eastern Standard time.

Captain Lindbergh Breaks Air Laws

Flight Over Paris Results In French Air Laws Being Broken By "Lucky" Lindy

(International News Service)

PARIS, May 27.—Captain Chas. A. Lindbergh broke the French air laws in bits today, when he flew over Paris in an early morning flight, but there is little danger of his being prosecuted.

Flying over the Arc De Triomph, Lindbergh swooped down from the clouds and flew at 200 meters. Again over the American embassy he came down to under 200 meters.

"It's against the Paris regulations to fly at 200 meters," observed Major Weiss of Le Bourge after the flight, and Lindbergh was astounded to learn that he had been an unintentional law breaker.

Stay Of Sentence Granted Goodfellow

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, May 27.—Edward A. Goodfellow, scheduled to receive his sentence today on a charge of receiving stolen goods in connection with the Brotherhood Savings and Trust Co., bond swindle, was given a reprieve today until June 10 by Judge Henry Rowand in criminal court.

Merideth Marshall, attorney for Goodfellow, asked a postponement of sentence because of the ill health of his client. Goodfellow was said to be suffering from stomach trouble and ulcerated gums.

Dr. C. J. Ellis, jail physician, was instructed to examine Goodfellow and report back to the court.

APPEAL NOTICE IN WOMAN'S CASE FILED IN COURT

in the notice filed this morning. These will be given in briefs to be submitted to the court of appeals by her attorneys. District Attorney Richard S. Newcombe also will submit briefs.

To Sign Over Insurance

Mrs. Snyder, it was learned, will sign over her rights to her husband's insurance of $102,000 to her nine-year-old daughter, Lorraine. Mrs. Snyder remains the beneficiary until the court of appeals passes on her fate.

Fight for the custody of Lorraine is to be opened next Tuesday in a court battle between Mrs. Josephine Brown, mother of Mrs. Snyder, and Warren Schneider, brother of the slain man, both of whom want the child.

Mrs. Snyder is reported in advices from Sing Sing to be in a most disheartened mood. For hours she sits on her cot staring straight ahead and speaking to no one. She has declined to read the newspapers, saying they make her sad. Her appetite is poor and she sleeps fitfully.

Gray, on the other hand, is taking his plight philosophically. He even smiled when death house attaches told him a Baltimore woman claimed she was his wife, that he was a bigamist.

"That's absurd", Gray smiled "Why worry, anyway—haven't I enough troubles?"

A Different Matter

A sweet young thing upon parting from a young man at a railroad station was observed to go into tears. The manner in which she expressed her grief stirred up the sympathy of a passerby.

"My dear young lady", quoth the sympathetic one, "are you crying because you have to leave your husband?"

The maiden looked up tearfully. "N-N-No", she sobbed. "I'm crying because I'm going back to him."

Why Not?

A negro started a newspaper in Alabama. He had noticed how white editors used the word "we" for "I", so he went them one better when he said: "Us sho' feels grateful fo' all de good things dat's been said 'bout us's paper".

BIRTHDAYS

ON THE household calendar there is no more important event than birthday anniversaries of the children. Times and customs change and it is said the home is not what is used to be, but a child's birthday anniversary still remains a red-letter day.

Of course there are birthday presents and great confusion during the administering of one spank or one tug of the ear for every year the little heir or heiress has been in the household. And sometimes the occasion is celebrated with a birthday party.

Every fond parent knows it is out of tune to punish Little Bobby on his birthday, so the day is inaugurated with solemn vows that no matter what he does there are to be no scoldings or whippings that day.

Unfortunately the juvenile hero of the day has more reasons for being naughty on his birthday than at other times. He is excited and full of energy. He cannot understand why he cannot have his own way since it is his birthday party. And he is quick to discover that the bars of parental discipline have been lowered for the day.

Youthful minds do not distinguish between liberty and license. Nor do they realize that there are other rewards for being good than security from punishment. If the parental vows of the morning are broken one usually knows where to place the responsibility.

A birthday anniversary without temper or tears is ardently to be desired, but seldom realized. For though the honored one may have been a gift from the gods his conduct is most human even on the anniversaries of his presentation.

COMMERCIAL AVIATION

CAPTAIN LINDBERGH'S confidence in the early realization of the dream of a trans-Atlantic commercial airplane service may be based on his own wonderful achievement.

It is, however, in no derogation of his supreme triumph to point out that his lonely flight across the waste of waters, in storm and darkness, was not in itself a solution of the problems that must be met before the world can hope for the establishment of air-liners comparable in safety and regularity to those of the sea.

That the solutions will be found and that the time is not so distant when a flight to Europe will be more or less commonplace will hardly be doubted. It will take more than five years, however, to create such air services.

Given airships large enough to carry the necessary fuel, there is nothing inherently impossible or improbable about the realization of Lindbergh's prediction. The scores of regular daily services now in operation in Europe are only a forecast of what the world may have on a larger scale before many years. The perfection of the motive power, the combination of lightness with strength in the materials of which airships are made, the provision of more adequate terminal facilities—these are all details that have been worked out and only await the test of actual trial to make commercial aviation something more than an adventure and an experiment, in which the elements of risk are as yet overbalancing factors.

FAT AND SKINNY

GETTING thin or getting fat. How those two bugaboos do hang over the American people! Verily no blue law could cause more discomfort.

Mary adores chocolates, but she'll tell you mournfully that she can't eat them because she's getting too fat.

Dad doesn't really mind his big paunch, but so many people say, "You aren't so slim as you used to be, are you Jim?" that in desperation he takes to gym, suffers the tortures of using long unused muscles, and lives on a slice of toast and water just to put the silencer on that "getting fat" speech.

And how the fat ones do envy the thin ones whom the doctor orders to drink lots of milk, eat beefsteak and all the candy they want.

But suppose you are a thin one and hate milk? Still you will suffer the nauseating stuff just so you won't have to hear people say "My goodness, girl, you're nothing but a wraith."

Somehow or other, one can't help thinking that old Gibbon, who wrote "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" is to be envied for his courage. The doctor told him, so the story goes, that he'd die if he kept on getting fatter. He required a specially built chair big enough for two ordinary folk. But he said he'd not give up eating the way he wanted to, and so he died, glorying in his fatness.

A feature of the annual meeting of the Mid-West regional division of the American Chemical Society which opens in Chicago today will be the formal presentation to Prof. John J. Abel of Johns Hopkins University of the Willard Gibbs Medal, the highest honor in the gift of the society. Professor Abel is an eminent pharmacologist who has won international recognition for his researches on the hormones, or secretions of the ductless glands. His latest feat has been the production of insulin in so high a degree of purity that it forms solid crystals. Professor Abel is a native of Cleveland and a graduate of the University of Michigan. Subsequently he spent seven years in the study of medicine and chemistry at seven of the prominent universities in Europe. Since 1893 he has been professor pharmacology at Johns Hopkins University.

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 7:20. Sun rises tomorrow 4:34.

The real reception that Captain Lindbergh will get will be when he comes back home to America. They are making the powder now and over a hundred million patriots are tuning their lungs to yell when he gets here.

There is a great over-production of oil just now and no doubt the "poor oil companies" will be asking the people to use more oil and gasoline. That will be nice!

While the golf players might have a little bit of a reason to complain about the scandalous rainy weather we have been having this spring, we think the farmer could indulge in a volley of profanity without going far out of the way for the same reason. A farmer has to have good weather and when he don't have it we all suffer. We have never forgotten our farm experiences.

Kids naturally believe in evolution, anyway. They think they're an improvement on the old folks.

People who suffer from the heat should live their lives so the heat will not be so hard on them after they are through here.

Bird baths and swimming pools are being named after humans still living in western Pennsylvania. This surely should be more satisfaction than having a dog or horse or even a cigar named for one.

The Hints and Dints Man would like to know what shieks have to say when the telephone their sweetie 10 times a day. That would be telling.

And we do not like to say it, but there are quite a lot of people who look as though they really know more than they do. Appearances are often deceiving.

A great many people seem to be satisfied to let President Coolidge have another term. This shows what it means for a President to say little or nothing.

An arch-bishop in Italy advises farmers to keep their daughters out of the big city if they want to save their morals. That bishop knows his stuff and also knows what will happen to country girls as a rule in the big cities. He also deplores immodest dressing, whatever that may be. Anyhow, he is right in his statement.

Nowadays the majority of angels are made at railroad crossings.

Captain Lindbergh is a real man. When he was offered champagne in Paris he turned his head away, but when a peach came up to kiss him he reached for another one. We like that chap a lot for doing both of those things.

A flock of automobiles were blowing their horns outside the office, when the Hints and Dints man inquired, "what is it, a traffic jam?" A scribe sitting near a window looked out and said: "Nope, a wedding—it's the same thing".

Captain Lindbergh has been invited to come back home on a U. S. warship. It seems to us a trip like that would be sort of tiresome and lonesome after the one he made on the way over there.

A widow and four others were found guilty of manslaughter in Los Angeles for killing the widow's husband. We are glad of this, as this thing of killing husbands either lone-handed, with window sash weights or by squads of men and women is getting too frequent. As long as we are a husband we will be against this.

President Coolidge may spend his summer vacation in the Black Hills of South Dakota. It's a long way from the White House to the Black Hills. But the President knows his onions, all right.

You are invited to attend the graduation exercises of the Shenango Valley hospital training school for nurses at the Y. W. C. A. auditorium this evening at eight o'clock. It will be interesting and you will profit by your visit to this annual event.

Cities near New Castle cannot be blamed for getting all they can from the people of this city. And by the same token, citizens of New Castle cannot be blamed for trying to get all they can for themselves right here in their own city and also from other cities. Keeping our money at home and selling our stuff to other cities is the motto to follow.

According to a titled gentleman quoted by Punch, "Aviation is as safe as walking across the street". It might be safer than that.

Wouldn't it be a great old world if our friends were as liberal with their money as they are with their advice.

No doubt one of the planks in the Democratic platform will point with pride to the fact that there has been no spring this year. The Democrats will be justified in rebuking the Republican administration for this oversight which has caused so much discomfort and suffering among the populace of this great Republic.

Speculation continues as to why Senator Borah pays back into the Treasury of the United States every year one-quarter of his salary, the Idaho man steadfastly refusing to accept the raise of $2,500 voted a year or two ago by Congress. We have never seen the story yet, but we would like to review a few instalments of it to see if it is any worse than the testimony at the trial.

One hundred ninety-three persons were admitted to citizenship at the Court house the other day, adding that number of high class men and women of other nationals to our own nation. When they come over here and settled down it is right and proper that they should assume their share of the burdens that fall on every citizen. We shake hands with ourselves for all of you new citizens.

Lindbergh In Vaudeville.
Swedes Also Fight.
Bad Exercise for Girls.
Dangerous "Stunts."

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1927, By N. Y. American, Inc.

Lindbergh will return in about three weeks, after seeing a few kings, and then make up his mind what to do next. Many oppose Lindbergh's going on the stage, but perhaps the most useful thing Lindbergh could do would be, in movies, and in vaudeville, to make this nation realize that we need flying machines for our protection.

If he could fly, alone, to Paris, on an errand of daring heroism, thousands might fly from Asia or Europe here, in the many-engine planes that Lindbergh recommends, on errands most unpleasant.

Joseph D. Bannon, who circulates newspapers, wants it understood that Lindbergh on his mother's side is Irish. Lindbergh's mother says, "My boy gets a great deal from my mother, who was a blue-eyed Irish woman."

On his father's side Lindbergh is of Swedish origin.

The enthusiastic Bannon should not forget that Swedes also are fighters. The world never saw a greater fighter than Charles the Twelfth of Sweden, who, with 12,000 men, marched through the armies of Peter the Great with ease, causing Peter to remark, "My Brother Charles is teaching me the art of war." Gustavus Adolphus is another Swede with fighting qualities worthy of Bannon's attention.

Professor Nash, teacher of physical education in New York University, justly criticizes violent exercise for young girls.

To permit competition for girls in hurdle races, high jumping, broad jumping, etc., is a crime against the girls now, and against the future generation.

In Crete young girls with tight metal belts around their sixteen inch waists were sent into the arena to seize wild bulls by the horns and jump over their backs, or die if they failed. But that was many centuries ago. Men should know better by this time.

Girls were not made to jump. They were made for motherhood, and should be taught to respect and protect their complicated machinery.

To talk, in these days, of heroes "to fame unknown," of "unsung" seems old-fashioned, on the "bromide" order. But an old-fashioned poet like Gray, or Wordsworth, might find something to say about the dead miners of West Virginia that wrote farewell messages on their dinner pails before the gas or "damp" killed them.

One man wrote: "At peace with God," and asked his wife to "Tell father I was saved." A father wrote: "Love to the kids." That also is a sort of heroism, though not equal to flying across the ocean at one hop.

A reserve officer, teaching flying, and a young student of aviation were killed at Clover field in California. The wings collapsed as the plane came out of a "loop" following a number of stunts.

It should be somebody's business in California and every other state to forbid foolish and often deadly "stunt" flying. Men need to fly in the air, not turn somersaults in the air.

The Bolshevik government, taking the bull by the horns, forbids all Russian trade with Great Britain. Thus, in cutting off diplomatic relations with Russia, the Baldwin government has also cut off trade, which was not intended.

The French may also terminate diplomatic relations with Russia. "Too much Bolshevik propaganda" is the complaint against Russia everywhere. Besides, Russia does not pay back money borrowed by the czars, and by Kerensky in his brief hour of power.

Weeds.

I've noticed in my garden that the weeds
Are quick to take advantage everywhere;
That if I but relax my watchful care
They rush their troops among my tender seeds.
I think at times some shrewd Napoleon leads
These forces of destruction and aware.
That I no longer kep my sentries there
At night his army to my ground he speeds.
That weeds have cunning I have sadly learned,
That they have courage I am certin too.
Not easily their purpose can be turned.
Who keeps a garden has much work to do,
eBauty and charm dificult to win.
Relax the vigil and the weeds rush in.

Dr. Crane's Editorial

KEEP YOUR EYE ON THE BALL

The first rule in golf is to keep your eye on the ball.

More broadly stated, the maxim may be applied to every affair of life.

Keep your eye on the main issue. Do not be led away by affairs that are not important.

One of the most important distinctions between a successful man and one who has not succeeded is that the successful man makes his every act count. He has a purpose in life and to that purpose all other things must bend.

If you are a wife, the most important thing for you is to retain the affections and loyalty of your husband. Do not let unimportant matters divert your from this end. You know that every time you nag him or pick at him you are gnawing away the foundations of your happiness.

Keep your eye on the ball.

Let the main issue of your existence always be kept in mind.

If you are a business man, do not let the passions of a moment divert you from the main object of your business.

It may be flattering to your vanity and it may appeal to your self-conceit to indulge in vituperation once in awhile, but all such outbreaks have a tendency to weaken your main purpose, which is to succeed in life.

Many a man who might have been successful has ruined himself by some little act that was unimportant.

Keep your eye on the ball.

Always hold in mind the main thing that you have to do and do not allow exterior matters to interfere.

The man who allows himself to be diverted by passion or prejudice is like a sailor who guides his course by the shifting waves instead of by the ever fixed star.

You have a course to pursue, you have an end in view. Make everything subservient to that and do not allow yourself to be turned away from the main issue.

Keep your eye on the ball.

If you are tempted to do anything that you may regard as unimportant, ask yourself, what effect your act will have upon the main issue that you have in mind.

Let every minor thing subordinate itself to the main issue.

The chief trouble with us is that we are led astray into by-paths and hence we do not reach our destination.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

WIDEN THE STREETS

The roads and streets of the Nation are getting narrower and narrower. Traffic congestion is so great that the lives of the citizens are in constant danger. In the cities this condition has become so acute that further expansion of business is almost impossible until some solution of the problem is reached. In most cities the time of parking of an automobile is limited; in the most congested parts of the cities, parking is limited to fifteen minutes, and from that duration of time up to an hour. In every block there are "No Parking" signs established. But this does not answer the question. The time is fast coming when no parking will be permitted in any city of sizable population.

Streets can not be widened in any other way except by forbidding parking. At this juncture, it is amazing to find that the one city of America whose population have been accused of being the slowest of the slow, is the first city to prohibit parking at any time anywhere in the business district. This is the city of Philadelphia—the Quaker City, the city about which enough jokes have been perpetrated illustrative of the quiet calm of the Quakers to fill a very large library. Automobiles in Philadelphia can only halt to take on or discharge passengers at the curb. Even if accompanied by a chauffeur, the machine can not wait at the curb until its occupants have finished their business in the stores. Naturally, the merchants are up in arms concerning the new rule, but the authorities are not inclined to return to the old parking system.

Phjladelphia newspapers are discussing whether the benefit to the public will compensate for the loss of business, but it is one of those problems that chase itself about with its tail in its mouth, and gets nowhere. As a matter of fact, the merchants themselves will be benefited tremendously, and a new business will arise in connection with the automobile. It will be the great parking garages, many stories high, that will take care of the machines whose owners desire to use in entering or leaving the city. The taxicabs will take care of all other passengers, and the trucks will have their own entrances and exits from the merchants' places of business.

Sentence Sermons

By Rev. Roy D. Smith, D. D.

IT IS NO SHAME—

To admit a mistake if we are trying to correct it.
To wear poor clothes if they are the best we can pay for.
For a wise man to learn from simple men if they can teach him.
For a church to have sinners in it if they are trying to become better.
For a father to be surpassed by his son—he ought to be.
To admit ignorance if one is willing to learn.
To change one's mind—to hold fast to error is a shame.

THRIFT STILL SCORES

One of the most interesting visitors who has come to my office in a good many days is Irving Brant, who came in from the West the other day, bronzed and weather-beaten by much driving back and forth across the continent. For Mr. Brant, with his wife and two children, think no more of a little drive from New York to San Francisco than I would think of a walk to Union Square.

Mr. Brant had just been notified that he is this year's winner of one of the most important literary competitions. The Community Theater at Pasadena, California, perhaps the most notable organization of its kind, offers an annual prize for the best full-length play submitted and Mr. Brant has won it. It is not his first literary distinction, nor will it be his last. He is only 42, and he's full of ideas and experience.

This fellow Brant has a great story, but he refused me permission to tell it to my readers. I consider it one of the best examples of determined effort that is available. While I won't disregard his injunction, I'll tell you this much. He was an editorial writer in St. Louis when he determined to cut loose from a salary and write plays and books. His eyes will not permit him to write or read by artificial light, so he had to have his days for his chosen work.

With the aid of his wife, to whom he generously gives all the credit, he did a prodigious job of saving money over a period of several years, and that saving effort has made possible his success. Now I can't go into details in this matter, but you may take my word for it that the job was nothing short of heroic. It's hard to live on little if that little is all you have to live on, but it's much harder when your income is large enough to permit you to indulge in occasionable delectable extravagances.

The man and woman who save four-fifths of their income for a praiseworthy purpose are entitled to the joy that is theirs when they have accomplished their purpose.

In this day we hear many virtues and not a few vices lauded, but we hear very little about that good old virtue of thrift. That's why I can hardly keep from telling you this good story of the Brant family.

French Admire American Ace's Antics In Air

Courage And Daring Of Lindbergh Arouse Great Admiration

By FREDERICK K. ABBOTT,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LE BOURGET AERODROME, France, May 27.—French admiration for courage and daring is unsurpassed, and if Captain Charles A. Lindbergh had not been a hero prior to this morning he would have established himself on a pedestal with the aviation experts here today when he took his early morning hop over Paris.

French aviators who watched Lindbergh zoom, loop and side-slip gasped with amazement, and perhaps some of them were actually a bit frightened, for they realized that the world's hero of the day was actually flirting with death in a plane he had never flown before.

Captain Pelletier D'Oisy watched the flight and declared Lindbergh to be one of the best acrobatic fliers France has ever seen.

Major Weiss revealed that it was only because of the insistence of the colonel in command of the field that Lindbergh attached a parachute when he took his flight this morning.

"Once he was in the seat of the plane he was too anxious to get started to listen to our instructions said Major Weiss. "He didn't want to attach a parachute but finally had to do so reluctantly when the colonel informed him this was a strict French regulation.

"When he finally started to come down he did what we French call a 'porte de vitesse' landing, with the tail of the plane landing first instead of the nose. It is the most dangerous landing possible, but he did it perfectly. I looked at the colonel and he was white as a sheet when he saw Lindbergh doing this landing."

Silence Often Masks Store Of Knowledge

Man Who Knows And Knows He Knows Is One Worth Knowing

A Certain wise man, who lived a great while ago, wrote this: "He that hath knowledge spareth his words."

Of course the opposite is true also: but why? Why should the ignorant talk much? Surely they are conscience of their ignorance. If so, why doesn't modesty or discretion impel them to keep still and listen?

In truth, their very consciousness of ignorance is the thing that makes them talk. It urges them to make a good impression—to seem what they are not. Because they have little knowledge, they are eager to show the little they have.

People who have much money, recently acquired, are ridiculed and called vulgar because they will make a great show. They are not vulgar because they make a great show because they are painfully conscience of being vulgar and wish desperately to let the world know they are rich enough to be gentlefolk.

A small dog barks much more than a large one.

Youth talks much loudly for the same reason that it delights in gorgeous raiment. It wishes to protect itself—to attract attention—to win its place in the sun. "Here I am," it cries "you must count me in on everything."

Middle age sits apart and is silent, for the chatter has to do with inconsequential things that have long since become commonplace.

In the magazine advertisements, the man who does all the talking at the party is one who has read this or that set of books and now knows it all. That isn't at all true. If there is one at the party who knows more than any of the others, and he isn't a ghastly ass, he is careful not to do or say anything that could be contrued as showing off. —Baltimore Sun.

Many Accidents Laid To Drunken Drivers

Morey Would Revoke Licenses Of All Motorists Convicted Of Crime

Drunken drivers are responsible for numerous automobile accidents, according to Arthur T. Morey, past president of the National Safety Council, who believes that every state should adopt the proposed uniform motor vehicle operators' and chauffeurs' license act recommended by the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety. Today motorists who have killed people while at the wheel in an intoxicated condition still are driving cars in some states which have no drivers' license law. If the suggested statute were upon the books in every state the licenses of these drunken drivers could have been revoked, pointed out Mr. Morey.

"Chemists have found that certain liquids cause violent explosions when mixed", said Mr. Morey. "Coroners' juries have found that gasoline and 'hootch' when carried in the same automobile, form a deadly combination. The paths of drunken joy riders lead to the grave. Even 'safe' liquor, if there is such a thing these days, has an exhilerating effect which causes the motorist to disregard danger and take chances which he would normally avoid. The mixture of wood alcohol, fusel oil and other poisons which masquerade under Scotch labels, transform the driver into a maniac and his machine into an instrument of destruction.

"In England the London police do not wait for an automobile accident, due to drunken driving, to happen before making an arrest. If they see a man leaving a public house under the influence of liquor he is arrested as he is about to step into his car, so he has no chance to do any damage. He is usually tried immediately and, if found guilty, goes to jail for long enough to sober up and reflect. It would be well if our own police followed this example."

Marriage cannot endure without a reasonable amount of dissonance. —Heywood Broun.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Kildoo, East Washington street, announce the birth of twins, a son and a daughter, May 26.

Mr. and Mrs. William Mort, Mills Way, announce the birth of a son in the New Castle Hospital, May 26, who has been named William Francis.

The first really authentic account of a man being raised in the air was in Paris, Oct. 15, 1783, when Pilatre de Rozier was lifted 80 feet into the air by a balloon made by Stephen and Joseph Montgolfier, to whom belongs the honor of having built the first successful, man-carrying, lighter-than-air vehicle.

"It's the philanthropists who make all the mischief. There are some people who think nobody should be punished. And law enforcement is important, too."—Judge Samuel Utley.

As long ago as 1735 there were 12 miles of levees below New Orleans and 30 above, to protect the city from overflows of the Mississippi.

Texans Boost Moody As Running Mate To Governor Al Smith

By T. J. O'CONNELL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN, Texas, May 27.—With the boys from the "great open spaces" mingling with the political sages from the larger cities of the state during the special session of the Fortieth Texas legislature, the lobbies of both house and senate, as well as those of the Austin hotels, are buzzing with political prognostications.

Naturally, the future of Governor Dan Moody, Texas' "boy" governor," is coming in for a lot of speculation. What are his ambitions? What is he aiming for? The governor himself is rather reserved about discussing his plans. In fact, he has not discussed them, beyond stating that his present plans call for nothing more than giving the people of Texas the best government possible for the next two years. The governor did state, however, that he was "not running for the senate at this time."

Political Bouquets

Governor Moody has had many political bouquets thrown at him since he was inducted into office last January after defeating Mrs. Miriam A. "Ma" Ferguson in a run-off election last year. He has been mentioned as the "logical choice" for the vice-presidency on the national ticket as the running mate for Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, in the event the popular Empire State governor wins the first place on the ticket, as many in Texas seem to think he will.

Many astute politicians in the Lone Star state favor such a combination. They point out that Moody, an ardent dry and devout Baptist, would be the "ideal balance" for Smith's liberal and Catholic views.

Some of the leading democratic statesmen of Texas, including two members of the late Presidents Wilson's cabinet, have gone on record as favoring the candidacy of Governor Smith. They have not yet expressed themselves on the availability of Governor Moody as his running mate, but it is believed probable they would not be averse to seeing the popular young governor of Texas get the call.

Favored In Texas

With Governor Moody on the vice-presidential ballot, there would be no question about the regularity of the state of Texas, the politically wise say. Indeed it is hardly possible that Texas would reject the Democratic lineup no matter who heads the ticket or who gets the vice-presidential nomination.

Texans are Democrats, first last, and all the time, and it is conceded by those who are in a position to know that while Governor Smith certainly would not be the favorite candidate with the citizens of this state is it inconceivable that their opinion of the New York governor would switch the state to the Republican column. Hence, political leaders say, Texas will remain one of the Democratic strongholds of the country regardless of who gets the presidential nomination on the Democratic ticket.

A few of the more enthusiastic politicians, of the younger generation it must be said, are booming Governor Moody as the logical head of the national ticket. They are willing to concede second place to Governor Smith. The reaction from "the sidewalks of New York" has been profound in its silence.

The ticket proposed by the younger statesmen of Texas Democracy evidently is not well received in the big town.

A Smith-Moody national ticket would be unbeatable, according to political wiseacres in Austin. Whatever Smith might lose through his moist views and religion, would be held for him by Moody's dry Baptist followers.

Rheumatism can't be rubbed away

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried most everything. Went to Hot Springs and finally I decided to try S.S.S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I also had a breaking out on my hands for years that nothing would heal, but now this has disappeared, and I am sure that it was S.S.S. which removed the cause. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S.S.S. is the best." Carl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

It's "Night Owl" That Does Best Thinking, View

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 27.—The early bird may catch the worm but it's the night owl that does the thiking in the opinion of Dr. H. M. Johnson who has concluded an investigation of the effects of sleep at the Mellon institute. Dr. Johnson has discovered that in 19 out of 20 cases a person can think better at night after "fatigue poisons" have stimulated the brain, than during the first two or three hours after rising when the body has not yet thrown off the habit of relaxation.

HELP FOR SICK WOMEN

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Restored the Health of Thousands

Brooklyn, New York.—Mrs. G. Hegmann of 228 Schaeffer St., was in a run-down condition and could not do her housework. She could not sleep at night. Her story is not an unusual one. Thousands of women find themselves in a similar condition at sometime in their lives. "I found your advertisement in my letter box," wrote Mrs. Hegmann, "and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got relief." Mrs. Hegmann also took Lydia E. Pinkham's Herb Medicine and Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation, with good results. She says, "I am recommending your medicines to all I know who have symptoms the same as mine, and to others whom I think it will help. You may use my statement as a testimonial, and I will answer any letters sent to me by women who would like information regarding your medicines."

There are women in your state—perhaps in your town—who have written letters similar to this one telling how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped them.

Williams Estate To Atlanta Hospital

(International News Service)

ATLANTA, May 27—Atlanta is soon to have one of the finest hospitals in the South, costing several million dollars, following the final adjudication of the estate of the late Jesse Parker Williams, millionaire railroad and industrial magnate.

The way for construction of the hospital was paved in a decision of Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy who held that 50 alleged heirs in North Carolina had no claim to the estate, valued around $6,000,000 of which $4,000,000 will be available for the hospital.

Williams died in 1913 without leaving a will and the estate reverted to his widow who died in 1924. Mrs. Williams left a will stipulating for the construction of the hospital in memory to her husband, after taking care of her two aged sisters.

A year after the widow's death, some 75 persons laid claim to shares in the estate. They contended that Mrs. Williams agreed not to make a will but to allow the property to be equally divided among the heirs. A settlement was made out of court with the heirs dividing about 600,000.

Youthful Crimes Are On Decrease Statistics Show

(International News Service)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 27—Figures compiled by the Indiana board of charities reveal that crime among youths under 20 is decreasing. Of persons committed to the six Indiana penal institutions in 1925, 24 per cent were under 20 years. During 1926 the percentage had dropped to 20.

On the other hand, the class from 20 to 30 years old mounted from 32 to 34 per cent.

"There is little indication to confirm the popular opinion that crime is increasing among those of school age", said John A. Brown, board secretary.

"Youth is adventurous by nature. A decade ago the boys stole watermelons and fruit in their prankish way, but today, due to the large urban population, they are arrested for taking junk, auto tires and other less agricultural products. These offenses are oftentimes magnified out of proportion."

Japan's Population Up 900,000 In Single Year

TOKIO, May 27.—Commenting on what he called the startling increase in population in Japan—more than 900,000 in 1926—a government spokesman declared today the country did not intend to campaign for territorial expansion. He believes intensive industrialization was a solution of the problem in conjunction with further agricultural development.

Statistics disclosed marriages had decreased 18,000 and divorces 1,500. There were 2,100,000 births in 1926 and 1,160,000 deaths.

Spain Drops Armor Worn By Horses In Bull Fight Arena

By ALICE LANGELIER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

MADRID, May 27.—The steel "corsets" which were tried out on the horses used in Spanish bullfights proved to be a decided failure and the government has prohibited further use of any metal armor.

Instead of serving to protect the horse in even a small way, it made maters much worse for the poor beast. The bull's horn pierced the metal with about as much ease as if it had been a rubber balloon and the result was much more disasterous. For it left a horn as rough as any grater to make any wound which the horse might receive infinitely more painful.

Numerous small inventors have been scratching their heads over this problem of some kind of protective armor for the horses. One of them has hit upon the idea of two layers of heavy blanket felt, tightly compressed together, with hemp between and covered with a fine netting of tough rope. Preparations are being made to try this out within a short time. If the bull is unable to push his horns through the felt, the horses will not be ripped open as often as in the past, and even if they are the sight will be less disagreeable, for the armor will keep the wound together. But they will very likely be lifted into the air, corset and all.

So it is very probable that the poor horses of picadors will go on suffering as long as there are any bull-fights in Spain.

Divorce is common among the Greenland Eskimos and it is not unusual for a woman without children to be married nine or ten times.

Woman's Wallop Floors Alleged Home Burglar

NEW YORK, May 27. — When Mrs. Anna Heller, 50 awakened to find a huge uncouth fellow bending over her bed about to smother her with a pillow, she leaped up and smashed him on the jaw. He toppled to the floor. Police registered him on the blotter as Abraham Deckerman.

Former Sultan Paints Picture For Gallery

(International News Service)
PARIS, May 27.—The ex-sultan of Turkey has a self-portrait, painted by his own hand, hanging in the Spring salon.

Abdul Medjid II lives in France since the Turkish revolution, when he was chased from his country and warned never to return.

The former sultan has painted a number of important pictures. The portrait of his dark eyed daughter and several scenes on the Riviera are well-known.

Besides being an ex-sultan, painter and landscape artist, Abdul Medjid is also a musician. He has composed several symphonies and put one of Pierre Loti's poems to music.

Abdul Medjid says he supports his exile better because of his love of the arts. In the meantime he lives comfortably in his lovely villa near Nice expecting always, the call to return to his palace in Constantinople.

The old practice of buying and selling wives, long in vogue among the primitive and patriarchal peoples of the Caucasus, is now strictly forbidden.

Prince Of Wales Finds Paradise Near To London

(International News Service)
EWHURST, SURREY, England, May 27—In search of quiet and rest, and to escape the penalty of popularity, the Prince of Wales has found a little Paradise within 50 miles of London.

He has rented Summerfield, the "cottage" of the Duke of Sutherland, for the entire summer, and the house looks almost like an impregnable highland fastness among the heather.

Bounded on three sides by precipitous slopes of heather, pine and larch, this isolated dwelling can only be approached from the nearest village, Ewhurst, by what are little better than cart tracks. The house is 800 feet above sea level.

The interior consists of study, smoking, dining and drawing rooms, and a loggia runs the length of the house. There are seven bedrooms and a fine tennis court and large stables and gardens are attached. The 38 acres of grounds are laid out as informal gardens.

Joint Meeting Of College Associations

(Special To The News)
NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., May 27.—Westminster College's Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A., held a joint meeting Wednesday evening in the United Presbyterian church, in the form of a musicale.

The program consisted of organ numbers by Paul Robinson, organist of the United Presbyterian church and a student of the college; vocal solos by Miss Agnes Keach of Akron, O., accompanied by Miss Edith Round of New Castle, and Miss Mary Eckles of Sharpsville, accompanied by Paul Robinson, and violin numbers by John Louden of Mars.

Miss Dorothy Nevin of Pittsburgh, vice president of the Y. W. C. A., was in charge of the very successful program.

650 Travelers At Denver Convention

(International News Service)

DENVER, May 27.—Six hundred and fifty delegates representing more thon 125,000 members in 35 states, are expected to attend the 37th annual convention of the Travelers Protective association of America in this city June 12 and 17.

Included in the program of the week's activities of the commercial travelers will be a concerted effort to launch a campaign to be conducted throughout the nation for lifting of the Pullman car surcharge imposed by railroads. The fight against this surcharge will take the form of state campaigns to have legislation enacted banning the tax according to T. G. Barry, secretary of the Colorado division of the association, who is in charge of program arrangements.

According to members of the association here, three candidates are already definitely in the field for election as national president to succeed Geo. W. Huntley of Waterloo, Iowa. They are: Eugene Pfaeffle of San Francisco; J. E. McKeon of St. Lewis and Clyde Evans of Portland, Ore.

Danish Jobless Now Over 70,000

(International News Service)

COPENHAGEN, May 27.—Unemployment is still a serious problem in Denmark, the figure of unemployed reaching the high pitch of over 70,000. In the last meeting of the parliament the socialists attacked the conservative cabinet of Madsen Mygdal very vigorously and accused the ministers for doing nothing by pointing to the fact that the Socialists had been in power for two years and a half short a time ago without taking any measures to combat unemployment.

The socialist motion criticising the government was defeated by 73 to 53 votes and the cabinet consequently will continue.

On account of the growing unemployment Danish emigration is ever on the increase, most of the emigrants leaving for the western provinces of Canada. The emigration problem is a burning one in the country and the government has just appointed a special commission to study its various phases.

To blare simple information that everybody knows is to confess that you have just discovered it.

Blind Girl Graduates From School Of Music With Highest Honors

(International News Service)

WAYNESBURG, Pa., May 27.—Although handicapped by blindness since childhood Miss Georgia May King, daughter of the proprietor of a general store in Green county will be graduated with honors this summer from the Waynesburg College of Music.

Her early education was received in the Pittsburgh Institute for the Blind where her natural talent for music was developed with the aid of the Braile system.

At Waynesburg college she completed a course in pianoforte and this year she finishes a course in pipe organ. Although she has never been able to see a sheet of music, Miss King mastered the difficult pipe organ, her favorite instrument.

Later the girl will complete her musical education with a course in violin. Her ambition is to play on concert tours. She attempts only classical numbers.

Dog Sends Him After Prowler; Shoots Off Toe

INDIANAPOLIS Ind. May 27.—If his dog hadn't barked in the night C. A. Hadley likely would still possess the big toe on his left foot. As it is, Hadley is minus the toe and has a bullet wound in his left leg.

Hadley heard his dog barking during the night and visioning burglars, he obtained a revolver from a dresser drawer and started down stairs. He slipped and bounced down the steps. The revolver went off, shot off a toe and wounded him in the left leg.

British Death Rate Declines

(International News Service)

LONDON, May 27.—According to the latest statistics of the London County Council, London — Sometimes described as the healthiest big city in the world—is becoming healthier still.

The death-rate appears to be slowly but steadily falling. In 1840 it was 30 per 1000. In 1841 it dropped to 21 per 1000. Then in 1854 it jumped to more than 29, and for years afterwards never fell below 21 per 1000.

But the big improvement in London drainage, which began about 1880, and the passing of the Public Health Act in 1891, were factors that soon began to tell very forcibly, and by 1905 the death rate had fallen to about 15 per 1000. This was about the average from 1905 until the beginning of the war. Since the war there has been a steady decline.

Think how much a thick make-up would have protected the old-fashioned girl from a scratchy mustache.

RICHMAN'S fine, all wool CLOTHES

Richman News

We were gratified to have 9360 people, by actual count, attend the opening of our big new Euclid Avenue store in Cleveland—and, at the same time, to see the usual crowd of buyers in the original store. Each month adds its quota to the hosts of men who see in Richman's Clothes "America's greatest value."

The Popular Richman Collegiate Model

Established in 1879

Even though a man has been paying $50, or more, for his clothes, he is sure to be very favorably impressed with the inimitable style of Richman's Clothes—with the evident quality of the woolens, and the "clean cut" tailoring our stock-owning workers put into each garment.

These are the essentials in good clothes making—the things you look for when buying. What more do you find in high priced clothes?

If you, perhaps, still judge Richman's Clothes by what is ordinarily offered at the Richman price, we ask that you walk into a Richman store, tomorrow, and judge these clothes on merit, alone—subject them to any test you apply to higher priced clothes.

Come in tomorrow and select the clothes you need for your Memorial Day week-end vacation—a light weight gray or tan—a cool dressy blue, with extra white flannels, perhaps—or a Richman Sport suit, with knickers, in colorful fabrics of sturdy weave, for the day at the country club. You'll find here just what you like and need for immediate wear.

All $22.50

Eats 84 Raw Eggs To Win Bet

RUTLAND, May 27,—By eating seven dozen raw eggs in less than an hour and living to tell the tale, Dewey Sherman of Danby Four Corners has established a claim to the egg eating championship of Vermont. Sherman accomplished the feat of consuming more than ten pounds of eggs, not counting shells, in a race with Sam Cobb of Danby, held in the general store of R. M. V. Otis.

Cobb and Sherman, dropping into the store for a chat the other night, fell to discussing their relative prowess in eating eggs, and, a wager was fulfilled on the spot.

Cobb, by the terms of the bet, paid for the eighty-four eggs that Sherman ate and for the thirty-two consumed by himself. While a record of thirty-three would have won him the wager, Sherman, having reached this point, proceeded to establish a mark that would be unquestioned.

London Cobbler's Workshop Is Only Four Feet Square

(International News Service)

LONDON, May 27.—Pat Kenny who lives at Greenwich, just outside London, claims to work in the smallest shop in the world. A cobbler by profession, his shop in which he plies his trade is only four feet square, and is built into the supporting masonry of a railroad arch.

"I just go on mending boots as if I were in my dugout in France," says Kenny. "There are compensations. Rain cannot come through the roof as it is about fifty feet thick."

Norway Has New Law On Antiques

(International News Service)

OSLO, May 27.—Alarmed by the rapid rate at which American furniture fanciers were stripping Norway of its antiques, the Norwegian parliament has just passed a law prohibiting the exportation of any memorials of Norway's antiquity and Middle Ages, or furniture, implements, weapons or costumes more than 100 years old.

In an appeal to parliament, the Society of the Prevention of Norwegian Memorials of the Past claimed that a single American firm had exported twenty-five carloads of antiques within less than six months.

Excepted from this law are donations to American museums, and scientific institutions. This was to permit the gift of Norwegian antiques donated to Luther College, Decorah, by several Norwegian institutions.

Oldest Hawaiian Dies, Aged 113

(International News Service)

HONOLULU, May 27.—Mrs. Maria Kahauanu, Hawaiian, who died here recently at the age of 113 years, is believed to have been the oldest resident of these islands. Mrs. Kahauanu was born on the island of Molokai in the year 1814, which was during the reign of Kamehameha I, before the ancient tabus of the native religion had been broken, and was six years before the landing of the first missionaries.

Her age was verified by the family Bible, Maria embracing the Christian religion soon after the arrival of the first missionary ship at Kona, Hawaii. She came to Honolulu at the age of 16 years, making the journey in an outrigger canoe. She remembered the great king, Kamehameha I, and of hearing of the landing of the "praying white men."

Rescue Crews In Eastern Colliery Are Imperilled

Second Blast At Woodward Mine Would Wipe Out Entire Band Of Searchers

HORRIBLE DEATH LURKS IN MINE

BY JOHN J. McSWEENEY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., May 27.—Another chapter in the glorious history of Pennsylvania's mine rescue crews was written today, as a small band of miners crawled into the face of death at the blast torn Woodward colliery of the Glen Alden Coal Company at Edwardsville, near here, seeking to reach five of their entombed comrades in an explosion wrecked shaft near the Kingston mouth of the mine.

Violent and horrible death lurked in the deep dark recesses of the mine as the men, lowering themselves through an airshaft, made their precarious way through the labyrinth of workings, seeking the entombed men.

Some inkling of the danger these men faced could be gained from the fact that two explosions rocked the mine within two hours early today, and volumes of death dealing gas poured out of the mine mouth even as the little band entered upon its hazardous enterprise.

These men's position might well be likened to that of a band of ants, crawling into the barrel of a gun. A gas explosion in a shaft travels in much the same manner as a bullet when the gun is fired. A sheet of flame, traveling a thousand feet in a second, would wipe these men out almost without a trace if the blast should occur in their shaft.

New Ford Car Ready In About Three Weeks, Say

(International News Service)

DETROIT, May 27.—Many sections of the country will enjoy improved business conditions as a result of Henry Ford's announcement that within about three weeks he will offer the motoring public a new light car.

Ford said that all of his plants are being equipped for production of the new model as rapidly as possible.

Allotting five of the new cars to each dealer, a conservative estimate, Ford agencies throughout the world will take 300,000 new cars. At peak production this number will keep the plants working day and night for at least a month, it is estimated.

Simultaneous with the announcement of the new Ford model came news of the manufacture of Ford's 15 millionth model T. The car was driven from the assembly track by Henry Ford and his son, Edsel.

Sanitary Sewers To Be Constructed

Bids for the construction of a sanitary sewer to be built in North Mercer street, between Lincoln and Wallace avenues, will be asked for by the city of New Castle, according to action of city council today. It is planned to open the bids June 20.

Councilman Genkinger also introduced an ordinance providing for the laying of a sanitary sewer in a section of Delaware avenue.

A third sanitary sewer planned by the provisions of a bill will result in its construction in Sharp street, between South Jefferson street and no. 10 Sharp street.

Fruit Crops Are Damaged By Storm

(International News Service)

PHOENIXVILLE, Pa., May 27.—The fruit crops in this vicinity were damaged to the extent of approximately $10,000 it was estimated today by the severe hail, wind and rain storm which swept over Chester county last night.

Hail stones the size of quail eggs, fell for fully ten minutes stripping foliage and blossoms from cherry, apple and peach trees. Early vegetable and garden crops were also damaged.

Happy thought! Scientists who can make an Atlantic cable could as easily make a compressed-air tube to shoot passengers through.

Plans Completed For Memorial Day

GROVE CITY, Pa., May 27.—Plans for Memorial Day services and the dedication of the Soldiers' Memorial in Community Park have been completed by the general committee in charge. The soldiers' monument, which will be dedicated on Monday to Grove City's men who have fought for their country, was erected at a cost of $12,000 by the citizens of the town and will be dedicated free from debt.

The Memorial Day parade will include all military and fraternal organizations of the town, school children, the high school band, the Legion bugle and drum corps and other patriotic organizations. It will form on Broad street and move from Broad west on Main street to Community Park, where the exercises will be held this year. The dedication address will be made by General George Rickards of Oil City, former chief of the military bureau of the War Department, and commander of the 112th infantry during the World War.

The general Memorial Day committee, which is represented by all patriotic organizations, includes: Major Fred McCoy, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Dr. Weir C. Ketler of the Commercial Club; Mrs. D. C. Porter, president of the Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars; H. M. Carruthers, commander of the American Legion; O. L. Gilmore of the Spanish War Veterans; Colonel C. Blaine Smathers, commanding the 112th infantry, and John Boyles of the G. A. R.

Reveal Plot To Free Prisoners

Gangsters Raise Thousands Of Dollars For Big Jail Delivery

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, May 27.—An underworld plot to bring about the escape of a notorious bandit and gunman from the county prison, Olmesburg, was revealed today when three convicts were arranged before magistrate Edward Pennock and held without bail for the action of the grand jury.

Raymond Pyle and James C. Snyder were charged with attempting to break jail and Bernard Belote, a convict machinist, with aiding prisoners to escape.

Police say thousands of dollars were raised among gangsters here, in Baltimore, Chicago and New York to "spring" Pyle. Pyle is the man who threatened several months ago to slay "Scarface" Al Capone, one of Chicago's underworld leaders.

Many Modern Habits Hark Back To Old Days

When Man Raises Hat He Is Copying Knights Of Long Ago

Many of the acts we perform daily, the customs we observe, and even the clothes we wear are romantic survivals of the age of chivalry or of times still more remote. In a hundred ways we are unconsciously following in the footsteps of our long-dead forefathers, says London Answers.

When, for example, you remove your hat on entering a friend's house you are imitating the knight of medieval days, who, before stepping into a castle hall, doffed his helmet—the most vital part of his armor— as proof that he came in peace.

Similarity, when you offer your right hand in greeting, you are unconsciously following the lead of the knight when he held out his unarmed hand as an indication that his sword was sheathed and he had no intention of using it.

The custom of mounting a horse on the near side has its origin in the days of chivalry. The fighting man, who wore his sword on the left, found it an obstacle to mounting on that side; so the habit of mounting on the near side, where the long trailing weapon would not be in the way, was formed. We also owe to the sword the two buttons that are placed at the back of our tail-coats. They are a survival of those formerly used to support the sword belt.

The clothes we wear are in many cases the lineal decendants of those long before Flodden was fought. The Norfolk jacket is a fasimile of the chain-mail hauberk, girt in by the sword belt, which you may see pictured on the seal of Richard the Lion-heart.

Even the frock coat is merely the old-time wafenrok, a long garment, falling below the knees and slit up behind for wearing on horseback, which was worn over armor in the age of chivalry. Every cap with a peak is a decendant of the burgonet a peaked helmet which was seen on a hundred battlefields down to the time of Cromwell's Ironsides.

Lindbergh Loses Flying Helmet

(International News Service)

PARIS, May 27.—"Lost" advertisements, bearing the name of Charles A. Lindbergh, are appearing in the Paris newspapers.

While flying over Paris early today Captain Lindbergh lost the flying helmet which he wore when he flew across the Atlantic. He has placed advertisements in the newspapers in an effort to regain the helmet, which he regards as something of a talisman.

The Pennsylvania elders who charge a preacher with "osculatory indiscretion" are too modern. Fundamentalists say "kiss."

Conscience makes cowards of us all. That is old stuff. Now the reformer's conscience makes goose-steppers of us all.

Capt. Lindbergh Predicts Great Development In Next 10 Years

MAKES SHORT SPEECH TO FRENCH SENATE

BY WILLIAM P. CARNEY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, May 27.—"Ten years from now, I assure you there will be great air lines maintaining a regular service between Europe and America."

This prediction was made today by Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, in a brief speech before the members of the French senate in the palace of M. Doumer, president of the senate.

Lindbergh traced the history of aviation from the first venture of the Wrights in 1903 and Bleriot in 1909, and commented on the fact that the feat accomplished by Bleriot in flying across the English Channel has now become an everyday occurrence. With some shyness he then added, a few days ago I flew from New York to Paris."

This remark was greeted with great cheers and it was some moments before Lindbergh could continue, and he hastened to explain that his reference to his own flight was mentioned only as a basis for his prediction of trans-ocean air lines.

There were some 200 senators present to greet Lindbergh and their sedate dignity was forgotten in their enthusiasm over the young flier, who was his usual gracious self, even though he has admitted that these receptions and speeches are wearing upon him frightfully.

Enormous crowds had again lined the way to the senate to cheer Lindbergh on, and American flags were everywhere and the enthusiasm for the American boy appeared just as great as it was last Saturday night when he landed at Le Bourget.

Ambassador Herrick introduced Lindbergh to the senators as "our new and best ambassador."

"The impulse of this young man to fly across the Atlantic came as a divine insipration," said Ambassador Herick, and Lindbergh was swept with bashful blushes. "It was not inspired by the government but conceived in his own heart and brain at a time when it could do most good."

Senator Lazar Weiler paid high tribute to Lindbergh and thanked him for his brief speech. The senator recalled that Orville Wright once said that "birds fly and don't talk," and remarked that Lindbergh is "a bird who flies and also speaks."

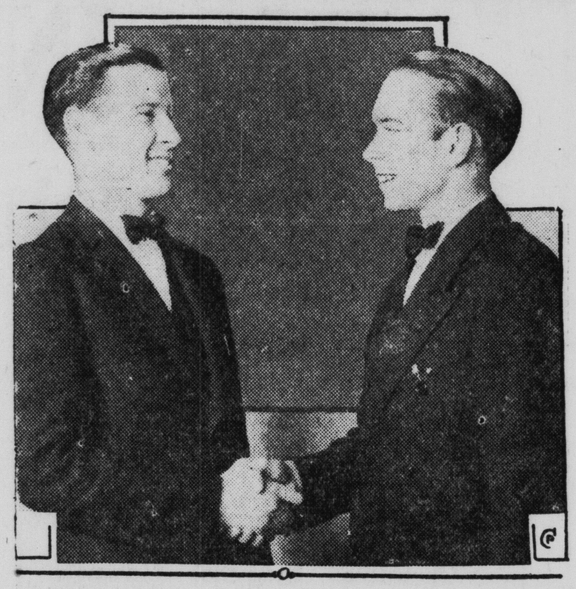
ANCESTORS IN FEUD—PALS NOW



A generation ago the Hatfields and McCoys were bitter enemies. These families were arrayed against each other in a bloody feud. Thirty-five men and one woman were killed in this lingering family war-fare in the Kentucky and West Virginia mountains. Legendary accounts among the mountain folk say the feud started over a razor-back forest hog. No matter how tragic the past has been the present finds a new generation of the two families as friends. Bob McCoy, left, of Wyoming County, W. Va., and Joe Hatfield, right, of Mingo County, W. Va., now are fellow students at Marshall College, Huntington, W. Va. They are classmates, fraternity brothers and pals.

Tells Why Rising Sun Seems To Be Larger

Most persons have noticed that when the sun and moon are rising or setting they appear larger than when they are high in the sky. The same thing is true of the constellations; they seem to occupy more space in the heavens when they are close to the horizon than when they are overhead. Two neighboring stars, such as Castor and Pollux, apparently draw nearer together as they mount the wall of night in the east and slowly spread apart as they sink in the west. None of this is due to any magnifying effect of the atmosphere. That it is purely an illusion can be demonstrated in a simple manner.

Let the observer look at the rising moon through a small hole at one end of a cardboard tube, and at the other end set two parallel threads at such a distance apart that each one touches an edge of the lunar disk. If, without having moved the threads he repeats the experiment a few hours later, when the moon is sailing high in the south, he will find that the threads touch the edges just as before. This proves that, as the astronomers would say, the angular diameter of the moon has not appreciably changed. High or low, it occupies a space about half a degree wide in the sky.

Asks For Firm Stand For Real Enforcement Of Automobile Laws

(International News Service)
UNIONTOWN, Pa., May 27. — More than five million Pennsylvanians, or over half the State's population, are directly concerned in the operation of motor vehicles, Richard C. Haldeman, president of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation, said here at the annual convention of the Federation.

Haldeman made a plea for a determined stand on the part of motorists for enforcement of automobile laws and maintenance of good highways.

"Statisticians estimate," said Haldeman, "that every owner of a motor vehicle has a family of four. If this is true, 5,200,000 Pennsylvanians are directly concerned in the operation of motor vehicles, in laws relating to mechanisms and operator, in road construction, in road maintenance and in motor taxation. The population of Pennsylvania is a trifle over nine millions. Therefore, more than half the population is interested in motor matters, and were it to carry its opinion to the polls this majority would control Pennsylvania far more completely than any political machine has ever controlled it."

Motor clubs should preach street and highway safety at every opportunity, and members of motor clubs should practice it, Haldeman said.

The Motor Federation head scored motorists who scoff at the State speed laws, and pointed to an appalling toll of deaths annually as the result of carelessness in driving.

"The Pennsylvania Motor Federation should continue its insistence that this State should lead America in its highway work," Haldeman continued. "Pennsylvania should not be satisfied with having the best highway system in the United States; it should have the best in the world—but Pennsylvania will not have a highway system good for any of us until it has a system good for all of us."

Indian Heiress' Wedding Annuled

Maude Lee Mudd Says She Married Only To Escape Guardian

MIAMI, Okla., May 27.—Maude Lee Mudd, wealthy Oklahoma Indian girl who eloped to Iowa in 1925 and married Earl E. Gordon, former Miami motor car salesman, and deserted him a few weeks later in California, has obtained an annulment of the marriage on the ground that she wed the white man to escape the custody of her legal custodian.

The annulment was granted in Pinal county, Arizona, May 5, it was revealed here today by O. F. Mason, Miami lawyer, who has represented the girl in much litigation since she inherited a fortune.

A transcript of the proceedings in the Arizona court revealed for the first time the girl's own story of the marriage and cleared up the mystery of her whereabouts since she disappeared from Oklahoma months ago.

The ceremony took place in Council Bluffs, Ia., June 8, 1925, after she had been persuaded it was the only way to keep her from he custody of her custodian, Mrs. Ella Shannon, of Miami, she told the Arizona court.

Didn't Know Bridegroom

"I did not know the defendant (Gordon) and never saw him until the day upon which the pretended marriage took place," the transcript shows she testified.

When Maude Lee was 16 her mother, Mrs. Susan Bomberry, obtained custody of her, she related, but Mrs. Shannons' efforts to get her back caused her to flee into Kansas, and then to Council Bluffs, where the marriage took place.

Her mother then arranged for Mrs. Victor J. Wilson of Miami to take care of her. Maude Lee testified, and with Mrs. Wilson and Gordon, they visited several places.

"At Riverside, Cal.," her testimony continued, "I decided to go back to my mother, and took the train for Oklahoma in August, 1925. I did not let the defendant (Gordon) know where I was going and have not seen him since.

"I entered into the marriage ceremony through fear that the custodian might get me. The defendant understood this."

Gordon is seeking to have the annulment decree set aside.

WATCHFUL WAITING

The elderly lady was standing at the head of an escalator gazing fixedly at the revolving steps. "Lost something?" inquired an employe.

"Yes," she replied. "I dropped 10 cents on those stairs and I'm waiting for it to come up again."

Supreme Court Ends Year With 875 Decisions

Summer Vacation June 6 Finds Justices Closing Active Term

New Court Rules Have Speeded Jurists' Work Over Other Years

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 27.— When the U. S. Supreme Court lays aside its court work for the summer on June 6 it apparently will have the satisfaction of knowing that some progress has been made during the year in its fight to lessen the evils of judicial delay.

The court will not only exceed last year's record of cases decided, but the new rules and policies of the court appear to have brought a cessation in the steadily rising tide of appeals filed.

More than 875 cases will have been decided by adjournment, an increase of 25 over last year, it is estimated, while to date the number of appeals is 75 less than at the same time last year.

The present improved situation, it is believed by court officials is a direct result of the revision act of 1925, new rules published by the court and its avowed policy of reducing congestion and speeding up determination of issues.

Change Other Rules

Further discouragement of the use of the court for purposes of delay in enforcement of judgements of lower courts—usually delay in meeting judgements for money—is seen in two new rules to be made effective next fall. Time for filing petitions and issuance of mandates will cut from 40 to 25 days.

Disposition of more than 800 cases in eight months is made possible by the issuance of many decisions and orders in which written opinions are avoided. About 400 cases, most of which have not been orally argued, will be left pending by the time of adjournment. The summer vacation is utilized by members of the court in completing opinions upon numerous cases which have been submitted, and in which decisions will be announced next October.

A consistent effort upon the part of the court to promptly act upon petitions for reviews, especially criminal cases, has been apparent during the present year. Many important petitions for review of important criminal cases have beeen decided within two weeks time.

May Enlarge Court

Despite the lessening of congestion, however, court officials expect that with the steady growth of the country the demands upon the court will be greatly increased in the next few years. Unless further restrictions upon the right to appeal to the high court are provided, the question of enlarging the court may beome a matter of serious debate, court officials say.

As a further step in the revision program, it is expected that Chief Justice Taft will confer with Senator Norris, (R) of Nebraska, chairman of the Senate judiciary committee, which may lead to enactment of new laws. Chief Justice Taft has frequently criticized the court system of the country which permits cases to be dragged through many years before a final determination is made.

Britain Excluding Foreign Workers

(International News Service)

LONDON May 27—A policy of rigidly excluding foreigners from employment in Britain, as far as possible, is being carried out with greater severity than ever by the present British government.

The most notable instance is in the case of the foreign waiter. According to the report of the minister of labour, only 133 permits were given in 1926 to hotel and restaurant employes. Practically all of these were admitted under a scheme whereby British restaurateurs can exchange waiters with foreign countries for the sake of mutual experience.

The number of permits given for the entry of domestic servants and workers from abroad was 1,917 and 473 were refused. The number given to musicians and theatre artists — for a limited period—was 1,771 and 112 were refused.

Arrest Three Men And Four Women In Narcotic Raid

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, May 27.—With the arrest of three men and four women at Stockdale, near here, today, federal narcotic authorities believed they had broken up a large drug ring operating in this district.

Those arrested were:

Joe Pandaglio, alleged ringleader, whose candy and grocery store in Stockdale was said to be the distributing point, Anna Pandaglio, his wife, Mary Vigilante, Benny Pandaglio, Tobias Mursi, Dominic Torce, Celeste Jones, a negro.

They will be given a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Roger Knox.

The seven were arrested by H. E. Fox, chief of the Westmoreland county detectives.

An agent bought 160 grains of morphine in Pandaglio's store with marked money, authorities said, having paid $30 for the lot. When arrested, the money was found in Mrs. Pandaglio's possession.

It helps in understanding Coolidge when you know his middle name is "Galusha."

Make Reports To General Assembly

Doctrinal Controversy Thrown Open At Meeting Of Presbyterian Body At San Francisco

(International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, May 27.—The whole doctrinal controversy of modernist versus fundamentalist was thrown wide open before the 139th General Assembly of the Presbyterian church of America at its second day's session here today with the submission of two reports of special commissions, one of which has been conducting an investigation over the last two years.

A story of dissension in Princeton Thelogical Seminary between cliques among students, faculty and governing bodies was revealed in the report of the commission appointed last year to probe this situation.

Two important recommendations are made as follows:

1.—Complete reorganization of governing powers of the institution by creation of a single board of control to replace the two existing boards of trustees and directors which have been at loggerheads over distribution of power.

2.—That the General Assembly refuse, pending this reorganization to confirm appointment of Dr. J. Gresham Machen to the chair of apologetics.

State Health Car In County Next Week

MERCER, Pa., May 27.—The health car of the state of Pennsylvania will be in Mercer County on the dates of June 1st and 2nd.

It will be stationed at Jamestown on the date of June 1st and at Hadley that of June 2nd. The date of June 6th the car will be at Cochranton where it will be available for Mercer County folk.

Miss Viola Moore a secretary of the state health department has been in the county making arrangements for its coming. She states that the work done is educational, preventative and instructive.

The attention of residents living in the community visited by this car is called to the following instructions:—the staff that travels with the car consists of 3 physicians, two dental hygienists and three nurses; in each town the car will be stationed at central points to accommodate children of the rural districts; no sick children with acute or infectious diseases will be admitted for examination; only children examined being those of pre-school age, birth to six years.

Chairmen have been appointed for the districts who will see to getting out the women and their children.

Mrs. John Denniston has been named the lady in charge at Jamestown; Mrs. W. T. Gilger has been named as that at Hadley, Mrs. J. A. Lowry that at Cochranton.

The car can take care of the examination of 50 children a day. So far as possible it is desired to divide them equally for morning and afternoon work.

The work done by the state physicians will be examination and diagnosis only. The medication will be left entirely to the family doctor.

The car has been secured for Mercer County by Dr. S. J. Dickey and will give the people living in these localities an opportunity to have their children examined by experts.

Two Women Have Narrow Escape

CORRY, May 27.—Mrs. Elsie Nichols and Mrs. Ed Hewitt had a narrow escape from serious injury or death when they were almost struck by an Erie freight train on the Center street crossing. The watchman had lowered the northside gate, but was just in the act of lowering the south gate when the machine driven by Mrs. Nichols turned onto the tracks. An eastbound train which had just passed over the crossing obscured the view of the westbound train. The watchman drove the car through the gate to avoid being hit by the train.

There may not be a hell, but nobody can deny there's "rose fever."

Japanese Troops Ready For March Into North China

Two Thousand Japanese Troopers Garrisoned In Manchuria Awaiting Orders

TOKYO, Japan, May 27. — Two thousand Japanese troops, garrisoned in Manchuria, are prepared to march into North China upon a moment's notice, it was learned today. The cabinet late this afternoon authorized Premier Tanaka and the ministers of war and navy to send soldiers into China whenever, in their judgment the emergency warranted.

Actual eruption into China of Japanese armed forces, however will depend upon whether the Shantungites are defeated at Hsuchow. If the Shangtung forces are routed, the Japanese soldiers will be rushed to Tsinanfu.

The government emphasized that an invasion will be made only to protect lives and property of Japanese citizens. A soon as danger passes, government officials explained, the Nipponese troops will be immediately withdrawn.

Prominent Rabbis To Take Part At Temple Ceremony

(International News Service)

ALTOONA, Pa., May 27.—Six prominet rabbis will take part in the dedicatory services June 9 for the new $200,000 temple Beth-Israel erected by the Hebrew Reform congregation here it was learned today.

Among those present will be Rabbis Louis S. Wolsey, Philadelphia; Moses J. S. Abels, Borah Park Brooklyn; Solomon N. Bazell, Louisville, Ky.; Nathan Barish, Herman L. Rosen and Samuel Strauss all of this city.

Man Stricken With Fatal Illness As He Visits Cemetery

ZELIENOPLE, Pa., May 27.—While decorating a grave in the Zelienople cemetery in preparation for Memorial Day, Frank Allen, aged 53, of Zelienople, collapsed and died en route to his home yesterday afternoon. Mr. Allen, in company with his wife and daughter, had gone to the cemetery earlier in the afternoon. Following his collapse he was placed in an automobile, but died before medical aid could be summoned.

Mr. Allen was a clerk in Wehr Brothers' meat market in Zelienople for a number of years and had gone about his regular duties until noon yesterday. He was a resident of Zelienople his entire life.

He is survived by his widow, a daughter Arvilla, at home; a son Richard of Zelienople, two brothers, Elmer of Harmony and Earl Allen of Ellwood City; two sisters, Mrs. Philip Winter of Zelienople and Mrs. John Anderson of Pittsburgh, and two grandchildren.

Hankow In Hands Of Nationalists

(International News Service)

SHANGHAI, May 27—Hankow is now virtually in the hands of the moderate Nationalists, according to reliable reports received here tonight. The extremists are in flight and only a few extreme Nationalists remain to arrange affairs on the arrival of Chiang Kai Shek.

The Japanese authorities are reported to have ordered their Nationals to evacuate, while restrictions in the French concession have been tightened and permission to leave the concession is necessary.

HAND CRUSHED

ALTOONA, Pa., May 27.—When her hand caught in a mangle at a laundry here today, Mrs. Mary Sommers, 43, laundress, suffered injuries which it is feared will necessitate amputation of the hand. The fingers were mashed and burned.

World's Peace Dependent On Six Countries

Britain Is In Vortex Of Jealousy And Bickering, Says Peace Observer

U. S. Also Seeks Amity And Gets General Credit As Safety Valve

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 27.—The British Isles are in the very vortex upon which centers all the jealousies, the bickerings, the ambitions and intrigue of European nations that lead toward war, as well as the center of the International Peace movement, according to Dr. Fred B. Smith, chairman of the Executive Committee of the World Alliance for International Friendship through the Churches, after returning from a ten weeks' intensive study of political conditions, mainly in England, France and Italy.

Dr. Smith's views are encompassed in a report which he has just completed for the World Alliance.

"The British Isles," says his report, "are carrying more than their just proportion of the white man's burden in preserving peace. They are taxed as no other people are taxed. They are the buffers for critical European complications and they are being vexed and tried with Oriental discords. But without a murmur or a sniveling whine they are carrying on undaunted in their endeavor to maintain peace in the world."

A World Traveller

Dr. Smith has crossed the Atlantic Ocean sixty-six times, in connection with the promotion of some social welfare task of international importance. He has also crossed the Pacific Ocean eleven times and has gone around the world five times on similar errends. While on the trip from which he has just returned, he spoke during the month of March in the City Temple of London, attended the National Convention af the Free Church Council, and the National Council of the Young Men's Christian Association, but mainly he interviewed large numbers of leaders in the countries he visited and made personal studies at the more important centers. His report says:

"Great Britian, United States, France, Italy, Germany and Russia are the nations upon whom international peace chiefly depends. Britian, Dr. Smith found, desperately wants peace and is the balancing factor working toward that end.

We Want Peace

"The United States also wants peace, and there seems to be an opinion on the part of leaders in almost every country that America has some mysterious power, which, if properly exerted, can prevent another war. While the European Powers may not agree with the political or economic programs of the United States, they have confidence that American strength and influence can prevent war.

"France wants peace but fears war, and therefore maintains her preparedness for the latter.

"Italy is definitely embarked on an expansionist-consolidation program and cares neither for peace or war .Italy is one of the uncertain quantities in the problem of Europe's peace.

"Germany is disarmed and making rapid strides toward full economic recovery. Germany wants peace, but the very fact of her great economic and industrial activity, forcing her products into foreign markets, makes her an uncertain quantity.

"Russia is the international question mark."

FINAL RESTING PLACE

Now I know where all the safety razor blades go.

And old magazines and cracked dishes.

I know where the three-legged chairs and dilapidated rockers disappear to.

And broken bedsprings and ragged rugs.

I've just bought a "summer cabin, completely furnished."—Life.

Whether or not love is blind, self-love certainly is.

European Air Travel Companies Decide Against Women For Pilots

European

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON May 27—A door to commercial aviation has been opened at last to women, but at the same moment a barrier has been raised against them entering it as a career.

Closely following on the decision of the International Commission for Air Navigation to allow women to be licensed to pilot passenger and goods airplanes, the three leading European air-travel companies announce that in no circumstances will they employ women in preference to men as pilots. In addition the British Air Ministry has ruled that when a woman holds a license to carry air passengers she will have to undergo a medical examination every three months, instead of every six, as men do.

Object Two-Fold

In effect, the objection of the leading air companies to women as pilots is two-fold. Firstly, that they do not trust the nerve of a woman in an emergency, and secondly, that airplane passengers place no trust in a woman where human life is at stake.

"There is no possibility of women being employed in our commerical machines," said Samuel A. Dismore, secretary of Imperial Airways, the chief British commercial airplane company. "We will not employ even a man who has not flown for 1,000 hours, and to do so he must either have served with the Royal Air Force or be so wealthy as to have acquired large airplanes in which to obtain the experience."

"We will not employ women simply because we believe they could not be relied upon to handle large airplanes," was the declaration of M. Grosfils, the English manager of the French Air Union, a company transporting about thirty per cent of the cross-channel traffic.

Germans Prefer Men

A decided negative was also given by the London manager of the Deutsche Lufthansa Company, the company operating all the German airways.

"Apart from the aspects that passengers are not likely to trust women pilots," he said, "we have an enourmous waiting list of suitable and qualified men, from which we shall draw exclusively."

"People have a sort of prejudice against women in responsible position where human life is at stake," said an Air Ministry official. "Why have we no women engine-drivers on the railroads? Why so few women automobile-coach drivers? Because people do not trust them.

"I think women will take to flying in increasing numbers, and no doubt many will make a profession of it; but they will only fly small taxi-planes carrying two or three passengers."

3000 Delegates At Trade Convention

(International News Service)

DETROIT, May 27.—The fourteenth foreign trade convention to be held here May 25 to 27 will attract from 2,700 to 3,000 representatives from all parts of North and South America, the Detroit convention and tourist bureau announces.

Among the speakers are: Herbert Hoover, James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation; ex-Governor James P. Goodrich of Indiana; Roy D. Chapin, chairman of the board Hudson Motor Car Company; Fred W. Green, governor of Michigan; Silas H. Strawn, of Montgomery Ward & Company; Edsel White of Armour & Company; and C. K. Woodbridge, president of the International Advertising Association.

Secretary Hoover's address will be made at a special luncheon at Masonic Temple, May 26 under the auspices of the American Manufactorer's Export Association. His talk on "American Foreign Trade," will be broadcast.

Governor Green will appear as a manufacturing exporter, as well as state executive. He is head of theYpsilanti Reed Furniture Company. His talk will be on "Michigan's Vital Interest in Foreign Trade."

WHOLE FAMILY WAS GOING DOWN HILL

World's Tonic Cleared Up the Catarrh and Restored Happiness

"I want to tell everybody about the big thing World's Tonic did for my family," said a lady of New Castle at McKee's drug store a day or two ago. "We first heard of it when I visited some of my folks in Southern Ohio. It was creating a great deal of talk there. My husband, my 16 year old son and I, myself, had suffered much from catarrh. My husband had all kinds of trouble with his stomach, and my boy was thin and weak. I kept going, but in the mornings my head and throat were full of slime, my appetite was poor and altogether the whole family seemed to be going down hill.

"Well I heard so much about World's Tonic in Ohio that I got a bottle, and all three of us took it. It took seven bottles to clear us all up, but since we got well we are a happy family indeed, and we cannot say too much about the merits of World's Tonic. The boy has gained fifteen pounds in seven weeks, and looks and acts like a boy should. My husband and I feel perfectly well."

World's Tonic is sold by McKee's, Eckerd's, Paisley's, Smith's' and all other good druggists. (279)

Why Buy Gyp Tires When You Can Buy Your Tires Here for Less.

Think This Over

Who Pays Your Tire Bills?

Not the car manufacturer. He put four tires on your car when he made it. The mileage they get doesn't worry him. You have to replace them.

Those first tires are never Hood tires. Hoods aren't sold in bulk, at bulk price. There is too much quality in them.

But in thousands of cases their successors are Hoods—specified by Experience.

Sixth Warders Have Meeting

Discuss Street Extension And Other Improvements In District

BUS LINE NOT GIVEN APPROVAL

A number of matters of importance to the property owners and residents of the Sixth ward were up for consideration at the meeting of the West Side Civic Club held last night in the West Side school. James Moore, vice-president of the organization, presided.

One of the more important matters reported on at the meeting was that concerning the proposal to extend Smithfield street north so that it might become another main cross street between Washington street and the Youngstown road district and at the same time extend Robinson street, which is really an extension of West North street, so that it would intersect Smithfield street and make another east and west outlet.

It was reported that the members of council with the exception of the mayor and the city engineer, F. F. Miller, had recently visited the districts effected by these proposed improvements and had found a majority of the property owners willing to wave damages, if the improvement was made.

It was reported that council is quite favorably impressed with the proposed improvement and willing to assist in many ways, if the people effected are equally interested in helping out in the matter. It was stated that council was willing to establish a dump in the ravine which it would be necessary to fill to extend Robinson or West North street to Smithfield street, also that there was a man willing to give dirt from his property to assist in the fill.

The report of the committee appointed to seek better transportation facilities for the Sampson street district, was to the effect that P. & O. officials from Youngstown, who recently viewed the proposed bus route to that district, had made an unfavorable recommendation in regard to the matter. A committee with H. E. Dupuy as chairman, was appointed to keep after the P. & O. company in the matter of securing transportation facilities for that section of the city.

On advice given at the meeting, a committee of which Joseph Patterson, is the chairman, was appointed to see Louis Genkinger, city councilman and head of the department of streets, with regard to the matter of taking care of the surface water on Boro Line street.

It was decided to circulate petitions for the grading of Sankey and Lowery streets. A committee with Mr. Dufford as chairman, was appointed to present the petitions to city council.

Owing to the fact that the recently appointed Welfare committee had failed to function as expected, this committee was discharged and a new committee was named by the president of the club, which it is anticipated will function as expected.

The members of this committee as it stands are James Moore, chairman, Phil Evans, H. E. Dupuy, Fred Pennington and Harry Robinson. It's numbers may be increased at a later date.

Striking Miners Become Caddies At Pittsburgh

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, May 27—The majority of boy caddies at local golf clubs are "up in arms" today against striking union coal miners who have replaced the youths on several links.

That the miners, who have found this new form of employment since the bituminous mine suspension on April 1, make better caddies than the boys, was the declaration made by Walter Loeffler, professional golfer at the South Hills Country Club.

"The miners are fine caddies", declared Loeffler. "In fact, I never had better caddies than some of the men."

Soviets To Place Boycott On English Ports And Cargoes

Chinese Girls Bob Hair But Smoking Is Tabooed

Above: Miss Fuh-ru Bei; below: the Misses Alice Wang, Kyuch Tsang and Yat Tong, devotees of the bob, but not of smoking

(Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to New Castle News)

ANN ARBOR Mich. May 27—Oriental women may bob their hair in imitation of the western fashion, but when the American co-ed added the art of smoking to her liberal education it was tabooed by Chinese students, according to Miss Fuh-ru Bei of the graduate school at the University of Michigan.

"The character of a Chinese woman must be above reproach", she says. "To the educated classes smoking is immoral. It is not considered a girlish habit."

Yet mannish types are not entirely censured in China. Miss Bei states that seven-tenths of the women attending the Canton Medical College had bravely visited the barber and were advocates of the boyish bob.

No Bob for Her

"But myself, I am too conservative", she adds laughing shyly. "I tell my friends that I will be the last one in the world to bob."

Prior to 1914 only the old, picturesque water pipe was used in Foochow. In that year singing girls and women of the streets of Shanghai began to smoke cigarets. By 1922 wealthy, idle women of the uneducated caste adopted the habit.

"But no Chinese girls and very few men of the student class smoke", Miss Bei declares. "As the traditional leaders of their country they must set the moral standards. They do not believe that tobacco satisfies or produces nightingale voices".

Cleveland Youths, Runaways, Picked Up By Ambridge Police

(International News Service)

AMBRIDGE, Pa., May 27.—Albert Bench, Joseph Bertnatka and Albert Zourryw, all 13 years old and from Cleveland, were detained today by police when they told a motorcycle patrolman they had been robbed and wanted to go home.

Cleveland authorties were notified and their parents are on their way here. The boys explained they left their home on May 25, to become coal miners in the Pittsburgh district.

Highway Expert Has Plan To Build Motor Road, Canada To Argentina

(International News Service)

NEWTON, Kan., May 27.—A motor highway from Canada to Buenos Aires.

That is the vision which John C. Nicholson of Newton, president of Maridian Highway No. 81, hopes to bring to materialization. And Nicholson and other highway enthusiasts all over the United States declare there is more behind the project than conjecture and hope.

Nicholson's vision encompasses the greater part of the western hemisphere—for the road to Buenos Aires would cross the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, stretching on to City of Mexico, on through the Central American countries, over the Andes and the Amazon to South America's chief city.

Much Encouragement

Every day Nicholson receives letters from motor and tour organizations all over the United States, offering help and co-operation in the project which they declare to be the greatest of its sort ever undertaken. This long ribbon of road, Nicholson points out, would offer the motorists one of the most remarkable journeys ever travelled by man. It would span the distance of 10,000 miles between the north temperate zone and the south temperate zone crossing the torrid tropics lying between them.

Recreational motoring, however, would be only one of its attractive advantages. Advocates of the project point to diplomatic and economic progress the Pan-American motor highway would create. They feel it would do much toward greater harmony between North and South America and would revive in these countries the spirit of reciprocity advocated by James G. Blaine more than forty years ago.

Plan Gets Impetus

A great impetus to the project will be given by the analysis of first-hand information brought back from South and Central America recently by the army fliers in the Pan-American "good will" flight, one of whom is a son-in-law of Nicholson.

These airmen are understood to have returned with important information for the government, bearing on the possibilities that lie in better communication and trade relations. The great motor highway spanning the western hemisphere, Nicholson believes, will eventually play an important part in the development of these factors.

Wild Life In The Cook Forest

Pennsylvania has more than a million acres of forest preserves, but they are intended primarily for the production of timber for commercial purposes and only incidentally for recreation. We have lacked great state parks such as New York possesses; hence there has been more or less humiliation for Pennsylvanians in the poor showing that the commonwealth made in the reports presented at the annual meeting of the State Park Association. The national conference of these men is now being held at Bear Mountain, Harriman State Park, New York, and Pennsylvanians can listen to or read the discussions this year with more pride than formerly because the commonwealth is at last on the way to acquire, in the Cook Forest, a state park that will be superior in many respects to any other such playground in the country.

Especially noteworthy in the Cook Forest is its abundance of wild life. Its great stand of virgin white pines is, of course, its principal feature; but the wild animals to be found there will also prove a great attraction. Deer have become so numerous that last week no fewer than six were killed on Hominy Ridge, which is only a stone's throw from the forest, by farmers whose crops the animals were damaging. Cook Forest also abounds in birds. A census of the feathered inhabitants is shortly to be undertaken by local ornithologists.

In a few weeks, when the rhododendron will be in bloom, the Cook Forest will be at its best. The inn has already been opened, and from now on there should be a steady stream of Pittsburgh visitors to this charming remnant of Penn's Woods.

At the opening session of the National Conference on State Parks, Congressman Hamilton Fish, Jr., extolled such playgrounds as agencies through which disease and crime can be prevented. This is the view generally held. Pittsburghers are fortunate in having access to what will prove one of the finest state parks in the country.

Baby Hippo For Coolidge Menagerie

Firestone Sending Unique Present To President At White House

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, May 27.—President Coolidge's private White House menagerie was increased on Thursday by a baby hippopotamus —the gift of Harvey S. Firestone, the rubber magnate.

The President was advised that the newest addition will arrive on June 1. It is about six feet long and stands about thirty inches.

The animal was captured on the Firestone plantation in Liberia. The Liberian hippo prefers dry land to water, the President was advised, and arrangements accordingly have been made for a dry berth for the youngster at the National Zoo.

And flew the plane alone,
Braving all the dangers,
No one else has known.

Crowds all over hail him

Jimmy Archer, Former Cub Catcher, Now Practising Up As Pork Yodler

By COPELAND C. BURG
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, May 27.—Jimmy Archer, formerly a star catcher for the Chicago Cubs is in training again.

But Archer is not planning a sensational return to the diamond —he's merely preparing to lead Chicago's hog yodlers at the annual free-for-all, catch-as-you-can pig calling contest to be held this summer at Springfield, Ill.

The former baseball hero denies he learned or perfected his ability at bringing home the animated bacon in shouting at umpires and admits his childhood days on a mid-west farm taught him all he knows about singing to the porkers. Right now Archer is employed at one of the world's biggest packing plants and there he has a chance to study first hand his advancement as a pig caller.

This year new rules will govern the hog calling contest with volume scoring 50 percent; persuasiveness, 25 percent; and melody 25 percent.

Volume is extremely important in the contest, officials declared, pointing out the first essential is that the pigs hear the callers; persuaiveness is desired to the idea that something delectable is waiting will be properly signaled. As for melody it is argued even a pig has a certain musical sense and a bellow, other than somewhat silver at least, might start the animal over the hill and far away, instead of bringing him shuffling home to the corn.

The Illinois contest this year will be marked with many of the west's best hog yellers, including State Senator Ralph Boyd of Galva and State Senator Harry Wilson of Pickeyville, a medalist in one of last year's preliminary tests. Last year's winner was Guy Bender and he is reported in extremely good voice this season.

FITCH, STEAMBOAT'S INVENTOR, AFTER 129 YEARS GETS STATUE

BARDSTOWN, Ky., May 27.—One hundred and twenty-nine years after death by his own hand, federal and state governments today formally honored John Fitch, inventor of the steamboat.

Governor Fields, at the unveiling of a monument erected by the war department, said that with recognition accorded the inventor today, one thing remained to be done. "That is," he said, "to see that history is corrected and that textbooks be made to teach that Fitch, rather than Fulton, be credited with this wonderful invention."

So quick!
So easy for busy mothers!
and so good for the children

The breakfast long known to be wonderfully good for children is now easy to prepare. Hot oatmeal! You can have it steaming on the table in the time it takes for coffee.

No longer is it necessary to get up early to start it—or to remember to cook it partly the night before.

For Quick Mother's Oats is prepared in such a way that it needs only 2½ to 5 minutes of cooking.

For growing children especially a simple breakfast of hot oatmeal with milk has the approval of child health specialists. Because normal growth is now known to depend less on quantity of food than kind.

Have this nourishing, easy breakfast tomorrow.

Two kinds—the kind you have always known or Quick (cooks in 2½ to 5 minutes). Both with coupons interchangeable with the Aunt Jemima coupons, which are redeemable for games, jewelry, rugs, etc.

To Present Play At Princeton On Monday Evening

"As A Woman Thinketh" To Be Staged In I. O. O. F. Hall By Students

The Junior play, "As a Woman Thinketh", will be presented in the I. O. O. F. hall at Princeton at eight o'clock, eastern standard time, on May 30.

Members of the cast have been doing some hard work on their part and have mastered the roles assigned to them. They give promise of presenting a well prepared play, as well as a couple of hours of comedy.

The plot centers around Mrs. Weeden, a slave to her house and family. In the course of her mornings' work she learns several things to the disadvantage of her family.

A visit from the secretary of the Modern Science Club, who introduces a lecturer with many ideas and ideals, arouses her to a desire to make over the family to her taste, and she immediately puts the resolution into operation, much to the amusement of observers, but she has success and it ends with happiness for all concerned. Each character is a distinct individual and each and every one has part in the comedy, which ends, not as it for a time threatens, in an insane asylum, but in a renewed honeymoon and a happy home.

Charles William Weeden, an everyday husband—Paul Gregory.

Rev. Dunning, a pastor of the past—Otto Gumbel.

Caleb Mead, Olive's husband—Francis Boak.

Jack Philley, Beth Weeden's old playmate—Donald Gross.

Charles Whitney—Fred Farrell.

Jothan, the man of all work—Joseph Stoner.

Dr. Hume, the family physician—Howard Frew.

Prof. Baba Majarajah, a lecturer—Walter Lapinsky.

Mrs. Ida Jeanette Weeden, a mother of the present time—Leona Croup.

Dolly, a daughter—Martha Boak.

Olive Mead, the Weedens' married daughter—Mrs. Gertrude Parker.

Mrs. Weeden's best friend, secretary of the Modern Science Club—Eleanor Turner.

Mrs. Dunning, the pastor's wife—Pearle Henry.

Seventh Ward

Lodges Celebrate Anniversaries Thursday Evening

Approximately One Hundred And Fifty Attend; Other News Of Seventh Ward

Thursday evening a joint anniversary celebration of two lodges was celebrated in the Daughters of America hall. The event marked the seventh anniversary of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, number 955; and the eleventh anniversary of the Mabel Wilson auxiliary, number 567 to Brotherhood of Locomotive Trainmen.

The hall was attractively decorated for the occasion in patriotic colors. The celebration began with a tureen dinner at 6:30. The dinner tables were placed in the form of the letter, "T". These dinner tables were decorated in lodge colors, red, white and green, and red roses. Covers were arranged for about one-hundred and fifty persons. Aside from lodge members, wives and families of the Trainmen and husbands and families of the auxiliary members were present. An elaborate dinner was enjoyed.

Following the dinner a miscellaneous program was presented which proved very entertaining. This program was as follows:

Violin solo, by Miss Zelma Foster, accompanied by Miss Ramona Foster on the piano.

Reading, Jessie Weaver.

Selections by quartette, composed of, Herbert Smith, Paul Wilson, Charles Nealis and Sherwood Jones.

Toe dance, Thelma Greer.

Song and dance act by the Collingwood sisters.

Novelty dance, Ruth Philips and Velma Sontag.

Solo dance, Nellie Brady.

Recitation, Hallet Johnston.

Dance, Nellie Brady and Leroy Brady.

Finale dance, Velma Sontag, Ruth Philips and Nellie Brady.

Following the program the hours from 9 until 12 o'clock were spent in dancing. The evening was a great success and amost enjoyable time had by all present. A pair of pillowcases were given away during the evening and those were won by Mrs. C. E. Hutton.

Committees in charge of the arrangements for the evening and to who much of the success of the evening is due are as follows.

Committee from Mabel Wilson lodge, 567, Mrs. Flossie Wilson, Mrs. W. H. Evans, Mrs. Jane Campbell, Mrs. Altman and Mrs. George Fisher.

Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen committee, W. H. Evans, Mr. Buckner and George Cain.

At Mahoning school Thursday and today in the hall on the first floor there is an exhibition of the handiwork of the sewing classes and mechanical drawing classes of the school. The work on exhibition has been done by pupils of the Junior high group.

The girls of Junior High have on display, pajamas, dresses, slips, laundry bags, towels, etc. The boys display is the mechanical drawings they have made this term.

This semester the boys had mechanical drawing and the girls sewing. Next semester the boys will have shop work and the girls cooking.

RETURN HOME.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beiydler of Detroit, Mich., returned home today after spending the past week as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Gorley of North Cedar street.

BREAKS LEG.

Billy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Offutt of Slippery Rock Pa., in jumping from the back porch of his grandmother's home at Slippery Rock Wednesday evening broke his right leg about four inches above the knee.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Offutt are former residents of the ward and lived on Eighth street until a short time ago.

Some Repaving Has Been Repaired

But "Concave" Specimen On Wilmington Avenue Is Still With Us

It may have been a spirit of spring housecleaning, or it may have been that those responsible for the repaving had a change of heart but the fact remains that a few places on Wilmington avenue have repaired the sunken places in front of certain properties.

The prize exhibit the "concave paving" is still in the same horrible shape it was a week ago, and apparently the city engineer has not got around to an examination of this bit of work. If he is not aware of the location, it can be found at 1007 Wilmington Avenue, on the west side of the street.

A count of the depressions in Wilmington Avenue revealed 23 such pieces of sunken paving a few days ago. There appears to be no excuse for such work other than careless repair work, and no supervision. If the work were supervised by the city engineer after it is done, such things could be avoided.

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, well-known writer and lecturer and a member of the National Democratic Committee, will represent women buyers of the world at the International Advertising Convention to be held in Denver June 26-30.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble Caused By Acid Indigestion.

Gas in the stomach accompanied by full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion".

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful or four tablets in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never in liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Buddy Poppies On Sale Saturday

New Castle To Participate In Nationwide Poppy Day

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS TO SELL POPPIES

New Castle will on Saturday participate in the nation wide drive for the sale of the Buddy Poppy which means so much to the former service man through the efforts of Corporal Harry L. McBride Post No. 522, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

These Buddy Poppies, the handiwork of those former service men, who by reason of injuries sustained during the World War are now confined to the government hospitals will be placed on sale in all parts of the city Saturday morning shortly after 7 o'clock. The funds realized will be distributed by a citizen committe of ten members not under the control of any service or other organizations among those former service men, who are in need of assistance.

At the special meeting of Corporal Harry L. McBride Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars held in its quarters 329 Neshannock avenue last night, final plans were made for the sale of Poppies on Saturday.

Girls from the Senior High school and Benjamin Franklin Junior High have volunteered to sell them. They will report at 7 a. m. Saturday morning at the Post headquarters 329 Neshannock avenue where they will be assigned their territory and given their supply of Buddy Poppies and the state of Pennsylvania permit.

They will be instructed further at that time as to the day's procedure(although known plans at this time provide for dinner to be served to all the workers from 11:30 to 1:30 p. m. by the ladies auxiliary of the post. All work will cease at 4 p. m. so that no girl will be kept out after that time. Transportation will be furnished for all girls to their respective districts.

Every person who buys a poppy from these girls is giving a share of the public's debt of gratitude to the disabled soldiers and their families who are in need, so it is asked that every person give as freely as possible to the cause.

Any person who has been missed and feel that they want to give to this worty cause by buying a poppy can do so by calling 9145 on the telephone and a representative will be sent to their home or place of busines to receive such a contribution.

The chairman of the Buddy Poppy committee, George Thompson, stated today that the Citizens committee to handle the fund mentioned in previous issues of The News has not as yet been fully decided upon but that John Elder, Jr., of the First National Bank of Lawrence county has signified his willingness to serve along with Mayor William H. Dunlap when the committee on ex-service men's relief has been selected.

The committee will be announced along with a complete detailed report of the proceeds of the Poppy sale and also an outline of the working plans of that committee will be made public at the same time.

It was also decided last night, that following the commencement in the schools that a social function in the nature of a dance or a banquet will be tendered the girls who are voluntering their services in the sale of the poppies. It was also decided that prizes would be awarded at the time to the girls selling the most poppies and turning in the most money.

Repaving Of South Mill Street Starts On Tuesday Morning

C. C. Coulthard, local superintendent of the Pennsylvania-Ohio Electric Railway company today stated that repaving of South Mill, between East Washington and water streets, will start Tuesday morning. Laborers are placing a cross-over south of Neshannock river bridge.

Invitations Are Issued For Marriage Of Miss Mary Fisher

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 27.—Invitations were issued today for the wedding of Miss Mary Miller Fisher, only daughter of Governor John S. Fisher, to Henry Tatnall Brown, of Moorestown, N. J., in the executive mansion here at 4 o'clock, June 16.

Attaches of the governor's office said that a small number of invitations were issued for the wedding but that a larger number will be invited to the reception which is to follow immediately after the ceremony.

Invitations were sent to the heads of the repartments of the State government, presiding officers of the Senate and the heads of the Appellate courts in addition to members and personal friends of the two families.

Regulates Penalty For Drunken Drivers

(International News Service)

ALTOONA, Pa., May 27.—Judge Thomas C. Hare of Blair county court issued a new rule today regulating penalties for drunken drivers, after Joseph Clark Altoona, hesitated about pleading guilty to his charge.

Judge Hare's rule, heretofore, has been a three month's jail sentence. Under the new regulation will provide for a three month incarceration to which may be added a parole sentence.

Clark was given a three month minimum with a year maximum sentence of his plea of guilty.

Physician's Report To Determine Ruling On Carroll Clemency

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The official physicians' report on Earl Carroll's condition will be studied carefully by the Department of Justice before action is taken on the theatrical producer's plea for clemency, it was declared at the department today.

The report, made upon instructions from the department, is expected in Washington tomorrow.

Advices from Greenville, S. C., where Carroll has been in a hospital since collapsing on a train taking him to Atlanta prison to serve a year and a day for perjury, said the producer had lost 15 pounds, and was in a highly nervous condition. Members of Carroll's family petitioned for the medical examination.

The report will have an important bearing in the department's decision regarding clemency for Carroll.

Girl Lieutenant For "King" Purnell On Witness Stand

By WILLIAM J. BUTLER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., May 27.—Mrs. Esther Johnson Hannaford Hansel, 36, "King" Benjamin Purnell's erstwhile chief girl lieutenant today testified how as a girl of 14 she went to England and induced a woman with $100,000 to turn over her fortune to the House of David and become a member of the colony.

Testifying as the State's star witness in its suit to dissolve the cult as an immoral and fraudulent institution, Mrs. Hansel declared "King" Ben, while posing as Jehova "cast devils" out of her when she was sick and later assaulted her when she was 14 under the guise of the rites of the covenant.

Two Officials Are Among Victims In Eastern Disaster

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., May 27.—The names of the five men, two of them company officials, who were entombed and are believed to have lost their lives in explosions at the Woodward mine of the Glen Alden Coal Company are:

Henry Carpenter, 40, of Forty Fort, mine fireman;

William Evans, 62, of Kingston, assistant foreman;

Angelo Mengi, 28, single;

Konstanz Tiltcak, 38, of Edwardsville.

Those killed yesterday were Felix Kloskyo, of Edwardsville and Herbert Lynch of Forty Fort.

Negro Is Hanged For Attack Upon Woman

(International News Service)

GEORGETOWN, Del., May 27.—Carl Skinner, negro, was hanged in the courtyard of Sussex County jail today for attacking Mrs. Julia A. Bennett, 85, a crippled widow, in her farmhouse near Bridgeville on April 4.

Crippled by rheumatism, Skinner was carried to the gallows by guards. After being strapped, Skinner was allowed to make his last statement.

"Good bye," he drawled calmly. "May God forgive you for this and me for the sins I have committed."

He finally admitted assaulting the aged widow after he had denied the attack repeatedly previously.

Local Boys Graduate From Y.M.C.A. School

Frederick Etter And Cecil Morgan Hold Honors At Springfield College

Frederick Etter, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Etter of Spruce street, and Cecil Morgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Morgan of Grant street, are members of the graduating class of the Y. M. C. A. College at Springfield, Mass. The parents of both Frederick and Cecil will attend the graduating exercises to be held on June 2-5.

Mr. and Mrs. Etter will be the guests of Professor Hickox of the college during their stay in Springfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan will leave New Castle on the first of June and plan to be gone a week. They will drive. Teresa Travers, their niece will accompany them.

Both of these young men were very active in Y. M. C. A. work in New Castle and on their graduation from high school still held the desire to take part in this kind of work. Both have shown interest in their studies at the school and will graduate with honors.

Believes Bridge Order Will Be Issued In June

It is anticipated that the Public Service Commission will issue an order for the construction of the Wampum-Chewton viaduct at their next meeting which will be held on June 6, at Harrisburg, says county engineer, C. H. Milholland.

Mr. Milholland was called to Harrisburg yesterday to consult with the engineering department of the commission on the final check-up on the estimates before they are handed to into the commission.

As soon as the order, is given, the county engineer says that his office will hurry up the detail plans for the project. These details will then have to be approved by the interested parties including the railroad companies, highway department, the county and finally the State Water Commission and the Federal War Department.

These procedures will take some time but after the order is once given by the Public Service Commission, every effort will be made to hurry things along so that actual construction on the project may be started as soon as possible, says Mr. Milholland.

Q. How does the Flat Band Method build longer wear into United States Tires?

A. The Flat Band Method, invented and patented by the United States Rubber Company, puts longer wear into a tire because it is the most precise method of tire building ever developed.

It is comparable to the exact engineering practice of bridge design and construction. Just as the position, length and load of each cable in a bridge are calculated and fixed in advance, so with the cords in a United States Tire.

By the Flat Band Method the plies are laid without tension. The length of each cord is precisely right. The relation of the cords, one to another, is exact.

The result is a tire in which uniform tension and strength of every cord are assured. The load is equalized all around. Longer wear follows.

LINDBERGH'S QUIET DETERMINATION IN HIS BOYHOOD LAID FOUNDATION FOR SUCCESS, HIS MOTHER THINKS

[This is the second of ten instalments on the life of Charles A. Lindbergh, as told exclusively to Miss Bonita Witt of Central Press by Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh, the mother of the young New York-Paris aviator.]

By BONITA WITT
Staff Writer for Central Press and New Castle News.
(Copyright, 1927, by Central Press Co.)

II.

Charles Lindbergh's modesty and his gentlemanly way of conducting himself under the strain preparatory to his flight and his behavior in Paris are not surprising to his mother. She recalls that he always has been quiet, unassuming purposeful. He never made a fuss about doing things. If Charles got an idea that he decided ought to be carried out he set about the task without much talk or excitement. Just made up his mind—then went ahead and did it.

MISS BONITA WITT

Even as a child Lindbergh was methodical and careful. "Charles isn't the 'flying fool' or 'daredevil' folks think him," says his mother. "He never does things on impulse. He always has a very good reason for doing a thing and he plans his moves most carefully.

"I'm not going to tell you that Charles was a model child or a goody-goody, because he wasn't. He got in and out of more scrapes than I can tell. Really it wouldn't do to print them. Once he dropped a cat from our upstairs porch to the ground to see whether it really would land on its feet. However, in looking backward, I can't recall a single thing my boy ever did that was to his discredit."

"Is my boy perfect?"

Again Mrs. Lindberg smiles: "I think he's as fine as any boy could be—but you see I'm prejudiced.

"Charles always was a mischievous child. I'm of Irish descent and his father was born in Sweden. Some of his ancestors were English. A queer mixture and hard to beat!"

There's a cherished picture at Mrs. Lindbergh's home in Detroit, showing Charles, a tow-headed youngster of four, sitting at the edge of the steps of the porch, warily pulling the family cat toward his fist, firmly clutching the protesting animal's tail. Young Charles didn't have a grievance against the cat. No, indeed, he and pussy were the best of friends. He merely wanted to see how far he could go without getting scratched!

He invariably craved "to see how far he could go." And that perhaps, is what led him on to the greatest flight in the world's history!

(To be continued tomorrow).

Darrow To Address Negro Convention

(International News Service)

INDIANAPOLIS, May 27.—Clarence Darrow, noted criminal attorney, will be the main speaker at the annual conference here of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The conference will be held at the Bethel A. M. E. church here June 22 to 28.

Governor Ed. Jackson of Indiana will welcome the delegates.

The most impressive event of the conference will be the awarding of the Spingarn medal. This honor is bestowed annually to the American negro judged the most distinguished in any field of achievement.

Among those who have been awarded the Spingarn medal in past are Roland Hayes, negro singer; James Weldon Johnson, former United States consul in Nicaragua, and Dr. George W. Carver of Tuskegee Institute, who is the adapter of the peanut to industrial use.

The meetings will be held daily at the Bethel church, with night mass meetings at Caleb Mills hall and a Sunday afternoon session at Cadle Tabernacle.

Dr. Pickard Is Given Important Cotton Position

(International News Service)

MANCHESTER, Eng. May 27.—The British Cotton Industry Research Association has just appointed Dr. R. H. Pickard as director of the Shirley Institute, Didsbury—the most important post in regard to British cotton research in the country—in succession to the late Dr. A. W. Crossley.

Dr. Pickard was principal of the Blackburn Municipal Technical College for 15 years and for six years before that has been head of the chemical department of the same institution. He has also served on the council of the Textile Institute in Manchester. He holds the London University degree of doctor of science, and also degrees of the Universities of Munich and Birmingham and has been a member of the Royal Society since 1917.

REMARKABLE HEALING OF SEVERE SKIN TROUBLE RECORDED

Had resisted various treatments for more than a year

San Francisco, Cal., May 12:—"I wish to write to you in regard to a very remarkable healing made by your Resinol Ointment. An acquaintance of mine had a severe case of skin irritation between the toes which caused deep cracks to form. This condition had existed for over a year and every known remedy had been tried without giving relief. Finally I persuaded my friend to use Resinol Ointment and the trouble was healed in two weeks. I hope this will be the means of helping others as many people seem to be suffering from this condition. I think your soap and ointment just wonderful and hope they will always be available for treating skin troubles." —(Signed) Mrs. H.—Name and address on request. Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

Peabody Institute Is Given Collection Of Rare Valuables

(International News Service)

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 27—A valuable collection of specimens from the island of Papua in the East Indies has been received at the Peabody Museum at Harvard University. The collection, which was gathered by P. T. L. Putman, Harvard '25, during a three months stay in Dutch New Guinea, consist of native weapons, drums, clothing and other articles of interest from a region hitherto unrepresented in the Museum.

Putman made his collection by means of barter as the natives have no use for money but could be tempted with brass wire, ten-cent store vegetable knives and shag tobacco, which they chew.

Dry Forces Plan To Close Ontario

(International News Service)

WATERTOWN, N. Y., May 27.—Far from admitting defeat over the "wet" victory in Ontario, Canada, the W. C. T. U.'s of both Ontario and New York States are laying plans for drying up the province.

With the new Canadian liquor law in effect May 16, the members of the temperance unions of New York and Ontario will meet at Thousand Island Park, June 23 to 25 to discuss means of re-enacting the dry law which has just been modified.

Thousand Island Park is the border line between the two districts and leaders from both sides will speak.

Mrs. Gordon Wright, president of the Dominion W. C. T. U., and Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the National W. C. T. U., will be on hand as the principal speakers.

A tri-state conference, for the states of New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, will be held at Ocean Grove, June 19-21, when delegates from most of the Northern New York Unions are expected to attend.

Admiral Bullard of the "dry navy", the United States Coast Guard Service, will be one of the tri-state speakers.

McClure Returns From Conference

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., May 27.—Donald McClure of Blairsville, Pa., president of the Westminster College Y. M. C. A., president of the Y. M. C. A. Council of Western Pennsylvania and a member of the national Y. M. C. A. Regional Committee, returned to school Thursday after attending a meeting of the National Regional Committee at New York City.

While in New York, McClure visited John Cummings of New Wilmington, former Westminster College tennis star, who is a student at the White Biblical Seminary, and Faber Stevenson of Bellevue, a member of the graduating class of Westminster in 1925, who recently received his master's degree in English at Columbia.

SHORT ROMANCES OF EVERYDAY LIFE

Riots of Roses

By Parke Whitney

HORACE LIVERMORE, manager of the Norwood paper mills, had a way of treating all people, inferior or otherwise, with superiority and condescension. The way, naturally enough, extended promptly to his new wife, Melissa, a blue-eyed, flaxen-haired little mite, who by her very dancing child-likeness encouraged the superior attitude that had become Horace's second nature.

Mrs. Horace, senior, ardently aided and abetted the condescension. She worshipped her son, who could make money hand over fist, and keep it, and she treated his pretty wife as if she were barely out of creepers. She advised son about the new car and the rows of spinach between her house and his.

"We've got to be independent, Horace," she told him repeatedly. "Don't talk over plans with Milly. She's too immature to discuss serious matters. But keep track of how she spends her allowance."

Horace, loving both his wife and his mother, did keep discreetly silent. Certainly nobody could have kept things more to himself than he did when affairs began to threaten rumblingly at the mill. Then came the matter of housing the hundred new operatives who would come to work in the annex, if business picked up. The corporation houses were full. The new workers would be mostly men with families. The discontent among the older men over the housing was growing. House the new employes the wrong way and that discontent would thrive, and—well, there were plenty of competitors who were on the lookout for just such a situation. It didn't take much imagination to see what it would mean.

Livermore was thinking over the facts one evening in his battered old Morris chair under the faded lamp shade in his living-room, jotting down figures, going over plans for the new ark of a combination boarding house and kitchenette affair. Melissa had just put down a gorgeous orange and black parchment shade she had been decorating and had started to take up the chintz covers she was making for the hand-me-downs, when she caught sight of the awful frown on her husband's forehead.

She put down the gay chintz and tip-toed 'round to his chair, ran her fingers lightly over the very practical plans and suggestions, and asked, daintily, "But where are the window boxes?"

Horace chuckled as one might chuckle at the antics of a 2-year-old. "Lucky to have windows," he said.

"But I shouldn't think the women would like to live in such bare places," Melissa persisted.

"They don't," Horace agreed, surprised that his wife had put her finger on the very heart of the trouble. "It's the women who find the fault, all right, especially Mrs. John Anderson. She's ring-leader," he said. "'Twould take more than window boxes to satisfy 'em."

Melissa considered for a moment. "Ours looks awfully cheery," she smiled. "Petunias, heliotrope and geraniums. It makes a big difference in folks' feeling, looking at pretties. Wait till I get this new shade on our lamp and your chair dressed up in chints. And wouldn't a rose border up and down our paths be lovely?"

"I've got more important things to attend to than lamp shades and petunias," said Horace.

A couple of weeks after that Melissa heard from the outside that the workmen in the finishing section of the paper mill were on the point of leaving. No strike. Plain dissatisfaction with living conditions. Women discontented, had got together, and got their men under promise to go to a smaller mill down the river, where the workers were all happy, like one big family. The progress made on the new boarding-house-apartment affair had had its share in the hasty decision. "'Twill be worse than the arks we're in now," one woman told Melissa frankly. "Barns."

Livermore didn't sleep at all that night. He had held conferences all day, all the week, for that matter—useless, tiring discussions that got nowhere. All the women's fault, women headed by Anderson's wife. But he wouldn't change his plans. Houses were plain and clean and all right. He'd get cheap workmen, when they left. Round in a circle Livermore's thoughts went. The next day things got to the breaking point, and his hands were tied tight. There was nothing he could do.

"Can't I help?" Melissa had begged a dozen times.

"You?" laughed Horace grimly.

Horace, not even noticing the piping-hot pop-overs oozing butter and marmalade, or Milly's festive new dress, dashed out of the house, cutting across lots. Milly was after him, but he didn't see her. Milly went straight to Mrs. Anderson's, running in as if she had been there before.

"Tried your recipe for pop-overs this morning, Hildur," said Lissa. "They're perfect. And the men have promised to put up the window boxes in every single window this morning. They're going to be just like yours and mine. Rose-of-morn petunias, heliotrope and geraniums."

"Twenty have joined the parchment shade class," Hildur Anderson told her warmly, "and 45, my dear, are ordering that rose chintz in the different designs. Let's see, we're meeting with you tomorrow."

"And with you next week," bubbled Lissa. "And don't forget you're going to give me your recipe for fruit dumplings."

"Don't forget to teach me that new way of glazing lampshades before next meeting. I've made quarts of sandwich filling. To work, I guess folks will be surprised."

When the mill whistle blew at noon, the men in the finishing rooms were amazed to find their wives waiting for them at the gate, the women in the room as much amazed to be greeted with notes of invitation to come at once to the foundations of the new apartment house. Lissa grabbed Horace as he came out of the office, face grim and dejected, hands clenched with the impossibility of any solution for his tremendous problem. It was no use. Ruin stared him in the face.

Condescendingly, impatiently, he followed his wife to the scene of the new building that spelled disaster. He rubbed his eyes. The place was thronged with his workmen, his people, and their families. Suddenly he glimpsed his great corporation houses across the street. Or were they his? They looked like flower gardens. Rose-of-Morn petunias, heliotrope, geraniums rioted in every window. Voices buzzed eagerly 'round him. They were talking about such silly things as lamps to read by evenings, flowers to wake 'em up in the morning. Livermore rubbed his eyes again. There they were, Lissa and Hildur Anderson, serving hot chowder and coffee, hundreds of sandwiches. There was ice cream in the offing and man-size doughnuts and hunks of cheese.

That night, humbly, as a very lowly subject might approach a much-loved queen, Horace Livermore asked Lissa about it. She only laughed gaily and said she couldn't possibly spend a third of her allowance unless she bought window boxes. She adored picnics, and weren't the folks in his mills wonderful! She ended with, "And they're going to stay, too."

"Yes, little Lissa," said Horace Livermore gently, "they're going to stay."

The next day Mrs. Horace, senior, asked Melissa's advice about making a chintz covering for her davenport, and about planting riots of roses all over the place.

To the Rescue

By Claire Wesson

JENNY happily hummed a little tune as she stepped briskly around her cozy, shining kitchen. The small, home-made pine table in the center of the blue rag rug was all set for supper for three. She glanced at the old clock on the shelf by the window. Three minutes past 6. Andy would soon be home now if the time was right. She certainly must remember to get that clock fixed. The alarm went off whenever the shelf was jiggled, and the little three-room cottage was so near the street that the noise startled people passing by.

She peeped into her oven door. The macaroni and cheese was getting a delicious-looking brown on the top, and the scalloped tomatoes were almost ready. How Andy did enjoy her cooking! And she didn't have to be quite so careful about the cost, either, since Johnny had had his beat changed to this section and could come in for dinner and supper. He paid well, Brother Johnny with his policeman's wages.

Everything was ready now. Um-m-m! Supper did smell good! She peeped out behind the muslin ruffled curtains, and saw a machine draw up at the curb. How nice! Some one must have given Andy a lift. She rushed to the oven, and with her little briar-stitched holder, brought out one of the sizzling hot dishes. Why! What—

The door was burst open violently, and the macaroni and cheese crashed to the floor.

"Throttle the skirt, Mike, 'fore she yells."

Jenny's paralyzed throat failed her, in a moment she was gagged and tied in Andy's arm-chair by the window. Her bewildered eyes stared blankly at a dirty, unshaven, evil-looking man throwing her cupboard drawers on the floor. He disappeared into the small bedroom.

"Keep still or you'll croak."

Jenny's eyes strained toward the second voice. Why! There was Andy, gagged and tied, with torn clothes and a revolver pushed against his stomach by a vicious-looking little creature who was snarling: "Get a hustle on, Mike. That money's here. You know yourself how we followed him this noon. When he left that cop and we had a chance to get him, he'd emptied the bag, and this is the only place he stopped. Where is it, you! Come on! Lead us to it! We kept you till dark to play safe, but it's murder now if you don't show us the boodle."

"Wait a minute, Pete. Here's a little. Just—"

Some of the mortgage money that hadn't got to bank! If they'd only take it and go! That frightful revolver! Andy! They'd kill Andy! What to do? What—the clock—could she move enough to jar it? The'd shoot her when the alarm began, but maybe they'd rush away before they finished up her husband.

Dear Andy! She couldn't even look good-by to him—they'd jammed his cap down over his face so. If she could push the chair against the window ledge hard! She strained to get her feet to the floor, strained till the rope cut through the skin of her legs. There! Crash! She'd done it! The alarm was going! She—There was a sharp report, and Jenny went limp in the chair. Wet and red! Blood all around! Andy fighting! Someone was smashing through the door! Johnny! More shots! her table was down now. She couldn't seem to see any more. She—

It was almost an hour later before she opened heavy eyes in her disordered bedroom and saw Andy crouching by the bed. Was it Andy? His eyes was green and black and blue; his head was bandaged. Her arm was in a splint, and she seemed to be in bed. She began to cry weakly.

"Jenny, girl, don't. It's all right. The patrol wagon took them away long ago. The doctor has us all fixed up. Listen, Jenny. There's been a reward out for those two and you and I and Johnny get it. It'll pay off the rest of the mortgage and give us a tidy sum in the bank. Johnny heard the shots and came on a tear. Jenny, if you're only all right it'll be fine. Simpson phoned—they were worried about me this afternoon. I'm to get a raise. O, Jenny, girl, we'll—"

"Did they break any of my blue dishes?" asked the wife, settling comfortably into the pillow.

In Allah Alone Is Perfection

By Monte Darrell

FERNANDE was the cashier. Fernande loved and coveted the prayer rug the moment her eyes fell upon it, which was nothing at all unusual. Fernande was forever loving and coveting one or another of the beautiful objects d'art with which the great show rooms of Robert Amory & Sons Company were filled.

Eyes rounded in wonder at this last lovely addition to the stock, and a little smile pulling at the corners of her mouth, she was saying to herself, "Once more, old girl, your yearnings are outrunning your earnings," when Mr. Farley Phipps, having exchanged his Fedora for a small black skull cap, his street coat for a gray smock, paused a moment before a Louis Quinze mirror to adjust the knot in a polychromatic tie before approaching her.

"Ah, now, Miss, there's something that We (using the proprietary tone often assumed by underlings) "are particularly proud of. Just in. A Khilim. A genuine personage prayer rug."

"But, Phippsy, see, it's torn—does that harm it any?" No reply, but his smirk implied that her question showed the extent of her ignorance. She wished he would speak further about the rug to her just as he would later to some prospective customer: point out the marks by which a connoisseur like him could classify and date it, judge its history and its value. He knew such a limitless lot about such things. But Mr. Phipps had passed indifferently and Fernande reluctantly entered her cashier's cage.

A wonderful rug. As the days passed she saw it often, marvelling that it did not sell. Once she overheard Mr. Phipps make a price on it to Mrs. James J. Maxwell. To Fernande's amazement, she had sniffed contemptuously and walked away with the tread of a Percheron.

"The more they got the tighter they hold on to it," Mr. Phipps muttered aggrievedly. And Fernande in her cashier's cage was thinking that even if she should hold on to every penny of the amount that her mother gave her from her pay each week, it would take her over five years to save up the amount that Mr. Phipps had mentioned.

A lovely rug. A marvel of magical colors softly blended, time mellowed. Ten square feet of carpet woven with fine artistry. Its satiny sheen and mellow richness made it conspicuously beautiful. And yet it did not sell. Fernande overheard Mr. Phipps tell Mr. Amory he hadn't been able to "move it."

"Put it in the window, then," directed Mr. Amory.

To a low-toned question from Mr. Phipps she heard him roar: "No—no price tag on it—this isn't a five and ten-cent store."

That night after she ran across the sidewalk to Henry Myers, patiently waiting for her in his old rattle-trap of a car she called "Red and Rough-y," and insisted that he come look at the rug.

To her "Oh, Hunky, did you ever see anything so beautiful in all your life?" he replied. "Yeh, 'tis right pretty," in the same indifferent tone that he had said the incomparable blue roadster in the auto show was pretty, in the same guarded, unenthusiastic way that he had said the dream of an iridescent tulle dress in Madame Couture's show window was pretty.

At if sensing her exasperation and attempting to reinstate himself in favor, he brought his bank book over that night to show her.

"Oh, Hunky, such a lot of money. Enough to buy the prayer rug."

"Prayer rug nothing. That's got to furnish us all up." He added, seeing the disappointment in her eyes: "I want you to have everything of the best."

He could see no connection between what he had said or done and the angry tears that filled her eyes; the contemptuous way she handed him his bank book.

Neither the prayer rug nor the bank book was mentioned again, but the episode Fernande thought, had demonstrated the utter uncongeniality of their tastes. Not, she told herself, that she would have him buy the prayer rug with the money he had saved, but she wished he would admire pretty things and want them a little bit as she did.

It was at this time of unfriendliness between them that the rug was sold. Returning from lunch two days before Christmas, Fernande missed it from the window. She guessed from Mr. Phipps' complacent and self-satisfied air that he had made the sale. On her desk she found the sale slip with the memorandum: "To Be Repaired and Called For." Fernande had not realized before that moment how much the rug had meant to her. What must it be like to have the power to buy such beautiful things for yourself?

The busy afternoon wore on. Discontent engulfed her. Every sales slip that came to her desk increased her grievance.

During the afternoon an errand took Fernande to the workroom on the third floor. There, before a large front window, a Syrian weaver was expertly repairing the rug. His English was very poor, but Fernande knew how glad he always was of an opportunity to use it and made a practice of stopping at his frame whenever she came to the workroom.

Today he was more voluble than usual, inspired by the rare beauties of the rug upon which he worked. He was glad to expound to a willing ear the beautiful symbolism of the Tree of Life pattern, the purity of the design, the perfection of its weaving. It had been the personal property of a young girl 15 years old, he said. He knew this from certain characters woven in the border, he explained.

"Perhaps you can tell me something Hachig. I have always wanted to know about the rugs made in your country. Why is the pattern always crooked or irregular in some way?"

"Ah, Miss, 'tis most simple. I explain. My countrymen he never make something entirely perfect, for we know that in Allah alone is perfection."

In Allah alone is perfection. Ah, how true that was! Suddenly it came to her that she had been making the mistake of expecting perfection in Henry. She had discounted his steadfastness, his integrity, because he lacked connoisseurship in matters of art. She gave a little skip as she left the elevator. Two minutes of 5. In just 62 minutes now she would see Henry. Her mind was busy, turning over various little overtures for reconciliation.

"I am glad it is good form not to wear a watch with a dress suit."

"Why?"

"Because I never have my watch and my dress suit at the same time."

"I'm going through the old poets."

Mr. Newlyrich—"Just like you. As if we couldn't afford all the brand new ones."

Love Isn't a Game

By Hazel Courtney

PETER'S mouth was warm and kind. So the girl-dear let him kiss her. She wondered, slightly—"Is this love?"—because her heart wasn't beating quite so hard as the books on that sort of thing would have it. But, anyhow, his arms were strong; she felt absurdly at peace resting there. It must be love, she thought for a little while. So when he'd gone, she wrote a poem about it. A lovely poem—and had a beautiful time writing it.

The next evening, when Peter was over, she let him see it. It was called very simply, "Song," and these were the words of it:

My heart is smothered with smold'ring fires—
A satyr lit them there.
He gathered the coals in the devil's shop
And fanned them hard as he dare!
Oh, soul of a nun that once was mine—
(His mouth was warm and kind)—
You'll never be mine again, again,
And oh! I do not mind.

Peter read it carefully and then quirked an eyebrow at her. Tenderly, he held her face between his hands, tenderly, he kissed her mouth.

So the days dribbled by and the girl-dear played with Peter, and one day she realized that he thought she loved him. Of course, he'd think so. Her arms had become used to sliding so easily about his neck—he had a marvelous technique, you know—and she has never played this game before. But she learned quickly. Anyhow, she knew it was just a game, a delightful one. She wondered, sometimes anxiously, how it would end. But it was such a glorious adventure while it lasted. So she played hard, and—as I say—he grew to think that she loved him.

Here entereth the dark lady. Before he'd ever met the girl-dear, Peter had known a lovely lady called Suzanne. Then one day the two girls met, and the girl-dear decided that she must withdraw in favor of the lovely lady. Because Suzanne was very sweet, in spite of a bit of a temper, and she really cared for Peter.

But it was easier to decide to withdraw than really to do it. Because when Peter was being nice—and she'd sort of become used to playing at love with him—she just couldn't disentangle his arms and walk haughtily away. And she hadn't had any experience at getting out of these affairs, either, so everything sort of drifted spasmodically. Now we're not. And Peter grew to confiding in her his difficulties with Suzanne. And she was difficult. And the girl-dear got to thinking of Suzanne as an opponent in the game.

One day, though, she came bang-up against the fact that it wasn't a game to Suzanne. You see, she was knowing the lovely lady better then, and liking her quite a bit. It's one thing, you know, to try to win out against a shadowy rival but quite another thing when the shadowy rival becomes some one you're liking. So she made new resolutions, but when she was with Peter—well, they both somehow forgot Suzanne.

We're going to haul the climax for you now. It came when Peter started feeling sorry for the girl-dear because of her hopeless love for him. Oh, he wasn't as much of an absolutely conceited thing as that sounds,—he had every reason to deduce it from the way that she'd been playing up to him. And she was barred from thinking the same thing about him because of Suzanne. She had guessed that he loved Suzanne as much as he would ever love any one damozel.

Now what would you? If the girl-dear was cold he thought; the poor thing is trying to hide it; if she was nice to him, he knew she cared. And she didn't care and never had cared, but he never would understand.

Fortunately, however, the Fates are kind to fools. Especially to the dear dumb fools. So they sent her Prince o'Dreams-come-true. She didn't play at love any more. They played silly inconsequential games and were very faithful to each other without realizing it.

Peter decided that she was hiding a broken heart behind her merriment. He saw resignation, a life of bittersweet memories for her. So, saddened that he should have caused his maiden a moment's anguish because of her unfortunate affection for him, he returned to his Suzanne. They were married right after that and lived erratically on. The girl-dear, liking both of them, merrily endeavored to put the underpinning back under their ideals whenever one or the other had kicked it out in a burst of temperament. (Of course, Peter knew that she was trying to make life a bit happier for him,—he had become quite cynical by then—he thought.)

The girl-dear forgot all about her helpless wrath at Peter's whimsical ideas and discovered that when you've found the honest-to-goodness sent to you express-from-Heaven man-person, you don't even notice little things like a mouth that's warm and kind. There's just rapture and golden fireworks bursting overhead, and the morning stars singing for joy. So they were married, too, and lived erratically on the both of them kept on thinking that "just living" was heaps of fun and wasn't it lucky that they'd discovered each other and d'you suppose they'd have green peas out of the garden by the 30th this year?

I really think that Suzanne was getting that sort of an enjoyment out of everything, too, taking Peter's shortcomings philosophically and adoring him in spite of them, or perhaps for them. After a while he managed to outgrow some of his poses—and he was horribly nice without them, so we can broadcast for the end of our story that really they did live happily ever after. Because being glad you're alive is happiness, and they all were—each with his own separate conceits—all except the Prince o' Dreams he was just naturally perfect, you know, or so the girl-dear thought. Anyhow, we've proved our point haven't we?—Love isn't a game.

"May I make a confidant of you?"

"Why, certainly!"

"Well, I'm hard up, and I want $20."

"You can trust me; I'm as silent as the grave. I won't say a word."

"Every man likes to hear a clever woman talk."

Winnie—"Yes, the conceited brute! it's because she always talks to him about himself."

Majesty of the Sea

By Joella Johnson

I DON'T know what to do with you," said Agnes Blynn, shaking her head, disconsolately. "You practice music all day and take no interest in the factory whatever."

"Oh, mother!" exclaimed the pretty blond girl at the piano. "Why not admit once for all that I'm not a business woman? I hate the factory. I hate washboards. They depress me; and the noise and disorder make my headache."

"That's all very well," Mrs. Blynn replied, "but the washboard factory has been in the family for generations, and it's valuable. Who is going to run it when I die, if you take no interest in it?"

"You're only 45, and will live to be a hundred, I hope. What's the use of worrying now?"

"If only," persisted Mrs. Blynn, "you'd consider Clarence Bailey. He's the shrewdest manager I've ever had, and he's crazy about you. If you'd marry him, I could leave the factory to you without worrying."

"Mother darling, I'm just about as interested in Clarence as I am in washboards. Both give me a headache."

"It's a problem," mourned Mrs. Blynn. "But I can't discuss it any more now. I'm needed at the office."

Beatrice Blynn watched her mother's departure with regret. It seemed pitiful that thy couldn't get along better—when they had only each other. But Mrs. Blynn, lovable as she was, had no ear for music. The roar of the machinery in the factory appealed to her far more, while Beatrice had inherited from her father an intense love of melody. This new piece now. She took it up, began fingering the music, and presently she forgot Clarence, forgot washboards, forgot even her mother, in the joy of the music she involked.

In the house across the street Jerome Wentworth walked to the window and took a deep breath of flower-scented air. Here, in the quiet beauty of New England Summer, he felt he could do some real work. He hummed a few bars of the symphony on which he was busy; then paused, abruptly. On the other side of the street someone was playing his "Majesty of the Sea" with a passionate fervor that held him spell-bound. He waited until the unseen performer was through; then, obeying a blind impulse, he crossed the street, opened the screen door that separated the player from the wide world, and entered a room where a girl was seated at a piano, her head bowed over the keys.

"Who—who taught you to play?" he asked.

Beatrice Blynn turned a startled face to him, and rose, in alarm, from her stool.

Mr. Wentworth reminded himself that gentlemen were not in the habit of entering a house unbidden. "I beg your pardon," said he. "I am Jerome Wentworth. You played my music so beautifully that I forgot myself. I should have knocked, of course."

"Not Jerome Wentworth, the composer?" she asked in awed accents.

"The same. I would like to teach you. I can make a great artist out of you."

"Do you really think so? And you will teach me? I will work so hard."

"I know. You have an artist's soul," he said.

The Summer was over, and Jerome Wentworth was giving Beatrice her last lesson.

"You have done well!" said he, approvingly, when she was through. "And now—I will have to turn you over to Cherini for the finishing touches."

Her face paled. "I will not go!" she said. "I—I don't want—any teacher but you. I should be—broken hearted—if you left me." Suddenly her cheeks turned a vivid pink. The tears came to her eyes. She turned her head away to hide them.

He took her in his arms. "You wonderful child! Did you think I would actually surrender you to another? I was only—"

He paused. Agnes Blynn stood in the doorway, regarding them with stern, questioning eyes.

"What does this mean?" she asked.

"It means," said the composer, gently, "that your daughter is going to marry me, and that I'm the happiest man on earth!"

"Oh, mother dear!" said Beatrice, "I'm sorry to leave you, but—" she turned shyly to Wentworth—"I love him, and he is going to make a great artist out of me."

"I shall have to submit, I suppose," said Mrs. Blynn, after a thoughtful pause, "but, of course, I did think—the factory—" She wiped her eyes, and left the room.

Five years later Mrs. Agnes Blynn arrived at the home of her daughter for her annual visit, a custom she had formed since the arrival of the Wentworth twins. She had brought gifts for Jerome a toy piano—on which he immediately began to pick out melodies—and for Thomas, named after her own father, a mill that was a tiny imitation of the washboard factory—and made as much racket. In the midst of the appalling din Beatrice rushed in.

"So glad you're here, mother dear," said she, kissing her tenderly. "If it hadn't been such an important concert I'd have been at the station to meet you, though I know you don't miss me when you have the babies. I see you've brought appropriate gifts, as usual. How happy Tommy is with his mill, bless his heart! And how happy you are that he likes it! Mother, confess, you really love Tommy better, than Jerome!"

"I love them both," insisted Mrs. Blynn.

"I know, but honestly—in the bottom of your heart—aren't you glad he's like grandpa in more than looks?"

Agnes Blynn's face flushed. "I can't help being glad he's of a practical turn of mind."

Beatrice laughed. "I knew it. And it makes me so happy that I've atoned for the disappointment you suffered through me—by providing you with an heir for the factory."

Byron—I suppose he wants the earth.

Mrs. Byron—No; he wants the air—a radio set.

Children Love It

How the children love the well roasted nutty flavor of Heinz Peanut Butter! Spread their bread thick—and then spread another slice. It is better for the little folks than sweets — and often they'd rather have it.

Heinz knows just how to bring out the delicious flavor of the peanuts themselves. Little round Spanish peanuts and the larger fat Virginia nuts—carefully selected and blended—just enough of each roasted to the very second when they are exactly right. Then, after the bitter hearts and skins have been removed, they are ground to a smooth, creamy butter and a pinch of salt is added.

Let the children have plenty—all they want. It is as good as it tastes—and that's mighty, mighty good.

Whole Hope Of World's Peace In U. S.-England

English-Speaking Peoples In Alliance Future Need, Says London Banker

Some Such Check Must Come To Save Europe From Turmoil

By COLE E. MORGAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 27.—"The whole hope of the future peace of the world lies in England and America coming together. If the English speaking people will stand shoulder to shoulder we will not have any more wars."

This straight-forward declaration in favor of an English speaking alliance for world security, was voiced here by Alwyn Parker, C. B., C. M. G., director of Lloyds Bank, Ltd., of London, while in Washington as a member of the British commercial party now touring the United States.

Sees Turmoil Ahead

But without some such check, Parker, who spent 19 years in the British diplomatic service before joining Lloyds in 1919 just after the Paris peace conference, sees turmoil ahead for Europe. The map of Europe, he says, must be remade to correct the blunders of the Versailles treaty. If it cannot be brought about through peaceful negotiations it will come through war. To quote Parker's own words:

"There is bound to come a change. The Eastern frontiers of Europe cannot stand as they are today," said Parker.

"There is no doubt that the East of Germany cannot be permanently cut off from the rest of the country. East and West Prussia must be united. It is absurd to have them separated as they are today, by the Danzig corridor given to Poland.

'The dismemberment of Austria and Hungary was carried too far. Sooner or later Rumania will have to give back some of the Transylvania territory taken from Hungary.

Boundary Problems

"It is difficult to say whether Czechoslovakia will remain apart from Austria. Jugoslavia probably will stand. There has been marked progress in the amalgamation of the Serbs, Croates and Slovenes.

'The future of Albania is a problem. I believe it eventually will be absorbed by Jugoslavia. But one cannot tell what Mussolini will do.

"The Versailles treaty wiped out boundaries and ignored the history of peoples who had been living under the same rule for 600 years. It is natural that with that background they will come together again.

"Commerce in Europe must flow in certain natural channels. It is an economic condition that politicians cannot alter."

U. S. Universities Get 24 Honor Men From Great Britain

(International News Service)

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. May 27.—Harvard University will receive four of the twenty honor men graduates of British Universities who have been awarded Commonwealth Fund fellowships entitling them to two years' study in American universities.

Three of the graduates will go to Columbia, two each to Princeton, Pennsylvania and John Hopkins, and the remaining seven will go to seven different American educational instructions.

Fellowships have been awarded to three women this year and two will go to Yale and the third to Clark University.

The awards this year, as previously, were made by a committee of leading British educators, with His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, who has from the beginning taken a deep interest in this project, as honorary chairman, and Sir Walter Buchanan-Riddell, principal of Hertford College, Oxford, as chairman.

This is the third annual group of Commonwealth Fund awards. Counting the new students with the forty Commonwealth Fund Fellows now in this country, the total number is sixty-three of whom ten have elected to work at Harvard, eight at Yale, eight at Columbia, six at Cornell, five at California, four at Chicago, four at John Hopkins, three at Princeton, three at Pennsylvania, two each at Wisconsin, Stanford and Michigan, and one each at Illinois, Minnesota, Clark, North Carolina, and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. One is carrying on special research at the United States Bureau of Standards.

The first twenty Fellows appointed in 1925 will finish their studies and return to England this summer.

Painted Her Body With Shoe Polish, English Girl Says

MAIDSTONE, Eng., May 27—Miss Jean Olds, a London hair dresser, told the court how Sir. Gerald Maxwell-Willshire was alleged to have taken her riding in his automobile, overpowering her in a wood and painted her body with shoe polish or stove blacking after removing her clothes.

The charge against the baronet was assault. Sir Gerald permitted her to retain only her shoes and stockings. Miss Olds said. He was alleged to have left her roaming in the woods clad in the blacking and shoes and stockings until she found a cottage and was assisted. Miss Olds said she was bound and gagged.

A statement in behalf of Sir Gerald was read in which he said he was intoxicated and remembered nothing for an hour prior to the alleged assault. He was committed for trial after pleading not guilty and was granted bail.

Exploiting Girls In College Sports Condemned By Director Of Health

Exploiting
By E. L. RAWLEY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA May 27—The exploitation of girls in athletics by colleges and universities was condemned by Miss C. Anita Preston, associate director of the Department of Health of Temple University in commenting upon the modern tendencies in women's athletics.

"Too many misguided institutions," Miss Preston declared, "have forced girls into unnatural situations and urged them to fight 'for glory and honor of the school.' Such institutions probably have been more concerned with their own reputations than with the welfare of the girls themselves.

"In the desire to win they forget to make sure that the girls are physically able to stand the strain," Miss Preston continued. "It is a sad truth that there are still many so-called "educational institutions" which lose sight of their educational aims through exploitating girls in athletics.

Conditions Hopeful

"Conditions are becoming more hopeful however," the instructress added. "No longer do we have a few hard-pressed girls on the field, straining heart and soul to win at the instigation of hundreds of shouting anemic others on the side lines. Here we now have everyone on the field and the side lines cease to exist."

This result, Miss Preston explained, has been brought about through the adoption of " sport days" or "play days."

"The password to approved modern athletics is mass participation—the opportunity for every girl to be active in a game sport—the chance for each to obtain the benefits derived from a sane, wholesome program.

Variety of Sports

"Leading schools and colleges, instead of having one team, or even a first and second team, have a great variety of games, so that hundreds of girls have a chance to participate. By this plan many more girls have all the advantages of the old-time favored 'varsity players,' with some of the dangers or disadvantages.

"After all, what does it matter," concluded Miss Preston, "if we can produce one girl who is an Olympic champion, one who can swim the English Channel, or a championship team? It does matter, however, whether we teach every girl to run, jump, and throw easily, and to swim the length of the pool."

And about nine years ago people began to wonder what newspapers would find to print when the war was over.

Old Castle Is Now Movie House

(International News Service)

VIENNA, May 27.—The glory of the Hofburg, the ancient residence of the House of Hapsburg, is fading. Like the Yildis Kiosk of the Sultans, it is to be converted into an amusement place, and will be turned soon into a movie theatre, a dance hall, a cafe and a restaurant.

Parts of the old wings of the castle were previously converted into offices soon after the revolution.

South Dakota Citizenry Prepares Welcome For Presidential Party

Sacred Land Of Sioux Indians To Be Summer Home For Nation's Executive

(International News Service)

CUSTER, S. D., May 27.—The Black Hills of South Dakota—sacred land of the Sioux—today were prepared to receive President and Mrs. Coolidge into their midst for three months of rest and recreation. Everything has been placed in readiness to welcome the presidential party to "America's last frontier."

This summer's "White House" is to be located at the state game lodge, 4,200 feet up in the fastness of the mountains which figured so prominently in the pioneer's struggle for national expansion a century ago. All about the president's summer home are the spots which once so well knew Buffalo Bill, "Calamity Jane," "Wild Bill" and other figures of the departed wild west.

The state game lodge, a thirty-room tourist hotel operated by the state, fourteen miles from here, is in the center of a 125,000 acre game preserve set aside by South Dakota. Thirty-odd miles to the northeast is Rapid City, where the temporary executive offices will be maintained and the retinue accompanying the president quartered. Trout abound in the mountain streams. From the front verandah of the lodge, the President and Mrs. Coolidge may observe, feeding unmolested, such wild game of a departed era as buffalo, elk, deer, big horn sheep, wild turkey, partridge and grouse.

Urges Establishment Of Reserve Banks Throughout World

Official Says Commercial Banking Is Highly Developed

(International News Service)

DETROIT, May 27.—As a means of stimulating this country's foreign business, J. S. H. Kerr, vice president of the Security Trust and Savings bank of Los Angeles, today recommended that Federal Reserve banks establish branches at strategic points throughout the world, using this purposes the surplus capital they now carry unemployed.

Kerr was one of the speakers at various group sessions held by the National Foreign Trade convention.

Commercial banking has been highly developed in the United States, he pointed out.

"But," added, "It is a fact that, with few exceptions, this country is sadly deficient in financial institutions that can become factors in foreign countries in the pioneer developments of foreign commerce and its subsequent maintanance."

Only eleven American banks, practically all located in New York, are directly represented abroad, a recent investigation showed, he said.

Gilbert H. Montague, member of the New York bar, addressing another group, said that conditions abroad may soon develop that may make it desirable for American exports to abandon their present individualistic attitude, and to an agreement with one another regarding prices to be charged for orders to allotted in foreign markets.

More money was expended last year for cosmetics or chewing gun than was given to educational institutions. Our money goes for that which we want most.

Every time a nation collects the largest standing army in the world's history, the has-beens move over to make room for a new one.

Seniors To Sing At Old Main Site

Traditional Event Of Commencement Week To Take Place Tonight

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., May 27.—What might be termed the opening event of commencement exercises at Westminster college, will take place Friday evening, when the graduating class gives the traditional senior sing.

For years, the graduating classes have given their sing on the south steps of Old Main. However, Westminster no longer possesses the historic building, but this year's class will assemble where the south steps formerly were.

The program of college songs will start at 7 o'clock, Eastern standard time. The seniors will assemble at the Conservatory of Music, marching in caps and gowns to the site of their sing.

Arrangements for the sing were completed by the committee composed of Miss Mary Smith of New Wilmington, chairman, Miss Willa Boyd of New Wilmington, and Robert Ferguson of Bellevue.

Students Take Part In Recital

Sixty Boys And Girls In Class Giving Recital At Y. W. C. A. Thursday

Some 60 boys and girls formed a most interesting class of music students in the Y. W. C. A. Thursday evening when the Melody Way class of the Snyder Piano company presented a recital following the completion of the preliminary ten lesson course prescribed

The company started the course with the idea of inculcating in the minds and hearts of the boys and girls a desire for music, hoping that after the preliminary lessons they would continue under the instruction of one of the many competent teachers in the city. This idea seems in a fair way to be realized.

The program was a lengthy one many of the students taking part. The evening was in charge of Miss Isabel Zehner assisted by Mrs. Elizabeth Martin Fleming and Miss Frances Mellor. The complete list of students follows:

Nellie Horton, Rose Rice, Arthur Llewellyn, Billy Hilton, Bert Hilton, Virginia Maceaiella. Dorothy Hunter, Mary Lally, Thelma Hiles, Cora May Boston, Ruth Llewellyn, Mary Gretta Jackson,, Mary Louise Flynn, Billy Pattison, Jean Tinsley Richard Tauney, Robert Ferrel, Marjorie Pattison, Sam Fray, Billy Glenn.

FIRST M. E. BUYS ELECTRIC HOME

Beautiful Home On Highland Avenue Is Purchased For Parsonage

At the morning services of the First Methodist Episcopal church on Sunday, May 29, an offering will be received from the congregation to complete the payment on the new parsonage recently purchased for the pastor of the church, according to announcement by the official board of the church.

The new parsonage, which was known as the Electric Home, is located on the corner of Highland avenue and Clenmore boulevard, and was obtained by the exchange of two other properties belonging to the church and an additional amount of about $10,000. Over half of this amount was voluntary pledged at the meeting of the official board in April and it is hoped that the congregation in their offering on Sunday will be able to make up the balance.

Although the residence was known as the Electric House it is not much different from any other residence in its equipment. After it was built last year it obtained the name because of a demonstration made there by the installing of all modern electrical appliances including electric stoves, electric refrigerators, etc. Many people visited the home when it was thus equipped for the demonstration.

The church has added to the property by the building of a garage and driveway and thus a very nice home has been secured for the pastor of the church.

Sends Gardener $125 To Repair Act Of Vandalism

JAMESTOWN, Pa., May 27. — Conscience stricken, some unknown party who committed acts of vandalism in Lake View cemetery, has repaired the damage done to some extent.

A few weeks ago shrubbery was torn from the roots in several family plots. Police were notified, but obtained no trace of the culprit. Yesterday a local landscape gardener received an unsigned letter, asking that the shrubbery be replaced. The sum of $125 in bills was enclosed.

Elephants Are Scarce In Native Jungles

Elephant hunting in the jungles of India is becoming more difficult because of the thinning of the herds. There was a time, not many years ago, when the elephant drive always yielded a good harvest, say one hundred or more young ones, from which a number of perfect specimens could be selected. But now the hunters are fortunate if they get eight or nine good ones from a hunt.

Some of the young elephants are selected for training and are divided into groups of various numbers, depending upon the circus acts for which they are to be used. Others are taught to carry a howdah and allow children to ride on their backs.

Elephants always are caught in the dry season, says John T. Benson in Popular Mechanics Magazine. At that time their natural food is the poorest and they have to tramp for miles to get a good meal. As a result, they are in poor condition and have to be fed for weeks before they can stand their first sea voyage.

Elephants are subject to numerous ills. They require much nursing, but once they become acclimated they will, with proper care, live to a great age.

Matrimony is made compulsory in Turkey, which seems like a strange proceeding in view of the eagerness of some Turks to take numerous wives.

Scout Activities

FLYING EAGLE PATROL

Members of the Flying Eagle Patrol, Troop 15, met at the home of Stewart Loveridge, Harrison street, Wednesday evening, May 25. Before the meeting, several pictures were taken of the patrol. The meeting was in charge of Scoutmaster Sidney Smith. The following members passed tests:

Herbert Rogers, First Aid; Stewart Loveridge, First Aid; James McKee, Signaling and First Aid; Elliot Francis, First Aid; Vance Glenn, First Aid; Harold Jones, First Aid and Mariners Compass. Following the business meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. Loveridge in honor of her son's birthday. The next meeting will be held Wednesday, June 1, at the home of James Snyder, Cumberland avenue.

Harold Jones.

CAMPOREE

The Annual Camporee of the Lawrence County Boy Scout Council, which is held for the purpose of demonstrating real Scouting, is now only two weeks away. All the patrols entered are very busy practicing on the various tests and subjects which are included in the Camporee examinations. The entrants are basing their efforts on the Second and First Class requirements.

In addition to the examinations on the class requirements, inspections of various kinds are made, including personal inspection, inspection of equipment, campcraft inspection, including use of camp site, equipment and its use, and food, also safety and sanitation inspections, and programs, activities, organization and leadership. Because of having out-of-town judges, the Council can guarantee a fair deal in the findings and results. Judging will be based on the National regulations.

CAMP

According to the number of registrations that are being received in the local office for camp, it is expected that the camp periods will be filled. All the boys are anxious to be a member of the Indian village or the stockades, and are looking forward to the contests that will be held between the stockades and the village.

"After the rain comes the sunshine" is an old adage and we believe this is going to be proved this year.' After having had so much rain the sun will come out and then the scouts will hurry to get to camp to play golf, tennis, baseball, croquette, horse shoes and so many other games it is hard to mention them all. Of course, swimming and eating are not such minor details of Camp John M. Phillips either.

Hurry your registrations boys or you will be at home when the hot weather comes and the other boys are at camp enjoying themselves to the fullest extent.

NEW WILMINGTON TROOP 1

The regular weekly meeting of the New Wilmington Troop 1, was held Tuesday evening outdoors. Scoutmaster Jack Hulme was in charge of the large number of scouts present, assisted by Edward Brown, Assistant Scoutmaster.

After the business meeting plans for attending camp were discussed. Due to the rain the meeting was adjourned at an early hour.

Scribe—Fay Dresh.

NOTICE TROOP 5.

The Elks troop 5 will meet this evening at the Elks Club for a very Ralph F. Davis has called the meeting and urges a full attendance. The Troop Committeemen are also urged to be present.

TROOP 14 GET-TO-GETHER MEETING

This evening at eight o'clock will be held a very important meeting of the members of the Y. W. C. A. troop 14 and the parents. The meeting will be held at the Elm street Branch of the Y. W. C. A.

Several important speakers, including Mr. W. G. Ayers, Assistant Chairman of the Camp Committee, will be present to explain the advantages of Camp John M. Phillips and to create a larger enthusiasm in Scout Work and to better acquaint the parents with the work the Scouts are doing. Camp registrations will be urged.

TROOP 13.

The Lions troop 13 met at the Scotland Lane School last night with a large number of scouts present. The meeting was in charge of Peter Grittie, Scoutmaster, and Jack Grittie, Assistant Scoutmaster.

Several scout games were played and enjoyed. Plans have been completed for the Birthday party to be held by the troop next Wednesday, June 1. All scouts having forest guide badges will please return them to the scoutmaster by Tuesday, May 31, with the name attached.

The following boys of the troop will report this evening at the Greenwood cemetery for service: Thomas Grittie, Henry Grittie, John Severa, Richard Broschart, Francis Davis, James Hannon, Lloyd Clark and George Fox.

The following boys are to report Memorial Day morning for service: Thomas Grittie, Edgar Graham, Henry Grittie, Howard Kelso, George Fox, Clair Kelso, Richard Broschart, Lloyd Clark, Lynn White, James Henley, Scott Morrison, Kenneth Clark, Robert Wallace, Lewis Hannon, John Henley, Edward Sontum, Wilbur Robbison, William Patterson, Clyde Fabian, Robert Chamberlain and Ronald Horchler. The boys are asked by the Scoutmaster to bring shovels, buckets, shears and cycles.

ALL SCOUTS PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

All schools of New Castle will be dismissed for the entire day, Monday, May 30, Memorial Day, therefore scouts are to report at the various cemeteries assigned at a convenient hour in the morning.

The work of the scouts is free and any one should feel free to call upon them to do any desired duty, as the scouts will appreciate this opportunity to do a good turn.

DR. ROBT. SPEER NOW PRESIDING

Elected Moderator Of Presbyterian General Assembly At San Francisco

(International News Service)
SAN FRANCISCO, May 27.—Dr. Robert E. Speer, newly elected moderator of the Presbyterian church, was expected today to guide the meeting of the General Assembly, now in progress here, away from any factional or doctrinal controversies.

The election of Dr. Speer by acclamation showed, it was said, the rift between the modernists and the fundamentalists can be closed when the welfare of the church requires it.

Dr. Speer was elected without opposition. J. Willison Smith of Philadelphia, considered Speer's strongest rival for the position, placed Speer's name in nomination.

In addition to making appointments and calling for the reports of committees, Dr. Speer and the General Assembly will hear today the conclusions of a committee of 15 appointed to discover the cause of unrest in the church.

The report of the committee appointed to investigate the "modern" tendencies of the Princeton Theological Seminary will be made tomorrow.

Average Child Of 3 Uses Only 910 Words

Vocabulary Increases To Many Times That Number In But Few Years

How many words can the average child of three be expected to know and to speak? Of four? Of five? Of six?

Do German or French children have larger or smaller vocabularies at this age than American children?

The answer to the first of these questions supplies some interesting facts. It is given by Margaret Morse Nice in American Speech.

American children of three, says Miss Nice, may be expected to have an average vocabulary of 910 words. Nineteen tested showed all the way from 48 at the low peak to 1807 at the maximum. Figures for French children, at this age, are not supplied. But a German body is said to have a vocabulary of 1,-142 words, thus rising superior to his American cousin.

Eleven American boys and girls of four years tested showed a mastery of language ranging from a low figure of 811 to a high of 2,777. They averaged 1,516. While French children of the same age showed an average of 1,394 and a single German boy 1,604.

At five years there is a noticeable spurt in the children grasp of language. Seven Americans ranged from 1,528 words to 5,948, an average for the group of 2,204, leading somewhat both the French child and the German, who had respectively 1,954 and 1,910.

Children of six years showed progress, but not so rapid as in earlier years. American boys and girls knew from 2,688 to 3,132 words. They averaged 2,963, which is slightly higher than that showed by the German boy—2,497. There are no figures for the French boy at this age.

Tribute to Lindy

Have you a friend who paints? Maybe, then, you can have a slicker like that of Janette Gilmore, of New York. Charles Lindbergh's picture is painted on it.

Proposes Lindbergh Be Made Special U. S. Ambassador

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, May 27.—Captain Charles Lindbergh, the "lone eagle" of the Atlantic, was proposed today as a special American ambassador to Europe.

Senator Peter Norbeck, Republican, of South Dakota, who like Lindbergh is a descendant of the Vikings, declared the "lone eagle" would do more to cement friendly relations between America and European powers than any of the regularly appointed ambassadors. Norbeck suggested the administration give Lindbergh a commission as ambassador so he might visit all the capitals of Europe.

"Lindbergh won world fame by his remarkable feat in crossing the Atlantic," said Norbeck. "His glory is reflected upon America. His winning personality, his lovable youth and his tremendous courage endear him to the hearts of all who meet him. He has completely won France.

"If this is the test of his ability we should send him to many more countries. He would be the best ambassador America could have for the cementing of friendly relations with the other nations of the world."

White Way Lights Are Turned On At New Wilmington

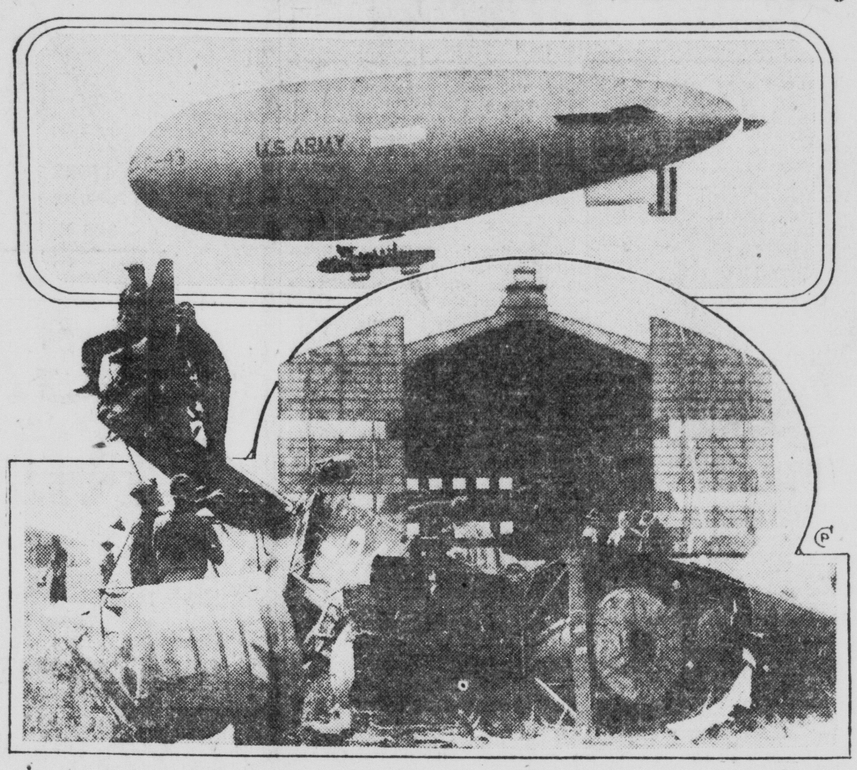
(Special To The News)
NEW WILMINGTON, May 27.—The current was turned on the New Wilmington White Way for the first time Thursday and made a very fine showing. Market street is lighted with the new system from the diamond to the south end of the college campus.

The lamps used are 400 candlepower and are a very great improvement over the old system.

So much difference is shown that already there is a petition being circulated to double the number at least on the main business blocks.

Modern philosophers are trying to trace some connection between sex and saxophone, but have only succeeded so far in showing that both are horrible.—The Baltimore Sun.

DIRIGIBLE WRECKED BY TANGLED CABLE



Jerked into two parts when its mooring cable became entangled inside a rail as it began a flight from Brooks Field, San Antonio, Tex., to Scott Field, Ill., the U. S. Army dirigible "TC-10-243" is a complete wreck, although Major H. A. Strauss and his crew of five men escaped injury. Top photo shows the dirigible in the air. Below is the wreckage of the big ship at Brooks Field. The crew was caught beneath the gas bag when it fell, but all its members managed to scramble to safety before the 200,000 feet of helium gas was lost and the bag completely collapsed.

Umbrella Boys Reap Harvest When It Rains

Enterprising Youngsters Are Busy At Station Exists In New York

When it rains youngsters crowd the subway and elevated exits, crying "Umbrella! Umbrella!" The rain protectors are not for sale. Those who, lacking a raincoat or their own umbrella, wish to get home dry are escorted by the boys, who guarantee to shield them on the way. Then they quickly return to their post at the station to wait for more customers says the New York Times.

The boys themselves are safely clothed against the rain. Some of those who have made a little profession of it are well equipped to stand not only the water but the cold. They wear overshoes and sometimes rubber boots reaching to the knees. Taking a hint from the police officer, they cover their heads with large-sized caps of rubber or rubberized cloth, generally with a wide flap on the back to cover the neck and part of the shoulders. Some can afford raincoats, but others must be content with last year's tattered overcoat, which they button up to the chin for further protection.

The item of the umbrella, however, is the most important, and some boys have been known to resort to various tricks in order to keep the family umbrella handy for their business. As soon as the first patter of rain is heard on the window pane the house umbrella disappears, and so, coincidentally, does the boy. All of a sudden, youthful "appointments" have to be kept; school supplies have to be bought or important errands carried out. The boy makes a mad dash for the nearest elevated or subway station, for a very essential point is to beat the others to the spot. If rain has been falling all day, business cannot be so good, for most of the travelers have already provided themselves with protectors, but when it starts to rain toward the end of the afternoon, at the height of the evening rush hour the youngsters are assured plenty of customers.

It is just as well not to have grand opera in Summer. It wouldn't seem natural without the coughs, anyway.

Lindbergh Amazes Scientists With His Sense Of Direction

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to New Castle News.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Charlie Lindbergh can't complain of any lack of popular appreciation of his human qualities, to have become the first non-stop trans-Atlantic flyer in history.

Courage, endurance, aviator's skill, raised to the n'th power—all these are recognized in him generally enough.

But maybe even Lindbergh isn't aware of something which seems to scientists, and especially to experienced navigators, uncanny in his performance — something hinting at an instinct in him that other human beings don't possess; or not many others, at any rate; or, if others do possess it, something that's latent in them as yet, something they haven't discovered in themselves.

Lindbergh evidently has discovered it in himself, but the scientific sharks doubt if he knows it, consciously.

What stumps old navigators, who admit they couldn't do it themselves is to figure out how Charlie found his way across the trackless deep, to exactly the spot where he wanted to land.

He had a compass, yes.

And that's all he did have, to steer by.

Now a compass is all right to point a direction, but that's as far as it goes.

The helmsman who leaves a given port and holds a course dead ahead for a chosen destination, with a compass as his sole guide, ought to make it, if uninfluenced by current or wind, but he always is subject to such influences, and much more so by wind, in the air than on the surface of the sea. Besides, Lindbergh couldn't steer dead ahead, but had to swing far to the northward. His compass couldn't tell him when he'd swung far enough.

A sailor, eastward bound from New York in a surface craft relatively as volatile as an aeroplane, with only a compass and compelled to feel most of his way, like Lindbergh, through thick weather, would consider he'd done well if he hit Europe anywhere between Scandinavia and Gibraltar.

Yet Lindbergh flew straight as a homing pigeon to Paris and appears never to have been more than three miles off his course the whole way.

A navigator calls it "dead reckoning"—a system he has to depend on when clouds hide sun and stars, but a system he dislikes and fears, a system that's sent many's the good surface ship on the rocks.

Ocean aviation's quite a different proposition from land flying, with nature's map spread out below, to guess at, at least.

A sea flight was never dreamed of before without a skilled navigator, equipped with all the paraphernalia known to science, to point the way. Food, radio, landing gear, nearly all else might be sacrificed, but never any of navigation's aids.

Admiral Moffett, head of naval aviation, is quoted to the effect that he's almost prepared to believe Lindbergh could take that compass, fly alone to the North Pole and land right on the hub.

Only, of course, Charlie couldn't prove he'd been to the North Pole, as he can prove by numerous witnesses in Paris that he landed there.

Navy navigators are mighty anxious to ask him how he did it, but they don't believe he can tell. "We think he did it the same way the cat comes back," as one of them expressed it. "The cat does it all right, all right, but you never find out how."

MOVEMENT OF FLOWERS IS NOT YET AFFECTED

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 27—Movement of flowers for use in decorating graves on Memorial Day will not be affected by the Japanese beetle, C. G. Jordan, Secretary of Agriculture, said today. The quarantine does not go into effect until June 15, which experts in the department believe to be ample time to prevent the movement of the dreaded beetles.

Most Accidents At Grade Crossings Occur In Daylight

Railway crossing accidents generally happen in daylight, in the open country where there is no obstruction to the view and at crossings with which the driver is entirely familiar, according to the Safety Bureau of the New York Central Lines.

During the past year 22 per cent of all crossing accidents resulted from the drivers running into the side of trains. A large number of these accidents are due to drivers running through lowered gates, either in front or into the sides of trains. Not infrequently crossing flagmen, who are in the center of the highway to protect the driver, are run down by the motorist and killed.

Motorists are urgently requested to cooperate with the railroads in educating all concerned to the proper realization of the necessity of care in approaching and passing over railroad tracks at grade, always having in mind that all crossings are not protected and whether protected or otherwise they should know the way is clear before attempting to cross.

Feed Wine To Hens, Produce More Eggs

(International News Service)

PARIS, May 27.—More wine means more eggs, according to Monsieur Pages, a French physiologist, who has made recent experiments with giving wine to young chicks and turkeys. He found that good five-year old Burgundy is an excellent tonic for a young chick and that it made hens and capons lay better and gain in weight.

Experiments were conducted on a farm where leghorns are raised and it was shown that pullets at three months old which had been given red wine when chicks and then mash mixed with wine and sugar a little later, were much heavier and fatter than those deprived of this diet. Monsieur Pages recommends a teaspoonful of sweetened five-year-old Burgundy for very young chicks and then a mash mixed with the red liquid.

Never Before

Never in our history, dating back over a quarter of a century have we been privileged to offer anything like the values shown herewith. It has taken us many months of the hardest kind of work to arrange the necessary price concessions with the various factories. Bear in mind these are price concessions on the lines that have sold for years, the instruments on which we have year after year staked our commercial repute and backed with our time and money. This, then, is the stock we are able to offer as savings, real savings, savings that will be a surprise and pleasure to all.

Never Again

We never expect to be able to duplicate this event. First it entails an almost endless effort, riding on trains to the various factories, fighting the prices down, a vast outlay of money for stock. A big event of this character is not just hashed up in a moment and put into execution as a hunch. Events of this kind take long planning and for many months we have been engaged in preparing for this great piano-selling event. The prices tell their own story, but in all probability this is the last time we will ever undertake a merchandising event of this character. This $150,000 piano sale includes all stock at New Castle store; also Pittsburgh store.

$750 Kurtzmann Gold Trim Player

BENCH AND 25 ROLLS FREE

Priced to sell for $750 and only a vast purchase and a desire on the part of the factory to make this merchandising event the greatest of its kind ever attempted in this region has made this price possible.

Remember
The supply is limited. Not limited to one or two, but limited to just exactly 29 and when the last of this number are sold the price ends on this style.

See Little Indication Of Third Party Ticket In National Field In 1928

By GEORGE H. MANNING
(Washington Correspondent of The News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 27.—Judging by past experience in the political history of the nation, there is very little, if any, encouragement to be offered for the formation of a third party ticket in the next Presidential campaign.

Despite the assertions of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler and other prominent "wets" in the Republican party that unless a candidate favoring some modification of the present prohibition law is nominated for President there will be a rally around another standard-bearer, astute politicians who are in touch with the situation throughout the country do not believe that there will be a sufficient dissension from the ranks of the regular Republicans to cause any serious outbreak even on the "wet" and "dry" issue.

The same thing may be said of the Democratic party. While there are such leaders as Senators Edwards of New Jersey, and Bruce of Maryland, not to speak of Senator Jim Reed of Missouri, Governor Al Smith of New York, and Governor Ritchie of Maryland, who believe that the country should have a chance to pass on an amendment to the present prohibition law. Democrats generally feel that such matters should be left to the individual states to thresh out for themselves and should not be injected into a national party platform or a Presidential campaign.

There is always plenty of talk heard about a third party movement well in advance of the holding of the two national conventions of the Republicans and Democrats. As a rule, however, such talk is generally dissipated before the gathering of the clans and the race narrows down to but two candidates. It is not anticipated by these politicians who have been in Washington during the past few days that next year will be an exception to this rule.

It may be well in this connection to recall the fact that third party candidates and third party tickets in the past have proven disastrous to either one or the other of the two great contenders for the Presidential prize. When William McKinley ran for President against William Jennings Bryan, the Democrats were split over the gold and free silver issue. As a result a third ticket was put up by the Democrats, headed by Palmer and Buckner. There is no doubt in the minds of those who participated in this campaign that the disaffection of the Democrats from Bryan caused the election of McKinley. Palmer and Buckner polled about enough votes to keep Bryan out of the White House.

Some years later Theodore Roosevelt, disgruntled over certain policies of William Howard Taft, whom he had nominated for President, broke away from his regular Republican allegiance and launched the "Bull Moose" ticket. As a result, Woodrow Wilson was elected President on the Democratic ticket, Taft, who was running for re-election, was completely snowed under, and Col. Roosevelt carried but a comparatively few states as a third party candidate.

When Calvin Coolidge was chosen for President by the Republicans at the convention which met in Cleveland, there were rumors that he would be opposed by the Progressive element in his own party. These rumors later were confirmed when it was announced that there would be a third party ticket in the field with Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin as its head and Senator Wheeler of Montana, Democrat, as the candidate for vice president. Senator LaFollette later was named as the Presidential candidate of the Progressive-Republican party. In this instance, however, the candidacy of the regular Republican was not affected to any extent, Senator LaFollette rallying to his standard but a comparatively few votes, while Mr. Coolidge was elected by an overwhelming majority over John W. Davis, the Democratic nominee.

It would seem from the above recital of past political events that either the candidate of the third party movement or the nominee of one of the two principal parties has suffered through a split in the ranks of either the Republican or Democratic factions. As a general rule the voters of this country are either one thing or the other—either Republicans or Democrats. It is true that in times gone by there have been some uprisings in both camps, but the results, usually, have proven disastrous to those who led the forlorn hope.

There is very little credence placed in Washington to the talk about a third party movement in the Republican party because of the opposition that might be aroused over the third term idea so far as it applies to the renomination of President Coolidge. His advisers who have kept in touch with the situation throughout the country and who have reported to him with in the past week declare that there is absolutely nothing to this third term talk, but, on the other hand, a vast majority of voters are confident that Mr. Coolidge will not only be the choice of his party for another term, but will be kept in the White House for four more years after the expiration of his present tenure on March 4, 1929.

Naturally, the leaders of the Democracy will do everything in their power to prevent a split over the "wet" and "dry" question when the time comes for the selection of candidates for President and vice president. Every effort will be made to bring together all factions in the party so as to present a united front against the enemy in the forthcoming Presidential campaign. While it is recognized by the spokesmen of the party that there is a certain element among Democrats which will do everything that it can to inject the prohibition issue into the next campaign and even into the national convention, those who have the best interests of the party at heart do not believe that any movement of the kind will assume serious enough proportions to endanger the chances of success at the polls on election day.

Politicians of both parties now in Washington do not feel that there is anything that has yet transpired throughout the country to warrant the assumption that a third ticket will be placed in the field, either in opposition to the renomination of President Coolidge or for the purpose of having a showdown on the prohibition issue.

Ask U. S. Hospital For Drug Addicts

(International News Service)

CLEVELAND, May 27.—Representative Clyde Kelly of Pittsburgh has agreed to introduce a resolution in Congress providing for an inquiry into the advisability of erecting a national hospital for the cure of drug addicts, in place of sending them to the federal prisons as criminals. This information was given out here by Rev. A. S. Greggs, superintendent of the American Civic Reform Union. The Reform Union will promote the new hospital.

In connection with the foregoing announcement Mr. Gregg said:

"Since my release from the Atlanta prison on March 19 by telegraphic order of President Coolidge I have resumed business at the old stand, and among other things, I expect to do what I can to provide better treatment for the unfortunate victims of narcotic drugs. When I put the matter up to Representative Kelly he promptly agreed to look after it in Congress.

"The idea of a separate institution or hospital for the care of drug addicts originated with Warden John W. Snook of the Atlanta prison. About one-third of the 3,000 men at Atlanta are drug addicts, with sentences of a year and a day mostly. A drug addict is a sick man and ought to be imprisoned under hospital conditions.

Another use has been found for the early cantaloupe. You can cut a couple of them in two and make a set of dinner chimes.

Lawrence County To Receive $75,000 From State For Roads

(From News Bureau)
(State Capital)

HARRISBURG, May 27—Lawrence county during the biennium starting June 1 will receive more than $75,000 from the state treasury for county and township road purposes. This is in addition to any amount that may be returned by the state from the county's share of the gasoline tax and does not include any sums raised by local taxation.

The legislature appropriated $5,000,000 for state-aid work to the counties. Of that amount $48,223.35 has been allocated to Lawrence county. To share in this money the county must match the sum granted by the state.

The county's share of the $3,000,000 granted for reward work in second class townships is $30,284.51. The money goes to second class townships to aid in building permanent roads, bridges and the purchase of supplies.

Under the law each county receives one-half cent of the amount of gasoline tax collected within its borders. During the first three months of this year the collections in Lawrence county were $34,983.35 and the county's share is about $8,500. If collections for the remainder of the year keep up at that rate the share to the county for the year will run approximately $34,000 of which it all must be spent for roads under the laws.

Wet Spring Hurts Crops In Manitoba

(International News Service)

WINIPEG, Man., May 27.—The spring outlook of the crop in the prairie provinces is far from promising on account of the lengthy spell of wet weather and flood conditions in many districts. According to the first 1927 crop report of the federal bureau of statistics, only four per cent of wheat seeding is done in Manitoba, two per cent in Saskatchewan and ten per cent in Alberta.

No spring seeding for oats and barley was reported at the end of April in any of the prairie provinces. On the other hand spring seeding is well advanced in the east, a reversal of conditions at the same time last year when the east was tardy and the west was well seeded.

The Estevan district of Saskatchewan a rich wheat country is recovering from the worst setback in spring farming operations in several years. Six inches of snow fell in May just when farmers were preparing to swing into the already delayed task of seeding.

Western farmers declare however that if they are favored with a good spell of warm weather they may be able to offset to some extent the effects of the late start in seeding. Indications are now that the worst of the rainy weather is over in the prairie provinces.

Mine Rescue Men Practice For Tests At First Aid Meet

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 27.—Mine rescue crews here and in other sections of the country have begun a period of intensive training, preparatory to attending the Sixth Annual International First Aid and Mine rescue contest to be held in this city August 30 to September 1.

The competition will be divided into two classes. There will be first aid contests, allowing teams from coal and metal mines, quarries, oil fields and refining companies to participate. In addition, mine rescues, under condition are nearly normal as possible will be staged.

The first aid teams will be required to treat a "patient" for electrical shock, arterial bleeding, broken bones or other injuries. The work done will be judged by doctors and expert laymen skilled in first aid training. These judges will award prizes to the winning teams.

The mine "rescues" will be carried out in specially prepared smoke rooms, involving practical problems that may be expected in effecting rescues underground.

All contests will be held under the auspices of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, the National Safety Council and the American Red Cross.

Seek Agreement In Wage Parley To Settle Strike

(International News Service)
PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 27.—Miners' and operators' representatives from the central bituminous coal fields of Pennsylvania renewed their efforts today towards effecting a new wage agreement. If a new pact is not evolved today the conferees will adjourn until Tuesday.

Both sides are hopeful of ultimately reaching an agreement and believe that any terms decided upon will serve as a basis for peace negotiations in other areas.

The main conference has turned the question over to a sub-committee of miners and operators and are awaiting their report.

Versailles To Hold Fetes This Summer

(International News Service)
PARIS, May 27.—Five gorgeous fetes will be held at Versailles this coming summer.

The fete committee for the city of Versailles announces that firework displays, colored fountains, ballets and illuminations will be some of the attractive features for the famous night fetes. The dates are June 6 and 7, July 17, August 14 and September 4.

Few Parisians miss the lovely firework displays at Versailles. Foreigners flock here in the summer months to revel in the scenes enjoyed by Louis XIV and his court. Thousands of electric bulbs make a paradise of this enchanting garden. It is probable that the present fetes are more beautiful than those of former days due to the electrical power. The illuminated fountains spray softly shaded water and the sky rockets and Roman candles can be seen for miles around.

For many people Versailles is only worth seeing on a fete night, because then, for a few short hours, Versailles is as it was in the brilliant days of the "Roi Soleil".

Expect Hundreds Of Visitors Will Attend Ceremonies

(Special To The News)
NEW WILMINGTON, May 27.—Saturday will be a gala day at Westminster College. It is May Day with the presentation of the May pageant at 4:30 p. m. on the athletic field, the attraction of the day.

Hundreds of grads, parents of students and friends of the college, will assemble here during the day.

Classes have been called off so that the students can assist unhampered in the entertaining of visitors. The attraction of the morning will be a Tri-State Conference tennis match between Westminster and Geneva.

The fraternities will observe open house throughout the day with special dinners to guests at noon.

Mechanic Eats Food Enough For Dozen As His Midnight Snack

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 27. — Herman Ross, 31, of 7218 Tioga street, a mechanic, dropped into a restaurant at 603 Homewood avenue early yesterday for a light lunch. He is reported to have eaten 24 scrambled eggs, four pork chops, six slices of bread, two slices of ham, an apple pie, a quart of ice cream, and washed it down with seven cups of coffee and 10 glasses of water. He then told about 30 witnesses that he felt fine and had to go home and go to bed because he had to get up early for work. It took him an hour and 15 minutes to eat his "midnight snack."

Why Kinney Leads In Children's Shoes Because—

Manufacturing children's shoes that satisfy for the past 35 years, has given us the necessary experience to make children's shoes that are correct in every detail. Today, three of the five large Kinney Shoe Factories are exclusively engaged in turning out thousands of pairs of "Better Quality" children's shoes for either dress, school or play wear—at positively the Lowest Prices. Kinney is well aware of the abuse that children give their shoes, and knowing this, makes children's shoes that are "Better and Sturdier," yet—perfectly comfortable to wear. Kinney's children shoes are made only from "High Quality" materials, which you will recognize when you see them. Each designer and maker of children's shoes is a craftsman in his trade and has the growing youngsters' tender feet in mind when designing and making these shoes. Visit our store with the youngsters, we will be only too glad to show you our wonderful assortment of children's shoes, and all—at such Low Prices.

'Patching' St. Paul's Is Declared Futile

Architect's Journal Says London Cathedral Is Crumbling Despite Repairs

St. Paul's Cathedral, which from its lofty situation, overlooking the Thames, dominates the "City" of London and the "Port" of London below London Bridge to the east and Fleet street and the embankment to the west, is steadily crumbling despite restoration work now going on, says the Westminster Gazette. This paper quotes from the Architect's Journal, which says:

"It is not enough to follow up the damage and squirt cement into cracks which widen again after the operation.

"The patching operation may follow up the cracks for a certain time, but the last crack will open too quickly for the conscientious patcher to fill, even if he feels inclined to stay and fill it."

The cathedral authorities have had evidence lately of the futility of the patching and grouting operations, for which the public handsomely contributed. Canon Alexander, as reported in the Westminster Gazette, said before the commission of cross river traffic. "We can submit to the commission evidence of movement up to the present date, quite recently."

"It is not so many months," states the Architect's Journal, since the cathedral authorities were combating the proposal to close portions of the building for investigation and repair, with comforting assurances that there was no cause for alarm. The completion of the patching and grouting would be all that was required.

"While the custodians emphasize alternately the evidences of safety —or the evidences of danger, as best suits the need of the moment. Wren's great work is steadily decaying."

Experts are more than ever satisfied that the funds for restoring St. Paul's are being wasted on the grouting operations, which method William Havey, one of the greatest authorities on restoration, and of St. Paul's in particular, described to the Westminster Gazette as "utterly useless.

Four American Snakes Only Are Poisonous

West Has Single Deadly Species, The Rattler, Dr. Ditmars Explains

In contact for twenty-five years with an interested public asking questions about the subject of poisonous snakes, I have noted that the most frequent query relates to the kinds of poisonous snakes to be encountered in the United States. The answer is simple, as there are but four—the rattlesnake, copper-head, water moccasin and coral snake.

Rattlesnakes occur in every State, although extremely rare in Maine and of scant numbers in New Hampshire and Vermont. The westerly States along the northern boundary cannot boast of this scarcity of the rattler, which extends well into Canada, says Dr. R. L. Ditmars in Field and Stream.

Second in rank from the extent of its distribution is the copperhead. Its range begins with a blunt point in southern Massachusetts and extends southward to northern Florida, widening to include central New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, southern Kansas, Oklahoma and a considerable part of Texas.

The water moccasin, or cottonmouth (a near and larger relative) is restricted to the southeastern States, from central North Carolina throughout Florida and westward to Texas. It ranges a bit up the Mississippi into southern Missouri and Illinois.

The fourth kind, the coral snake (actually two species), occurs over the same area as the cottonmouth and again along the boundary in Arizona and New Mexico. In summing up these details the reader is reminded to note an interesting fact: That over a great area of this country which we familiarly term the "West," there is but one kind of poisonous snake—the rattler.

Scoffer Met Match In Witty Preacher

Dr. Parker, famous English pulpit orator, on one occasion was receiving a good deal of attention at a London club to which he had been invited. All was going well until one of the audience, perhaps somewhat irritated at finding a Christian minister the center of so much flattering attention, launched out an attack upon Christianity. He said that, after all, the benefits of Christianity had been tremendously overrated, and that in beneficent influence upon mankind many inventions had done more than Christianity. "For instance," he said, "I consider that the discovery of gas has done more for mankind than the Christian religion." The clubmen instantly resented this insult to their guest. There were hisses and cries of "shame" and "withdraw". Doctor Parker arose and said, "Hush, do not let us quarrel with our friend. He is simply stating his belief. When I am nearing my latter end I will call for the consolation of the Christian religion, but our friend here, on his deathbed, will call for the gas man."—Montreal Family Herald.

PARENTAL DISAPPOINTMENTS

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum; "but many fathers have disobedient children."— From the Washington Star.

State Distributes Over 16,000,000 Tree Seedlings

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 27.—Pennsylvania, on guard to preserve its bountiful forests, has distributed 16,000,000 tree seedlings this spring, the Department of Forests and Waters announces.

Red oak, black walnut, Scotch pine, larch, ash, spruce and a number of other species have been distributed among owners of private forests throughout the state, the department announced.

The Central Forest Tree Nursery near Milton, Pa., set a new record in seeding distribution by consigning 235,000 red oak and black walnut seedlings to private forests. The nursery reports 8,000,000 seedlings on hand.

The Torrance Institutional nursery supplied 1167 trees to public grounds. State institutional lands and along State highways. Japanese larch, Norway spruce, Japanese barberry, arbor vitae, white pine, red pine and red mulberry were included in the shipments.

The nursery at Rockview penitentiary, operated by the Department of Welfare in connection with the Forestry department sent 1,588,350 trees to private forests. Included in the list were Scotch pine, larch, white ash, Norway spruce, and others.

Ornamental transplants for reforestration were sent out from the Danville nursery. 16,000 Norway spruce alone being shipped, in addition to large quantities of white pine, blue spruces, sugar maple and white ash.

Neopolitans Close Caruso Tomb, Movie Men Cause Action

(International News Service)

NAPLES, May 27.—Tourists can no longer see the body of Caruso who died here a few years ago.

His embalmed body, in evening clothes, was one of the sights of the city. But the appearance of movie cameramen to film it and turn it into a screen stunt so enraged the Neapolitans that they have had a slab of granite, weighing 1½ tons, placed in front of the entrance to his tomb. Inside, the glass coffin is safe from prying eyes.

Caruso's body was embalmed by a special process discovered by a Neapolitan about 25 years ago. The embalmer claims that the process is so good that the subject retains its lifelike appearance forever. Caruso's body is still perfectly lifelike.

The aged caretaker, who gave the alarm when he realized that pictures had been taken, could not tell how much of the film was ready before he had the intruders turned out of the cemetery.

Neapolitans hope that not enough was taken to serve as part of a film. They have a superstitious dread of photographs of the dead, and were filled with indignation at what they consider an insult to the memory of one of their most beloved citizens.

Linen curtains now prevent a general view of the interior of the tomb.

Izaak Walton's Cottage Restored After Big Fire

(International News Service)

LONDON, May 27. — Izaak Walton's cottage at Shallowford, Staffordshire, which was recently almost completely destroyed by fire, is not to be allowed to decay.

The trustees of the cottage, in which the most famous fisherman in the world wrote his "Compleat Angler," have decided to proceed at once with the work of restoration.

Masonic Building Will Be Erected In Ellwood City Soon

Plans Made Known At Meeting On Thursday Night

Structure To Be Erected On Crescent Avenue; Work Starts Soon

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., May 27.—It was announced today by John Evans, chairman of the Masonic Building association of this city, that as soon as plans are approved by the state department, that bids will be asked and the construction of a fine new fire proof building in which the Ellwood City Masonic lodge will function, started as soon as the contract can be awarded.

This latest building improvement for the city has been under consideration for some time and it will be one of the finest buildings of the city.

While at this time the cost of the building has not been definitely determined, it is estimated that the proposed building will cost between $50,000 and $75,000. It will be two stories in height and of brick, concrete, steel and general fireproof construction. The plans and specifications have been completed by Architect Byron McCandless of this city and are now in the hands of the state factory department for approval.

The building will be located on Crescent avenue between Fifth and Sixth streets. It will be two sories in height, have a frontage of 68 feet and a depth of 75 feet.

The first floor will be used as the new location of the city library. The second floor wil be devoted entirely to the purposes of Ellwood City Masonic lodge of which Gomer Owens is master at the present time. The ownership of the building will be confined to members of the Masonic fraternity.

The building committee in charge consists of John Evans chairman; William L. Dean, Hary B. Anderson, Victor H. Grove, Ray Wilson and Loring L. Gelbach.

Only One Veteran Of Civil War Left In Ellwood City

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., May 27.—The last living veteran of the Civil War in Ellwood City, Alexander Frazier is still hale and hearty in spite of his 88 years.

He resides with his daughter Mrs. William Keys in the Evans apartments on Spring avenue.

Mr. Frazier saw real service in the War of the Rebellion from 1861 when he enlisted with Battery B., Company B, of the First West Virginia Light Artillery until the end of the war in 1865.

He knew the Civil war in all its horrors and privations. Besides being severely wounded at one time by being hit by a shell in the leg, he was an inmate of three different prisons, Andersonville, Libby and Bell Isle. He was in Libby prison when the war came to an end.

He was one of the many prisoners weary in heart and wornout in body who listened with renewed hope to the "tramp, tramp, tramp" of the marching men who came to give them liberty and fresh air once again, after months of confinement under he most unbearable conditions.

He will be invited to take his place of honor and distinction in the parade on Memorial Day.

New Home For City Library

Local Library To Occupy First Floor Of New Masonic Temple

PLANS MADE KNOWN AT MEETING THURSDAY

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., May 27.—Splendid new quarters for the Ellwood City library, to be ready next December upon the opening of the Masonic temple soon to be built, will relieve the present congestion of the library and provide space for 15,000 volumes and plenty of room for further expansion.

The fact that the library will have a new home was made known at the meeting of the Library Board held in the Lincoln school last evening.

The present crowded condition of the library is known to all of its patrons, and the realization of what has long been the aim of the Library Board will be a great boon to Ellwood City.

Citizens of the Fourth Ward presented a petition for a branch library in their section of town, and the Board, upon discussing the matter decided to provide the books for the branch library if the petitioners would provide a room.

Members of the Library Board present at the meeting were J. Jay Dunn, president, Ray Smith, H. W. Smith, Blaine Huncher, V. V. Johnson, and J. W. Offutt.

WILKINSON BIBLE CLASS.

Ben Franklin Hi-Y Plans Last Meeting

Hold Meeting Thursday; Final Meeting June 2; Program Outlined With Speakers

An interesting meeting of the Ben Franklin Junior Hi-Y. was held Thursday in the Y. M. C. A. banquet hall at eight o'clock.

Plans were completed for the final meeting of the year, under L. C. Black, supervisor of the club. This meeting, which will end the activities of the boys for the present school term, will be held in the banquet hall of the association on Thursday evening, June 2, at 5:45 p. m. It will be in the form of a picnic dinner. Following the program the boys will play a game of indoor baseball on the gym floor and then take a dip in the Y. pool.

The speakers of the evening will be as follows: Prof. F. L. Burton, L. C. Black and John Leonard.

Large Crowd At Benefit Dance

Nearly 500 Couples On Floor At Women's Aid Affair At Cathedral

Benefit dance given under the auspices of the Women's Aid of the Pennsylvania railroad at the ballroom of the Scottish Rite Cathedral last night was a great success and the largest event that the division has ever held.

Nearly 3,000 tickets were sold for the affair and when the orchestra started the program with a lively fox trot nearly 500 couples took their places on the floor. And from 9:00 o'clock until the Home Sweet Home waltz was played at 12:30 a happy crowd of railroad men and women and their friends enjoyed themselves to their hearts' content.

The sedan that was given away was won by Mrs. J. Clyde Gilfillan, the number being 2532. E. A. Fenton made the drawing, and the response came on the first number announced.

Among the out-of-town guests were P. L. Grove, general superintendent of the Pennsylvania railroad, and Mrs. Grove and daughter; F. M. Hawthorne, divisional engineer, with Mrs. Hawthorne and daughter; C. H. Purcel, chief clerk of the Akron division, with Mrs. Purcel; Mrs. C. M. Potter, wife of the assistant trainmaster of the Akron division.

The general committee of the dance included Mrs. J. A. Appleton, chairman, Mrs. J. G. Hartley, Mrs. F. J. Perry, Mrs. H. S. Noble, Mrs. T. L. Bailey, Mrs. E. A. Fenton, Mrs. J. C. Hanrahan, Mrs. E. E. Gastinger, Mrs. H. W. Burkley and Miss Emily C. Rice, secretary of the Women's Aid.

S. R. Whittenberger, acting assistant train master of the E. & A. division was given credit for selling the most tickets, having sold a total of 277.

The funds received from the benefit dance are used by the Women's Aid of the relief of needy families of the employes of the railroad, especially in times of sickness and other trouble.

PETERS ADVENTURES IN ANIMAL LAND

By Florence Smith Vincent

STRAIGHT TOWARD THE ENEMY

The old rail fence was between the Fox and the Boy and the howling pack. Whirling around, Cutie sprang into the air in a leap that carried him several feet forward and then went speeding along as lightly and smoothly as a cloud being blown across the sky by a breeze. It had all happened so quickly that the Boy had not time to say a word. Now, however he found his voice and went tearing after Fox, yelling as he ran.

"Cutie! Oh, Cutie! Have you gone mad. You are running straight toward the Dogs. Can't you hear them snarling and barking? They are coming closer every second. Quick! Turn around and run the other way! They have not yet reached the crest of the hill. You will have time to escape. Hurry, hurry! Make for te grove!"

There was something about the crafty Cutie that the Boy liked in spite of the fact that he knew quite well the fellow was a thief and not to be depended upon even by friends. He couldn't bear to think of his clever companion falling into the cruel jaws of the hunters. But he was going to just as sure as fate! Why wouldn't he listen! What possible reason could Fox have for running straight toward his enemies instead of in the opposite direction!

Paying attention to Two-Leg's cry was evidently the last thing in the world that Fox had any intention of doing. He kept right on in the course he had chosen, far outdistancing the Boy.

Then he noticed that Fox had come to a halt by the side of the old fence. Good gracious, what was the fellow going to do now! There was no time to be lost and yet Cutie seemed to be in no hurry. Without slackening his own pace he watched his companion.

Cutie put his fore paws on the fence and stood up, looking toward the hill. No one in sight yet. Slowly and carefully he climbed the old fence and trotted along the top rail. The Boy saw for the first time that beside the fence grew a tall tree, and it was so knotted and gnarled that he knew at once it must be very old indeed. One of its bare branches bent down, and it looked as if the tree were trying to lean upon the fence for support.

Did Cutie think he could hide behind that tree. How-silly. The Dogs would scent him in a minute and drive him into the open. Yet certainly that was just where the Fox was heading. Now he had almost reached it. Well why didn't he go on? What was he waiting for?

Next: "Up a Tree."

NEW CASTLE TO PLAY YOUNGSTOWN SATURDAY

Game Called For Three O'clock

Locals Seek Revenge For Two Defeats At Hands Of Youngstown This Year

JAMIESON'S TURN TO TAKE MOUND

By "BUGS" WALTHER.

Weather permitting the New Castle and Youngstown teams of the Ohio and Pennsylvania League, will battle at Centennial Ball Park at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. It will be the third meeting of the year between the two teams.

The New Castle club has been held idle since the St. Louis game due to rather rainy weather. Now that Jupiter Pluvius has decided to make his exit, the baseball players are rarin' for action. Manager "Molly" Meis has the locals all tuned up ready for the Tate managed outfit tomorrow afternoon. The General Tires hold two victories over New Castle to date and the Castles are anxious to get back at the neighboring city folks.

Jamieson to Pitch

Mark Jamieson the big Ellwood City boy will be called upon to stop the Youngstown sluggers here Saturday, said Manager Meis today. Jamieson demonstrated his worth in the Erie game here a few days ago, by allowing the Sailors but three hits in ten frames. If Jamieson is right tomorrow the Youngstown clan is going to find the Ellwood City product hard to solve. "Jamie" has a wide assortment of curves and also a fine change of pace.

The Youngstown team defeated New Castle in the opening game of the season here 9 to 8 by getting to Meis in the seventh inning for seven runs. Konald had the mound assignment here and it is very likely that Manager Hughie Tate will send the youngster back to the knoll tomorrow. Should Tate select Konald the New Castle fans will witness another of those sterling pitcher's battles. Youngstown defeated New Castle in a Sunday game at Youngstown last month also.

Seek New Players

It is a well known fact that Manager Meis is after several new men for the New Castle lineup. Meis would not say just who would be replaced, but the popular local manager feels that the team is not hitting the way they should, and is going to try and bolster up the hitting department. Meis has been out of town for a few days looking over some likely prospects for New Castle.

The New Castle lineup for the Youngstown game here Saturday will be unchanged said Meis, this means that Weimer, General and McCullough, will patrol the outfield, Brehanney, Maxim, Lawrence and Swartz will cavort in the inner garden, and Bryan will catch.

The locals have received tough breaks through the weather man this year and they are hoping that the game here tomorrow can be played. The Canton game on Wednesday of this week was a washout and the St. Louis Cardinals game on Monday was played on a field soaked with water.

Westminster To Battle Geneva On Tennis Court

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., May 27.—Captain Francis McDowell of Jamestown, will lead his Westminster tennis mates against Geneva, on the Westminster courts Saturday morning, as a feature on the May Day program.

Westminster will lineup in the usual way with Bill Clark of New Wilmington, Bill Schaffer of Youngstown, Francis McDowell, Paul Gibson of New Kensington, and Dick Robinson of Massillon, O., participating in the singles.

The match will be a Tri-State Conference affair.

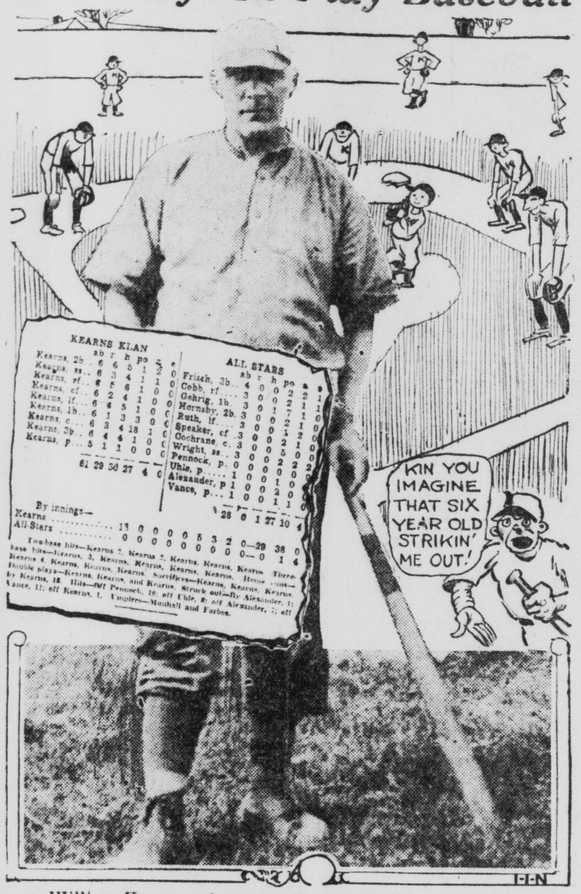
Ohio Farmer Has Nine Sons and They All Play Baseball



William Kearns, of Crown City, Ohio, has nine ball playing sons. He'd like to match his family against a big league combination, because he's sure the Kearns would win.
(International Newsreel.)

CROWN CITY, O., (I-I-N Special).—There are lots of brothers in baseball, in fact the Waners, of Pittsburgh, and the Sewells, of Cleveland, are members of the same teams, but when it comes right down to making baseball a family game, the Kearns family, of this section, takes the cake, icing and dish!

For William Kearns is the sire of a complete baseball team. Nine sons he has, and every one of them is a baseball player. Nor are they one-position men. They're versatile enough to form a complete baseball team, and if he ever gets a chance Bill Kearns is going to swing them into action in a body. He's confident that with their ability and family discipline they can play over the heads of any team in the big leagues.

Eight of the boys are playing with teams scattered over the country. The ninth, who, his dad says, is a better player than the rest, is home helping to raise corn and pumpkins.

The senior Kearns must be a believer in the inheritance of acquired characteristics. For he himself has played baseball for forty-eight years. And he's still playing. Let MacGillicuddy, McGraw and Gleason laugh that off!

Noted College Stars Meet In Philadelphia In Battle For Honors

(Special To The News)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 27.—America's leading track stars, including many young athletes who will doubtless be members of the 1928 U. S. Olympic team, will be see in action on Franklin Field, Friday and Saturday in the fifty-first annual Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. championships. The Friday program starts at 1 o'clock, daylight time.

Thirty of the leading institutions of the east, Southern California, the defending champions; Stanford, Pacific coast title-holders and California, as well as Michigan State from the middle west will all have teams here. Southern California has lifted the I. C. A. A. A. A. title for the last two years and previous to 1924 when Yale won, California had a hand in the championship pudding.

From comparative "dope" figured out on the teams, Stanford University is the favorite this year. The Palo Alto, Cal. athletes coached by "Dink" Templeton have never won an intercollegiate championship but have come east with one of the strongest teams ever put together. They figured on scoring anywhere from 32 to 35 points but easterners believe they are capable of getting close to 40 points.

Coach Dean Cromwell's Southern California team carried the beautiful Intercollegiate cup back to Los Angeles last year, by scoring 35¼ points. The Southern California team is not as strong as in recent years but may spring a surprise, especially if Charles Borah, the famed sprinter, should do as well as Cromwell expects and carries off the 100 and 220 yard dashes. Francis Hussey of Boston College, "Truck" Miller of Harvard, and Grim of Michigan State with Paulsen of Yale will probably give Borah all the opposition he craves in the century with Warren Tuxill of Penn and Charles of Colgate, also capable of stepping right along with the pack.

The sprint races Friday and Saturday promise to be the most thrilling ever seen in an Intercollegiate meet. The stars will be shooting at the meet record of 9.7 seconds and providing the weather and track are good, a new mark may be set. Several of the field have done 9 3-5 seconds this spring.

Five place winners are back in the 440 yards, including Cecil Cooke, the broad shouldered colored from Syracuse who holds the title. There are many in the east who believe Burgess of Georgetown will take Cooke in the meet here but the class is not alone confined to these two men as Emerson Spencer, of Stanford, the speediest quarter miler on the coast; Ross of Yale, Burns, Holy Cross. Proudlock of Syracuse and Werly of Cornell are all likely to make trouble.

E. Haggerty of Harvard, two time champion in the mile, may be dethroned by Billy Cox of Penn State, but not without a real struggle. Cox did a mile in 4.19 4-5 last week. McCloskey of Boston College and Swinburne of Georgetown are the outstanding stars in the half mile. The two miles finds Reid of Harvard, Benson of Cornell, the indoor Intercollegiate champion. Smith of Yale and Payne and Giles of Penn as the leading contenders.

In the hurdles it will be the east vs. west with Nichols of Stanford, a favorite over Wells of Dartmouth in the high sticks and the Dartmouth "ace" picked to take the low event with Steinbrenner of Mass. Tech, and West of Stanford, as the runners-up.

The field events present the greatest galaxy of stars in years, including Sabia Carr of Yale and Lee Barnes, Southern California, in the pole vault. King and Work of Stanford in the high jump. Hill Southern California, Mathias, Penn State and Dowding, Georgetown in the broad jump. Hoffman, Stanford, Gerken, California and Lamberg, Penn in the shot put. Ide, Penn State and Wright Cornell, in the hammer trow. Hoffman, Stanford and Anderson and Gerken, discus. Leyden of Maine and Hines, Georgetown in the javelin.

Two Good Games In Church League Billed Tonight

Two fast games are billed in the New Castle Church League for tonight. The games will start at 6:30 o'clock daylight savings time. The Central Presbyterians will clash with the Central Christians at Lehigh Field, with Hamilton as the umpire. This game was switched from last night to this evening, to accommodate the Third U. P. and Croton teams.

The First M. E. boys will tackle the Epworth team at Colonial Field tonight, with Alex Black handling the indicator.

Pirates Defeat Cardinals, 2 To 1

First Time In Eight Games That Haines Fails To Beat Pirates

FIRATES WIN OUT IN FIRST FRAME

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 27.—The Pirates came home yesterday and with them came a two to one victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. Aldridge did not give the champions a safe blow after the third inning. Haines pitched seven innings and was hit 7 times. Keen took his place and allowed one hit.

The Pirates got in an early start and incidentally scored the two runs necessary to take the game in the first inning. Cuyler and P. Waner turned in the tallies while Douthit chalked up the only run that St. Louis got. Incidentally it was the first time in eight games that Haines failed to beat the Pirates. The box score:

Sport Alphabet

By NORMAN E. BROWN

Despite the fact that he is an "ex" Jack Dempsey stands out as the most talked-of "D" in the sport Who's Who today.

Partly because of the fact that the world found it hard to believe Gene Tunney was master of the "real" Dempsey that night in Philadelphia.

Partly because of the fact that the boxing world now wants to see him in action again to find out if the "Manassa Mauler" was mostly a myth and his victims hams instead of real opponents. But mainly because he's coming back into the ring—devoid of colorful, popular fighters.

Among the other "D's" in sport might be mentioned—

Taylor Douthit of the Cardinals.

Jimmy De Paolo, auto racer and champion driver of 1926.

George Duncan, British golf star.

Tin Mill Teams Stage Battle On Baseball Field

The Opening Department of the Shenango Tin Mill defeated the Mechanical Department team, in a game played on Boyles Field on Thursday night. For the most part the boys played baseball.

The following lineups were used: Opening Department—Shot 2nd, McBride if, Coblenz cf, Ward ss, Koonte c, Lenning 3rd, Kirkpatrick 1st, Carson rf, Herrington, p, Jones, McCaslin p. The Mechanical Department—Dunkerley 2nd, McCarthy lf, Gravenstreeter 3rd, Clinginsmith cf, Parks rf, Elliott ss, Darbecker 1st, Shannon c, Lamoree p, Jenkins p, Slichter p.

The star of the game happened to be Coblentz, and it is possible that this gentleman has played baseball before, or sometime, anyway, according to Manager Kenneth Brest of the Opening Department this man Coblentz was more than good. Each team used three pitchers, but the reason for this has been unassigned.

ROOKIE CHALLENGES STAR

The trading of second baseman Marty McManus to the Detroit Tigers by Dan Howley of the Browns last winter was looked upon as the "making" of the Tiger machine in some circles. Likewise Howley was criticised. Now McManus must share second with Gehringer, young infielder from Toronto—and must fight to keep in the limelight.

Pirates Continue Terrific Stride

Pirates Win Eighth Straight By Downing Cardinals; White Hose Win Again

ALDRIDGE HURLS THREE-HIT GAME

By LES CONKLIN.
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, May 27.—Like Captain Charles A. Lindbergh and the gent who bit the dog the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Chicago White Sox can't be kept out of the headlines these days. The irrepressible Corsairs chalked up their eighth straight victory yesterday while the White Sox won again and closed in on the Yankees.

The Pirates are alleged to have a poor pitching corps, but if the brand of throwing turned in by the club's boxmen during the last ten days is weak, a cup of benzine should make a mild chaser. Vic Aldridge allowed but three hits in beating the Cardinals yesterday, Wright's double giving the Pirates the verdict by a 2 to 1 score.

Aldridge's feat came on the heels of another three-hit performance by Lee Meardows and some brilliant pitching by Carmen Hill. With Ray Kremer available and the entire team displaying a punch of sashweight proportions, the Smoky City outfit is likely to sew up the pennant by mid-summer. Their present winning streak is the longest of the season in the National league.

The White Sox came from behind and nosed out Detroit in the 12th, 4 to 3 on Metzler's single. Red Faber blanked the Tigers for the last nine innings.

The Cubs scored six runs in the fifth inning and swamped the Reds 11 to 2, gaining a clear title to second place. Root pitched a steady game for the winners, while Eppa Rixey, Cincy's lanky southpaw, had length but not strength, as the bridge sharks say.

The Moscow Reds assert they do not need trade but the Cincinnati Reds need plenty of trades and realize it. They have secured Paul Wanniger, former shortstop of the Yankees and Red Sox, from the St. Paul club of the American association and are trying to trade Pitcher Jakie May for Emil Yde, Pittsburgh southpaw.

The Red Sox demonstrated that they are nobody's set-up by nosing out the Athletics 4 to 3 on Myer's single in the ninth after Lefty Grove had won a 3 to 1 pitching duel from Tal Wiltse.

The Browns and Indians also split their twin bill. O'Rourke's homer in the tenth gave the Browns a 2 to 1 victory in the opener while the Indians took the second game 9 to 7. Lew Fonseca and Harry Rice each made four hits in the nightcap.

Radiators Capture First Victory In Twilight League

Radiator Colored Stars Defeat West Pittsburg In Fast Game 4-1

The National Radiator Colored Stars won their first victory in the Lawrence County Twilight league on Thursday night at West Pittsburg, by downing the Garlands 4 to 1. The Radiators had lost five straight games prior to last night.

H. Bradley took the mound for the Radiators last night and turned in a fine game, allowing the heavy hitting Garlands but two hits and fanning five men. Newton on the knoll for the Garlands was found for six hits.

The Radiators bunched hits in the first two innings to take a three run lead. Morrow and Pannell led the hitting for the winners, with E. Elsesser and J. Elsesser having the only hits gleaned off Bradley.

The Garlands contributed six errors which failed to help matters along. The Radiators gave Bradley good support.

Edenburg Defeats Lawrence Indies

Lawrence Indies Held To Two Hits As Edenburg Retains League Lead

Edenburg remained abreast the Hillsville and Ryantown teams in the Twilight League on Thursday night at the Cedar street field, by downing the Lawrence Indies 4 to 2.

The game was one of the best of the year on the Cedar street field with both teams fighting hard for victory. Edenburg utilized three pitchers, Waters, Buehler and Williams to stop the Indies and the combined trio of hurlers allowed but two hits. Both of the Indies hits were for extra bases.

Padavano and Gilmore had two hits apiece for Edenburg. Both teams had three errors apiece. Edenburg scored in the third and shoved over another pair in the sixth.

Stanford Favored In Track Meet At Philadelphia Today

Western School Sends Array Of Stars To Intercollegiate A. A. A. Meet

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
Sports Editor Internat'al News Service

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 27.—That coast novelty act, the Three Jugglers, will play the Eastern time for a short run today and tomorrow and, on this occasion, it is generally understood that it is Stanford University's turn to catch the "property" as it falls. Among the latter is the track and field championship of the Intercollegiate A. A. A. This was an Eastern "prop" once but the Three Jugglers have kept it in the air for upward of seven years; one more payment and it ought to be theirs.

Anyhow, California University caught it in 1921, 1922 and 1923, muffed in 1924 and thereafter was delegated as a feeder to Southern California, which did the catching in 1925 and 1926. Now, by reason of an almost fool-proof cast and its victories in the West, Stanford is due to play the star role.

One might say that Stanford is almost overdue. A pioneer of the Western invaders, the Cardinals have come close to the title on occasions but never won it. The East, having nothing to show for six years' effort except Yale's victory in 1924, is supinely ready for its inevitable defeat, for if Stanford misses, Southern California won't. The title hunt will be a two-team proposition, involving the Western pair, and Stanford is the outstanding favorite.

Bank Teams To Play Baseball

For no purpose whatsoever and with no good reason assigned for their actions, the First National Bank of Lawrence County's baseball team, will play the Lawrence Savings & Trust company team. The game is scheduled for about June 7.

The date of the game depending a good deal on the condition of the various players at that time. The game is for no ascertained benefit with the possible exception of the liniment dealers in New Castle.

Norman Clark will have charge of the First National Bank of Lawrence County team, and Al Tindall and Joseph Love are said to be interested in the Lawrence Savings & Trust team. Clark announced today that George "Jud" Kimball would more than likely be called on to do the pitching for the corner bank boys.

Following the example of Diogenes, who established his home in a barrel, a man of Charleroi, in northern France, has been living in a bath tub for the past three years.

Ryantown Trims Hillsville In Fast Game 4 To 1

The Ryantown team pulled the big surprise in the Lawrence County Twilight league on Thursday night by toppling the fast Hillsville outfit 4 to 1 in a game played on the Hillsville field. It was the first defeat of the year for the Hillsville team.

Incidentally there is a three-cornered fight for the leadership in the junior loop, with Hillsville, Edenburg and Ryantown all deadlocked.

Winters on the knoll for the Ryantown team pitched a fine brand of baseball and allowed but four hits. Winters fanned five men and walked one. Augustine was found for nine hits and fanned four batters.

Ryantown bunched hits in the first two innings to put over three runs. Joyce and Orlando had extra base hits as a feature of the game.

Twilight Game For Saturday

The National Radiator Colored Stars and the Edenburg Indies will battle at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the National Radiator Field. This game was postponed several days ago due to rain.

It was announced that "Midnight" Wayman would pitch for the Colored Stars in the game tomorrow afternoon.

No Anti-Climaxes — By Feg Murray

Rival pitchers used to heave a sigh of relief when they had finished the job of throwing them up to Babe Ruth, but now things are different. No matter what the Big Bam did—strike out, pop out, get on base or hit a homer—it was a great weight off the hurler's mind when the King of Swat had been to bat and gone on his way. But now all this has changed. The King is merely the third name on the batting order, the "hollow shell" who sometimes explodes with a tremendous bang and breaks up everything, including ball games. But after the King comes—Lou Gehrig!

As this is written, Lou Gehrig is walloping the pill at more than a .400 clip, and, what is more important to the Yankees, has batted in nearly half of his team's runs. The former Columbia football star, who, by the way, never wears a hat or a vest, has not only been outbatting Ruth, but he has been for some time one of the five leading hitters in the American League. Gehrig, of German descent and built like a young Hercules, is not yet 24, and, barring accidents, should go on busting homers and batting in runs for 10 or 15 years. He is one example of a player making good with the ball club of his native city.

But to return to the aforementioned enemy pitcher. After he has disposed of both Babe Ruth and "Babe Ruth" Gehrig (as he was called at Columbia in his undergraduate days) what then? Does he have a moment or so of rest, taking things easy with the next batter? He does not, and Bob Meusel is right there to tell him why. For long, lanky, handsome Bob, of the California Meusels, is playing every game as though each day he must make amends for that costly muff in the last game of the 1926 world series. Robert is batting not far below Lou as this is written, and having tired of being referred to as "lethargic", he actually up and stole home in a game in Chicago recently.

First Combs, then Koenig, then Ruth, then Gehrig, then Meusel, then Lazzeri—pity the poor pitchers who have to face those six inch rifles!

Ross Pitches Two-Hit Game As Croton Takes Church League Victory

The Croton M. E. team won their first game in the New Castle Church League, on Thursday night at the Lehigh field, by downing the Third U. P. boys 11 to 3. The game was featured by the pitching of Ross.

The Croton team found the pitching of Seamans and Davies to their liking and hammered out four hits, with Miller having a pair of doubles. The Third U. P. team blew up like a toy balloon, and kicked in with seven misplays, while Croton had five errors.

The Third U. P. boys could do nothing against Ross until the start of the fifth inning, when they scored a pair of runs. The box score:

AMATEUR NOTES

The Boro Tigers won from the Boro Clown Juniors on the South Hills field recently, by a score of 15 to 10. The game was a free hitting affair.

The Young Men's Athletic Association of Mahoningtown have organized a baseball team, and would like to hear from all fast teams in the city and county. For games call 2050-R and ask for Mack.

The News Sport editor urges the various teams to get their scores to the News office early. This is essential if the scores are to be published the day after the game is played.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

By NORMAN E. BROWN

The rumor comes from Washington that Tris Speaker, veteran outfielder, may soon succeed "Bucky" Harris as manager of the Senators.

Just what may be the foundation for this rumor is unknown. Certainly no one can blame Harris for the poor showing of the team this year. His players have been beset with injuries and ailments since weeks before the season opened, beginning with the accident to Walter Johnson's foot.

The rumor comes on top of another report that Speaker is eager to form a syndicate to buy the Cleveland ball club and act once more as its manager.

The first rumor recalls Speaker's early years with Cleveland.

Lee Fohl, reticent, stolid and capable enough, was manager of the team when Jim Dunn bought Speaker one April day for $55,000. The figure was startling in those days. Overnight Speaker became the sole topic of conversation in Cleveland. Enthusiastic fans visioned a pennant immediately and also doped it out that Speaker would become manager of the team soon after his arrival.

This latter view reached Fohl of course. He was trying to ignore it when Dunn called him into the club office.

"You're going to be manager of this club until the day you yourself feel that you ought to step down for the good of the team," said Dunn to Fohl.

Fohl continued as manager of the team until the middle of the 1919 campaign.

Meanwhile Speaker had won the league batting title his first year with the club—1916—and had been the "sparkplug" of the team's play. Constantly the impression was voiced that he was virtually manager.

When Fohl resigned as pilot in 1919 the team had all the potential strength of a pennant winning outfit. The criticism voiced against Fohl was that he used poor judgment in handling his pitchers.

Speaker succeeded Fohl.

The very next season the team won the league pennant and world title. Giving Speaker all credit due him for furnishing the inspiration and fire needed to whip the team into pennant winning form it must be said in Fohl's behalf that he built the club which Speaker led to the flag.

Just how much Speaker and Fohl co-operated in the guiding of the team during the latter's tenure of office is known only to themselves, of course.

Speaker failed to repeat. That is history. The team had varying success under his management.

Speaker is a born leader. He thrives under it. His diversified interests, however, handicapped him as manager of the Cleveland team. What instructions and attention he gave the players was confined to the actual time on the ball field. He spent little time with the players off the field—except with one of two personal friends perhaps.

Germany has just witnessed some interesting tennis and has a fairly accurate line on the relative strength of its tennis stars as a result of the visit of Bill Tilden and Francis Hunter. While the Germans were defeated in four matches of the five played their game was brilliant. Diemer Kool defeated Hunter for the only victory for the homeland. Hunter, however, triumphed over H. Timmer. Kool forced Tilden to four sets in their match, Tilden winning 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, 7-5.

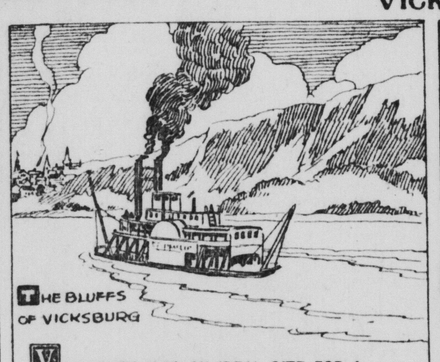
HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

Vicksburg.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

AFTER THE FALL OF NEW ORLEANS (APRIL 25, 1862), AND THE CAPTURE OF COLUMBUS (KY.), ISLAND NO. TEN AND MEMPHIS BY THE FEDERALS, VICKSBURG, MISSISSIPPI, BECAME THE MOST IMPORTANT CONFEDERATE POSITION ON THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER AND GOAL OF UNION MILITARY AND NAVAL FORCES OPERATING IN THAT REGION.



VICKSBURG WAS AN IDEAL SITE FOR A STRONG MILITARY POSITION, AS THE CITY STRETCHED UP THE SLOPE OF BLUFFS THAT ROSE 200 FEET ABOVE THE MISSISSIPPI. BATTERIES PLACED ON THE CREST COULD SWEEP THE RIVER AND DIRECT A PLUNGING FIRE UPON A FLEET ATTEMPTING TO PASS.

THE WORK OF FORTIFYING VICKSBURG WAS BEGUN LATE IN THE SPRING OF 1862. HEAVY GUNS WERE MOUNTED AT WELL-CHOSEN POINTS, CHIEFLY BELOW THE CITY. THE POST WAS UNDER THE COMMAND OF GEN. MARTIN LUTHER SMITH.

THE CONFEDERATE TROOPS SENT TO MAN THE DEFENSES OF VICKSBURG WERE SEVEN LOUISIANA INFANTRY REGIMENTS, A REGIMENT AND A BATTALION OF ARTILLERY, AND A BATTALION OF MISSISSIPPI INFANTRY, ALL OF WHICH HAD SERVED GALLANTLY AT NEW ORLEANS.

N. Y. STOCKS

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 27.—There was no change in the leadership of the movement of speculative railroad and industrial stocks in the early trading today. The merger-rails and the specialties moved upward in spectacular fashion, with Western Maryland, Wabash, Bush Terminal, Marine preferred and Pittsburgh Coal in the lead, while the bulk of industrial and motor stocks churned around in a narrow price radius.

In the absence of specific reports and announcements, Wall Street was still at sea as to the purchasers of Western Maryland, and Pittsburgh Coal stock, and, to a certain extent also of Wabash. The entrance of Pittsburgh and West Virginia interests on the scene has added a new phase to the railroad merger situation, and the heavy purchasing of Western Maryland is generally believed to be the acquisition of stock for them.

Western Maryland topped its best previous peak price when the stock climbed to above 63. Wabash was in demand in large volume above 73, up 2¼ points for the day. Pittsburgh Coal carried its advance to 58 a gain of 2½ points for the day and about 21 points for the week. Only routine business was transacted at the meeting of the directors of the company at Pittsburgh today, it was stated.

Pittsburgh Coal Stock Advances

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 27.—Common stock of the Pittsburgh Coal company, said to be the largest coal company in the world, jumped another point at the opening of the stock market today, putting the stock up eleven points higher than what it sold for on Wednesday.

Despite denials reports persisted that there is a big fight on for control of the company, participated in by the financial leaders of the country.

Ireland Prepares For New Elections To Be Held In June

(International News Service)

DUBLIN, May 27.—The various political parties in the Irish Free State are actively preparing for the forthcoming general election, which, under the Constitution, must be held next month.

Although no definite date has yet been set for the elections, the general opinion is that they will be held in June, and that writs will be issued sometime after Easter.

The Government Party is active throughout the country, and a campaign will be started early in the New Year, when leading members of the Government will tour the constituencies. The Labor Party is also very active, and the Party hopes to be able to put about fifty strong candidates in the field.

The National League, under the leadership of Captain William Redmond and Thomas O'Donnell, is making considerable progress. This party is making opposition to compulsory Irish, an important plank in its program, and on this account alone is gaining widespread support. Hopes are expressed by the party organizers that they will have at least twenty members in the next Dail.

The Farmer's Party is suffering from lack of funds, and little is being done by them so far, although Eamonn De'Valera's group is working hard and is said to be confident of results. Its most formidable rival is the People's Party, headed by Professor Magennis, which, although it professes republicanism, has no objection to attendance in the National Parliament.

The small party headed by Mary Mac Swiney, the irreconcilable Republican, has split up into three minor groups, and is virtually negligible as far as the election is concerned.

All things considered, it seems that the Government Party is still about the strongest political party in the Free State, and has high hopes of being again returned with a majority.

Convicted Trio May Face Each Other In Prison

(International News Service)

CANTON, Ohio, May 27.—Stark County Prosecutor Henry Harter made a hurried trip to Columbus today to meet Detective Ora Slater, Cincinnati detective, for a conference at the Ohio State Penitentiary with Warden Thomas, when attempts will be made to arrange an interview with Patrick Eugene McDermott, Ben Rudner, and Floyd Streitenberger, trio convicted of complicity in the Don Mellett murder here last July.

NEGRO HELD ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Theodore Melvin, negro, arrested last night in the South Side district by Officer Golis and charged with violation of the Snyder Act, when a half a gallon of liquor was found in his possession, was turned over to an alderman this morning, where a liquor violation charge was made by Chief of Police Henry Dysart. He will be given a hearing later.

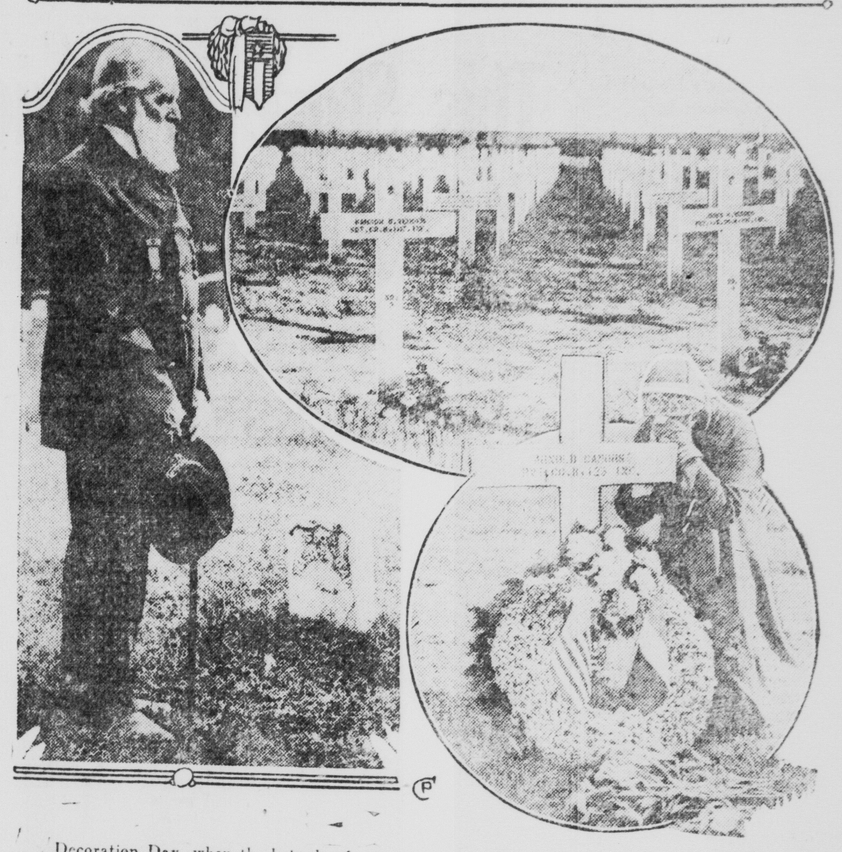
NATIONS PAY TRIBUTE TO SOLDIER DEAD



Decoration Day, when the hatreds of war are forgotten and friend and foe join to do homage to the soldier dead, finds few of the men who wore the blue and the gray in '61 left to pay tribute to their fallen comrades. Left, a white-bearded G. A. R. veteran stands silent at the grave of a soldier friend. Above, a section of Bony Cemetery, France, where the white crosses, "row on row" mark the graves of American boys who fell in a major engagement of the 27th Division. Right, below, a sister kneels, weeping, at the grave of her brother buried on French soil. Since few Americans who have lost their boys in the Great War are able to go to France on Memorial Day, the French themselves are observing the day and the graves of the Americans, as well as peilus', are decorated with flowers.

SUSPENSE OF START IS FIRST BIG THRILL AUTO FANS GET AT MEMORIAL DAY RACE

The 500-mile auto race at Indianapolis Speedway Memorial Day, the blue ribbon event of the auto racing world, furnishes thrills galore from the moment the cars are given the word. The whirr-around the track the first lap behind the pacing car to place the cars for the start of the race itself furnishes the first big "kick." Upper photo shows the cars lined up for the start. Below, the crowd watching the machines whizz around the oval. Inset is of Frank Lockhart, substitute driver, who won the shortened race in 1926.

Seeking Homes For Small Boys

Children's Aid Society Desires To Place Children In Homes

There are two little boys, healthy, normal children with a good family record behind them, who are homeless and dependent for the present on the kindly efforts of the Children's Aid Society.

One, a delightful little fellow of five years of age, is looking forward to the pleasure of having a permanent home, if possible out in the country where he can roam about and make friends with the horses, cows, sheep and chickens. It is hoped that a fine home can be secured for him in the country or some suburban district, where he can have the privileges that he really needs and desires.

The other boy is but two weeks old. It is true that his desires along the lines of a home are as yet rather immature, but the Children's Aid Society would like to arrange for him to be placed in some good home which might eventually become his permanent location and where he could secure the good things of life.

If there are such homes available for these two boys, and it is hoped that there will be, the persons interested in providing homes for them are requested to call Bell phone 1660, where all information may be obtained and arrangements made to see the boys, so that the persons interested in them may have some idea of the type of children that the Children's Aid Society is seeking homes for.

Paul M. Fuller To Speak Here

Federation Of Labor Representative To Make Address Here Tuesday

There is a nationwide movement under the auspices of the American Federation of Labor for the advancement of the cause of education among the members of organized labor. It is planned that there be branches or schools conducted in all the larger cities of the country, under the auspices of the American Federation of Labor.

It is highly probable that after the visit of Paul M. Fuller of New York, director of the workers' education bureau of the American Federation of Labor, on next Tuesday evening, that a branch of the organization designed to advance the cause of the workers along educational lines will be formed here.

Mr. Fuller will on that evening at 7:30 o'clock address the organized workmen of the city at the Trades and Labor Assembly hall. It is anticipated that the meeting will be well attended.

In addition to Mr. Fuller there will be three students of Geneva College present and take part in the discussion.
